Reds Refuse U. S. a Copy Of Kovacs' 'Confession'

Austria Fights Back

AUSTRIAN Chancellor moves to forestall Communist aim for more power. Page 12.

CARE Denied Entry

By Jack Guinn

Budapest, June 9 (AP).—Russia rejected tonight a United States request for copies of the purported "confession" of Bela Kovacs, which paved the way for the recent Communist-inspired coup d'etat against the regime of former Premier Ferenc Nagy.

A similar request by the British was denied last week. Statements from Russian sources declared that the "confession" of Kovacs, former secretary general of the Smallholders Party, implicated Nagy in a plot to overthrow the Hungarian republic.

A few hours earlier, a reliable American informant said Hungarian Communists had tried unsuccessfully to buy out private United States oil interests in this country, and had threatened to banish American executives of the Hungarian-American Oil Company Maort.

CARE Denied Entry

Other developments in a day of fast-breaking news included:

1. United States sources said Russian occupation authorities had denied clearance for CARE, the Cooperative for American Remittances to Europe, and to its representative-designate for Hungary, a former United States Army officer in the American military mission at Budapest.

2. Rumors spread over the country that anti-Communists would denounce Communist pressure within the National Assembly at a meeting of Parliament tomorrow. The session will be the first since the resignation of Nagy, who is now in Switzerland, and the flight of Assembly Speaker Bela Varga, both moderate members of the Smallholders Party.

Armour to Get Braden's Post In State Dept.

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Secretary Marshall's reorganization of the State Department moved a stage further yesterday with the nomination of Norman Armour, a veteran career diplomat, to be Assistant Secretary of State.

Armour's new post will be an innovation in the department. He will have charge of all four geographical offices which direct the day-to-day operations of American foreign policy—the offices of European, Near Eastern and African, Far Eastern and Inter-American Affairs.

Spruille Braden, whom Armour will replace in the ranks of the the assistant secretaries, had charge only of Inter-American affairs in the Department. When Ambassador James C. Dunn was assistant secretary, he had charge of all three offices handling relationships with the Eastern Hemisphere, but his authority never extended into the Latin American field.

Now, for the first time, a single assistant secretary will be responsible for the day-to-day conduct of American political relations with the whole world.

In the reorganized department structure there will be two Undersecretaries: Robert A. Lovett for political affairs and Will Clayton for economic. Each will have an assistant secretary responsible for day-to-day operations. Armour in the political field and Willard Thorp in the economic.

United Nations Foiled Reds In Greece, Ethridge Declares

New York, June 9 (AP).—Mark F. Ethridge, American representative on the United Nations Balkan Commission, said today that Communists would have control of Greece now if the U. N. had failed to step into the picture.

The situation is deteriorating all over the Balkans and Greece has virtually no control over her northern frontiers, he added.

Returning on the Queen Elizabeth from a four-month tour of the troubled Balkans with the U. N. commission, Etheridge said:

"There is no question in my mind that Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and Albania are arming, training, supplying and giving hospitalization and refuge to guerilla forces operating in northern Greece. There is no question that Greece would have gone over to the Communist minority had not the U. N. stepped in."

Ethridge, publisher of the Louisville Courier-Journal, had an hour-long conference with Warren R. Austin, chief American delegate to the U. N., and said he would report to Secretary of State George C. Marshall in Washington Wednesday. Next weekend he will go to his home in Louisville and then return here for Security Council debate on the Balkan report, scheduled to start June 23.

Indorsing the American program of aid, Ethridge said:

"The moderate groups in all countries must have security to look forward to. Otherwise they will not be able to hold out."

He expressed hope the Council would accept the commission's recommendation that a permanent border commission operate in northern Greece. He said anything less would fail to keep down guerilla activity.

The U. N. still has border watchers in the area.

Japs Resume Private Trade Abroad Aug. 15

Limited-Scale Action Seen as Recovery Aid, Easing of U. S. Load

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Private trade between Japanese firms and foreign commercial companies will be resumed August 15, the United States announced last night.

Aimed at speeding Nipponese economic recovery and lessening the rehabilitation burden on the American taxpayers, private trade relations initially will be on a limited scale, it was said.

But, declared a joint State and War Department announcement, the move should have "far reaching" results. Restoration of "true supply and demand relationships" should be accomplished "very rapidly", it was stated.

Heretofore, all of Japan's foreign trade has been handled through the official United States Commercial Co., an RFC subsidiary. Proceeds from sales of Jap goods were applied to the Nipponese bill for supplies furnished by the United States since VJ-Day.

400 to Be Admitted

Under the plan announced last night, 400 private trade representatives will be admitted to Japan, initially. That is all that can be accommodated in major industrial and commercial areas now.

They will be allowed unrestricted contact with Japanese producers. Controls exercised by the supreme command of the Allied powers — General MacArthur's headquarters—will be retained on a reduced basis.

"While Japan remains in the status of an enemy nation," the announcement said, "it will be necessary that controls be maintained, but many of these will be relinquished at the earliest possible date, in many cases before the signing of the peace treaty."

In Tokyo—where the announcement was made simultaneously—General MacArthur hailed the step as partially lifting the "economic blockade of Japan." But he added that it "falls far short of full economic solution" of Japan's problems.

"This can only be attained through the medium of a peace treaty and the sooner this is accomplished the better, not only for

Wallace Sees U. S. As Center of World Reaction

Newark, N. J., June 9 (INS).—Henry A. Wallace said tonight that "the United States has become the center of world reaction" and "the common man more and more looks to Russia for ideas, help and inspiration."

The former Cabinet member and Vice President told a Newark audience at a mass meeting sponsored by the New Jersey Independent Citizens League that "in nearly all the countries of the world we are more and more cooperating with the reactionaries against the common man."

Vote Scandal May Lead to Separate FBI

Sen. Kem Renews Demand for Probe At Kansas City, Mo.

Renewed consideration will be given to the question of establishing the FBI as a separate agency because of the Kansas City, Mo., election scandal, Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) declared yesterday.

Ferguson is chairman of the Senate Judiciary Subcommittee which disclosed in preliminary hearings last week that the Justice Department instructed the FBI to limit its inquiry into the charges against the Pendergast machine in President Truman's home bailiwick.

A county grand jury in Kansas City has returned 76 indictments against persons concerned in the Democratic primary of last August in which President Truman personally intervened to defeat Representative Roger C. Slaughter. In the primary Slaughter was defeated by Enos Axtell, who had President Truman's indorsement. In the general election Axtell was defeated by a Republican, Representative Albert J. Reeves.

Kem Renews Demand

Meanwhile Senator James P. Kem, (R., Mo.), yesterday renewed his demand on the Senate floor for a full scale Senatorial investigation into the primary.

Charges against Attorney General Tom C. Clark "of a grave character" have been made, Kem insisted.

"The Attorney General and the members of his staff should be given ample opportunity to explain fully why the investigation which the Federal Bureau of Investigation was authorized to make was restricted to interviews with only six witnesses; why under date of January 6, 1947, the Department of Justice advised the FBI that 'We are closing our file and informing you that no further investigation is desired;and why under date of February 10, 1947, the Attorney General advised the junior Senator from Missouri, who made an official inquiry, that 'The Federal Bureau of Investigation at my instance conducted a full investigation into the charges of fraud in this primary.'"

McCarran Scouts Idea

Senator Pat McCarran (R., Nev.) a member of the subcommittee, scouted any suggestion of establishing the FBI as a separate agency. The investigation and prosecution of offenses are necessarily linked, McCarran declared. He added that there would be just as much sense in establishing any bureau in the Government as a separate agency or department.

"If there was fraud in the Kansas City, Mo., primary on any such scale as is claimed," McCarran pointed out, "it could not have been put over by the Pendergast or any other machine without the definite collusion of the Republicans as well."

"The people of my city and my State, long oppressed by fraudulent elections, are grateful for the effective and intelligent approach which the subcommittee made to this important matter," Kem told the Senate.

Kem asked support of the Sen-

26,000 Acres Under Water

Mississippi and Tributaries Drive 22,240 From Homes

Hannibal, Mo., June 9 (AP).—Spilling over levees at several points, the Mississippi River and its tributaries surged to record high levels and left an estimated 22,240 persons homeless in a four-State area.

Approximately 26,000 acres of farmland between Wapello, Iowa, and St. Louis were under water, and an additional 120,000 acres on the Illinois side were threatened with inundation.

The muddy waters reached into several river communities.

Downstream from St. Louis a further rise of up to 5 feet was forecast by the Government Weather Bureau, which added that in that area "it will hardly be a major flood in the sense of the 1943 and 1944 floods."

Rail traffic between St. Louis and Burlington, Iowa, had been halted, and highways were closed in flood areas along the river.

United States Army engineers and the Coast Guard had every available worker on the job, and the American Red Cross had 50 staff workers and about 600 volunteers in the flooded area.

Water was 8 to 10 feet deep in the village of Alexandria, Mo., near the Iowa line, and the Coast Guard said a survey from the air showed the little town "completely flooded with only the rooftops showing." The residents all had been moved out when a levee break flooded the community.

Tax Cut Veto Is Forecast By Knutson

Bill's Author Raps President Truman For Criticizing Inflation Aspect

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

House Ways and Means Chairman Harold Knutson (R., Minn.), coauthor of the four billion dollar tax-reduction bill, warned the House yesterday to look out for a tax bill veto.

Knutson, who has predicted heretofore that the President would let the bill become law, with or without his signature, cited reports that Mr. Truman opposes the bill on inflationary grounds.

"Indeed, the indications are that he will veto the measure," he told the House.

Returns Friday Night

Democratic leaders, in agreement with Knutson on only that point, meanwhile pointed out that the President will have to act by midnight next Monday (June 16) at latest. The White House meanwhile announced the President will not act in advance of his trip to Canada. He returns Friday night. Some Congressional leaders expect his message Friday.

Knutson was challenged on the House floor by Minority Leader Sam Rayburn (D., Tex) when he hinted at an "understanding" that the six-billion-dollar corporate tax cut in 1945 would be followed within a year by a cut in individual taxes.

Said Knutson: "The Republicans on the Ways and Means Committee and in the House and Senate supported that (corporate tax reduction) measure with the understanding that a second tax bill giving relief to the individual taxpayers would be brought out the following year, but this was not done."

Denies "Understanding"

Replied Rayburn:

"I do not know what the understanding of the gentleman from Minnesota was, or what he imagined, but when the tax bill of 1945 was passed there was no understanding with Mr. Truman as to a tax bill in 1946 or 1947."

Knutson told the House the President bases his objections to the tax bill "on the fact that individual tax reduction would give the people more of their own money to spend, which he fears may result in further price increases."

"If there be merit in the President's contention, how does it come that he has repeatedly urged wage increases, which also give the wage earner more money to spend? Where lies the difference?"

The Minnesotan argued there was nothing inflationary in a $52 annual tax saving to a $60-a-weeker having a wife and one child.

Stress Aid to Rich

Democrats have stressed rather the bill's large dollar benefits to the wealthy. Dating tax cuts from July 1, the bill trims taxes of persons having taxable incomes up to $1000 by 30 per cent, and those earning between $1000 and $1400 from 30 to 20 per cent. Taxable incomes between $1400 and $137,000

U. S. Housing Effort Branded a 'Failure'; TVA Ordered to Pay Up 342 Million Cost

Creedon Assails Action

Year for Liquidation

Immediate termination of the Office of Housing Expediter was recommended by the House Appropriations Committee yesterday.

In voting to close the agency June 30, the committee recommended granting the expediter 3½ million dollars for liquidation, and allowed a full year, until June 30, 1948, for the task. The President's budget had asked for seven million dollars with liquidation to start six months later, or January 1.

The sudden action demanding winding up of the office, which has been a storm center since it was established by Wilson W. Wyatt in 1945, was taken, the committee said, because of the impending saturation of the building materials market with accompanying price reductions.

At the same time the committee swung the ax on other housing agencies, particularly the Federal Public Housing Authority. The latter office was ordered to get rid of a lot of high-paid officials and otherwise trim its sails.

TVA Amortization Asked

The recommendations were included in the annual Government corporation supply bill. The same measure also called for:

1. The sharp curtailment of the National Housing Agency.

2. Repayment over the next 40 years by the Tennessee Valley Authority of $342,239,240 in appropriations for power-producing facilities.

The bill carries direct appropriations for six Federal agencies. It also sets out how much of their revenues 21 others may use for administrative expenses during the next fiscal year.

Total new appropriations recommended are 36 million dollars, a reduction of 14 million below budget estimates.

Total administrative expense limitations are 41 million, a cut of 14 million from what the 21 agencies asked.

Nine million dollars of the recommended cut in direct appropriations, or almost 66 per cent, was directed at the housing agencies.

Held Waste of Money

In voting an early end to the housing expediter's office, now held by Frank Creedon, the committee rudely declared that it had been of virtually no value.

"It is doubtful that the funds expended have expedited construction at all," the report stated.

"Reports are prevalent that building materials have become available in a volume that is beginning to saturate the market," the committee said, "and that price reductions in many lines are in the offing because supply is beginning to exceed demand."

The committee cut the budget for the Federal Public Housing

President Off For Canada

Chief Executive To Speak Tomorrow Before Parliament

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Aboard Presidential Special, En Route to Ottawa, June 9.—President Truman is headed northward tonight for a three-day "good neighbor" visit to Canada.

With the Chief Executive on this B. & O. special train are Mrs. Bess Truman, the First Lady, and Miss Margaret Truman, their daughter. The party is scheduled to return to Washington late Friday.

A dispatch from Ottawa earlier today said that "world hunger and the price of gold" will be the chief topics in talks between President Truman and Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

From all the indications in Washington, however, the chief purpose of Mr. Truman's visit is to demonstrate anew that the "good neighbor" policy is a reality in the Western Hemisphere. It was with that in mind that he flew to Mexico back in March. He has said that he would like to visit every country in the New World.

To Address Parliament

President Truman is to address a meeting of both Houses of Parliament in Ottawa at 11:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Others in the party en route to Ottawa tonight are Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of staff to the President; White House Secretaries Matthew J. Connelly and Charles G. Ross; Stanley Woodward, State Department protocol officer; Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, the military aide; Rear Admiral James H. Foskett, the naval aide; Brig. Gen. Wallace

Federal Cafes Win Approval

Fleming Tells Senate Group Nothing Really Wrong in System Here

Government Services, Inc., was given a clean bill of health yesterday by Federal Works Administrator Philip B. Fleming and Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

General Fleming warned, moreover, that to abandon GSI operation of Federal cafeterias might return thousands of workers to the old days of "bringing cold food from home in paper bags" and buying box lunches from peddlers "up and down the streets."

"Leave Well Enough Alone"

"My opinion is that we had better leave well enough alone," General Fleming told a Senate Civil Service Subcommittee.

The corporation, under scrutiny by the subcommittee for four months, had been accused, among other things, of maladministration, inefficiency, failure to pay the Federal Government money due, "haywire" purchasing and evasion of priority regulations during the war.

Referring to testimony laid before the subcommittee during its probe, General Fleming said:

"To the best of my knowledge no charges of graft, crookedness, corruption or other skullduggery have been brought against Government Services. There have been accusations which may be said to amount to allegations of mistakes in judgment, most of them, it seems to me, of a rather trifling nature.

Corporations' Budget Prunes 1500 Housing Agency Jobs

By Jerry Kluttz

About 1500 employes in the Government's housing agencies here would be fired under the budget for Federal corporations reported to the House yesterday.

These are among the recommendations made by the House Appropriations Committee:

(1) That the veterans' housing program be abolished and the 2900-man staff of the Office of the Housing Expeditor be liquidated after July 1. The OHE has about 1045 employes here in veterans' housing work.

(2) That the 3550-man staff of the Federal Public Housing Authority be cut a third, and that those employes who can be paid in excess of $4500 be limited to 20 per cent of the total number. FPHA has 925 employes here, including 60 in its regional office.

(3) That Federal Housing Administrations be limited to $17,624,000 for administrative expenses during the 1948 fiscal year that begins on July 1. This is the same amount the agency received this year, but officials estimate a 10 per cent cut would have to be made in its 4700-man staff if the figure is approved because of the 14 per cent pay raise. FHA sought an administrative fund of 24 million dollars.

(4) That the Office of the Administrator, National Housing Agency, be given an appropriation of $100,000 instead of the $1,215,000 requested. NHA's 180-man staff here would be cut to about a dozen.

(5) That reductions be made forcing a 10 to 15 per cent cut in the combined staffs, totaling 1242, of Home Owners Loan Corporation, Federal Home Loan Bank Administration, Federal Home Loan Bank System, and the Federal Savings and Loan Corporation. In Washington these agencies have 262 employes.

In recommending liquidation of OHE, the committee provided funds for 30-day on-the-job notices to all employes. If the plan goes through, the bulk of OHE employes would be given notices on July 1. Only 242 employes would remain by September 1.

The OHE is now in the thick of a reduction that will wipe out about 350 jobs. By July 1, the staff here will be down from 1045 to 695. In all, the 2900-man force on veterans' housing will be down to 2671.

However, OHE recently took over rent control from OPA and it has about 6400 employes in that activity. In this city are about 325 of that number. A bill

Soaring Costs Of Land Laid To Government

Bankers' Group Head, Insurance Executive Blame Administration

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

President Truman's conference to halt increasingly wild speculation in farm land backfired yesterday, when insurance and banking leaders laid the blame for land inflation directly upon the administration.

Leading the attack upon Government farm lending policies were R. I. Nowell, vice president of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, and C. W. Bailey, president of the American Bankers Association. The conference of officials of the Government, insurance companies, banks and other lending agencies was held at the Department of Agriculture.

[The United Press reported that the conference approved a resolution calling on the Agriculture Department, State colleges, farm organizations, lending agencies and other associations to "discourage borrowing to speculate in farmland or borrowing to buy land at prices which are not justified by long-term income prospects.

[The conference recommended, it added, that veterans be protected by having a proper evaluation placed on the land they buy on borrowed money. It also warned that favorable weather of recent years "cannot be expected to continue indefinitely."

[Meantime, the Associated Press reported that on the floor of the House, Representative Cooley (D., N. C.) assailed the conference as "a deliberate effort to drive down the value of farm land and to frighten the public." He asked why farm owners should be singled out "for slaughter of the value of their investments."

[He said farmers should demand the resignation of Ivy W. Duggan, governor of the Farm Credit Administration, on the ground that Duggan instigated the conference. —Editor's note.]

Nowell and Bailey both flayed policies of the Farm Credit Administration, declaring that pend-

Started Over Weekend

Uniontown, Pa., June 9 (AP).—Spreading work stoppages which a United Mine Workers official said were called to protest pending labor legislation today idled an estimated 11,100 miners in southwestern Pennsylvania.

Twenty mines, half of which produce coal used in steelmaking, were closed by the work stoppages which President William Hynes of UMW District 4 termed "unauthorized."

The walkouts started over the weekend and spread today, affecting some of the mines owned by such large steel firms as U. S. Steel, Weirton, Republic and Jones Laughlin.

U. S. Steel said it lost 25,000 tons of coal today, 5000 tons short of the total used each day at the Clairton Coking Works. The coking plant supplies the corporation's Pittsburgh district mills with 80 per cent of their coke.

Largest Mine Closed

Among the pits closed was the Robena mine, largest in the world, which employs 1800 miners. It was one of four H. C. Frick Coal & Coke Co. mines forced to close.

Commenting on the miners' idleness, Hynes said:

"All I know is the miners are protesting the labor bill."

He said his staff was "looking the situation over to see how to act."

The Hartley-Taft labor bill restricting strikes in essential industries and providing new mediation machinery was sent to the White House today for action by President Truman.

300 Million Annual Grant To State Schools Approved

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

By a 6-to-1 vote a Senate Public Welfare Subcommittee yesterday approved a bill providing a Federal grant of 300 million dollars a year to the States for educational purposes.

Chairman George D. Aiken (R., Vt.) said the bill called for the Federal aid to education program to start with the beginning of the fiscal year 1949.

Aiken declared there is "no question at all" that the bill will have the approval of the full committee on Labor and Public Welfare. He predicted the measure would come to the floor next month, with a possibility of action before the congressional recess.

The measure provides for a minimum Federal allotment to each State of $5 a child between the ages of 5 and 17.

Expenditure of the funds is left entirely to the decision of the States except those States which maintain separate educational facilities for a minority racial group are required to apportion the Federal funds in a direct population ratio.

The measure leaves it to State discretion whether aid should be given to nonpublic schools such as parochial institutions.

Senator Forrest C. Donnell (R., Mo.), who cast the only dissenting vote, objected to this provision. He said he opposed the use of Federal

Rate on Property Raised 25c a $100; Plan to Further Tap Incomes Trimmed

By Edward Ryan
Post Reporter

The House voted late yesterday to hike District revenues 12 to 13 million dollars a year.

The Federal payment to the District was raised 4 million dollars by the measure passed by the House and sent to the Senate. The District now receives a Federal payment of eight million dollars.

A last minute effort to impose a sales tax was beaten down.

As approved by the House, the program calls for:

1. Boosting the property tax rate from the present $1.75 rate to $2 per $100, to raise $4,500,000 a year for the next two fiscal year.

2. A gas tax increase of 1 cent a gallon making the rate 4 cents, through June 30, 1952, then returning to the 3-cent rate.

3. A 25 per cent increase in present water rates, to get $800,000 a year, and assignment of one million dollars of the increased Federal grant to the city water fund.

4. A 50-cent boost in auto inspection fees from 50 cents to $1, to make the service self-supporting with an extra $65,000 a year.

5. Expansion of coverage of the District income tax law. House action trimmed the added revenue expected from $3,100,000 to a figure between one and two million dollars more a year.

Higher U. S. Payment Accepted

House District Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) voiced surprise that the House let the boosted Federal payment go through without serious challenge.

Opposition centered on the income tax, a proposed sales tax, and the gasoline tax increase. The fights were decided this way:

Income tax: By a standing vote of 78-30, the House adopted the plan of Representative P. O'Hara (R., Minn.) to protect all Federal employes from extension of the income tax.

O'Hara's plan bars the District from collecting its income tax from Federal officers or employes who make a written declaration that they have a domicile in another State. It says the domicile must have been acquired under the laws of the State named.

Sales Tax Defeated

Sales Tax: Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.), House District Appropriations Chairman, lost by a 58 to 38 standing vote his proposal for a 2 per cent general sales tax, with no exemptions for food. Horan later was shouted down when he asked to send the bill back to the House District Committee with orders to increase the revenue yield.

Gas tax: By a standing vote, 103

Riot Ends Meeting Of Moslem League

For Interim Rule

Indonesia Accepts Basic Dutch Plan

Batavia, Java, June 9 (AP).—The Indonesian Republic published today its memorandum accepting the Netherlands' request for immediate establishment of an interim Indonesian national government but differing on numerous secondary points of the Dutch "final demands" of May 27.

The republican counterproposals approve establishment of the interim government over all the East Indies, Borneo and East Indonesia as well as the republic territory of Java, Sumatra, and Madoera, provided that at least 50 per cent of its representation is from the republic.

The interim government would be empowered to prepare for a constituent council which would draft the constitution of the United States of Indonesia, transfer authority from the Netherlands East Indies colonial government to federal organs of the constituent states and deal with current administration problems.

It stipulates that the defense of Indonesia be a national matter, with participation by any foreign (Dutch) army only when it is agreed previously that both armies are fighting for a common purpose.

Of special interest to British and American observers and businessmen here is the Indonesian proposal that stockpiles of rubber, sugar and other Indies produce now held in Republican territory be sold under direction of a joint Dutch - Indonesian - estate owner board, with a fair share of the proceeds going to Indonesian workers on the estates.

Council Approves British Two-State Plan for India

New Delhi, June 9 (AP).—The Moslem League Council accepted the British plan for an independent Moslem nation in India tonight at a session which ended in a riot and brought police with guns blazing.

A band of Khaksars, Moslems who oppose the league, smashed their way into the council meeting within five minutes after the council had voted almost unanimously to establish the independent state of Pakistan after a preliminary period as a British dominion.

The attackers raced through the lounge of the Imperial Hotel into the ballroom where 300 members of the League Council were meeting.

Carry Knives, Shovels

The Khaksars were armed with knives and shovels. Police had to use tear gas bombs and rifle shots to restore order. Police arrested 11 of the 20 raiders, who want Pakistan to be as large as the projected Hindustan.

Moslem League President M. A. Jinnah, unhurt but with tears streaming from his eyes due to the tear gas, said only eight votes were cast against acceptance of the British plan.

On June 14 the predominantly Hindu All-India National Congress will meet to ratify the plan under which the British will turn over control of the huge subcontinent to the Indians. Congress acceptance is assured.

After the meeting most of the council members clustered around Jinnah, who for a half dozen years has fought to have the predominantly Moslem parts of India made into an independent state.

Jinnah Won't Talk

He had no comment on whether he intended to press for extension of Pakistan, which would include five major provinces occuping two huge sections in northeast and northwest India. Under the plan accepted in the resolution the two major provinces of Bengal and Punjab were to be hacked in two so that sections of the predominantly Hindu population could be allowed to join the Hindu part of India.

Jinnah, prior to the council meeting, had been greeted with shouts of supporters who said "Long live the Emperor of Pakistan."

"Don't say that to me," he retorted.

Conant Sees Peace Depending Upon U. S.

Athens, Ohio, June 9 (AP).—James B. Conant, Harvard University president, told an Ohio University graduating class of 368 in a commencement address today that "the chances of avoiding a major war within the lifetime of you veterans of World War II turn on the success or failure of the United States as a 'going concern.'"

"Our hopes for an enduring peace rest on the ability of this Nation in the next two decades to be the leading partner in a semi-global developement of democracy as we Americans understand the meaning of the word," Dr. Conant said.

Russia Refuses to Give U. S. Copy of Kovacs' 'Confession'

Justice Istvan Ries as saying that a new national election was "scheduled for the first half of September," and that a new election law was being written which would disfranchise "enemies" of the state and their relatives.

[In London, British Minister of State Hector McNeil told Commons that the British Ambassador to Moscow had been instructed to obtain clarification of the Soviet policy toward Hungary.

["At no stage have either the British representative on the Allied Control Commission or the British political representative in Budapest been consulted by either Soviet or Hungarian authorities in spite of the fact that, as one of the three powers entrusted with the enforcement of the armistice with Hungary, his majesty's government have the right to be consulted on such matters," McNeil continued.—Editor's note.]

Russian refusal of the American request for copies of documents allegedly implicating Nagy was contained in a terse note from Lieut. Gen. V. P. Sviridov, acting chairman of the Allied Control Commission for Hungary, to Brig. Gen. George H. Weems, commander of the American militaray mission.

Sviridov said that all the information was in the hands of an inquiry commission of the Russian occupation forces, and that, since the control council had nothing to do with the documents, he could not produce them.

Arrested February 25

Kovacs was arrested by the Russians February 25 on a charge of espionage against the Soviet Union.

The reported offer to buy out American holdings in Maort, which was developed and is principally owned by the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, was said to have been made personally last week by Deputy Prime Minister Matyas Rakosi, a Russian citizen who has become virtual dictator of Hungary.

The United States source said that Rakosi had offered to pay Paul Ruedemann of Hartsdale, N. Y., local representative of Standard Oil, "twice Standard's original investment" if the Americans would get out.

Offered Five Million

This offer of about five million dollars was refused, the informant said, and Rakosi was told that Standard Oil had refused a German offer of 25 million dollars for the same properties at the beginning of the war.

The threat of banishment was made last February, the American source said, shortly after Russian occupation forces relased the oil holdings following repeated protests by the American Government. The oil company has accused Russia of causing more than 25 million dollars damages to the fields through over-production and waste in 1946.

The informant said Communist-controlled political police had told Ruedemann at that time that he and three of four other American representatives of the company would be thrown out of the country.

The source added that the Communist now wanted to nationalize Hungarian oil fields, but were faced by the embrassing fact that Russia owns half of the Hungarian royalties of the Maort company.

Meanwhile, Lajos Dinnyes, the new premier who is a leftist member of the Smallholders, prepared to go before Parliament tomorrow to outline his policies. The Assembly also will choose a new speaker to replace Varga, and the post automatically will go to another Smallholder.

Among the anti-Communists expected to participate in the Assembly debate are Dezso Sulyok, head of the Freedom Party, whose newspaper recently was banned by the Communists, and Gyorgy Parragi, who said he was assaulted recently by Communists on the streets of Budapest. Both men were forced out of the Small Holders Party after Communists charged they were "reactionaries."

Minister of Justice Ries was quoted as saying that he and Interior Minister Laszlo Rajk, a leading Communist, were writing the new election law, which would disfranchise permanently all persons convicted of acts against the people, the republic and the democracy. The acts were not defined.

In addition, Ries said, the family and relatives as close as first cousins of disfranchised persons also would lose their vote "if they live in the same household."

Gyoengyoessy Implicated

[According to the United Press, Ries asserted that former Foreign Minister Janos Gyoengyoessy had been implicated in the alleged postwar conspiracy which led to the ousting of Nagy.

[Ries' charge caused a sensation. Though Gyoengyoessy is a member of Nagy's Smallholders Party, it was believed that he resigned merely because he was a Nagy appointee and the Communist newspaper Szabad Nep went out of its way to praise his record.

[The government announced also that the mass trial of 44 alleged conspirators, including numerous prominent men of the Smallholders Party, would begin Thursday on the charge of plotting against the republican regime.—Editor's note.]

ing legislation it is backing would add to land inflation. Government programs for farm loans for veterans also came under attack.

"The present practices of making guaranteed and insured farm mortgage loans to veterans are little short of criminal," Nowell declared. "There should be a reinterpretation of the GI Bill of Rights. If the lender were required to take his share of the loss it would do much to put an end to reckless and unconscionable loans.

"As the program is now operated, lenders look only to their own safety and view the guarantee as a $4000 cushion. No one considers seriously the veteran's ability to pay the loan, the inflation in land values caused by the program, or the eventual loss to the Treasury."

In reference to the part played by Agriculture Secretary Anderson's department in farm land inflation, Nowell declared:

"We think you (Anderson) should direct the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration to withdraw his support of pending legislation which would increase the lending power of the Federal Land Banks. Seventy-five per cent loans by the Loan Bank Commissioner were inaugurated in 1933 as an emergency relief measure for farmers.

"They have been extended by Congress time after time long after the emergency has passed. Only rcently was the lending percentage of the land banks raised from 50 to 65 per cent. Now when credit is at its wildest point in history, the Farm Credit Administration wants this lending power transferred to the land banks and made permanent. Such a move at this time can only be regarded as inflationary and a direct invitation to competitive lenders to continue in their course of 'bigger and better loans.'"

The FCA proposals in Congress also drew attack from the bankers' association head.

"If enacted into law," Bailey told the group, they would "further accentuate the inflationary trend of farm land prices.

Nowell attacked "the liberal rediscount policy of the Federal Reserve System." Under this policy he said, "commercial banks are encouraged to bid up farm loans and to make other doubtful investments by the comfortable feeling that the Federal Reserve Bank will make cash available whenever needed."

New Discoveries Described As AMA Convention Begins

(From Press Dispatches)

Atlantic City, N. J., June 9.—The American Medical Association celebrated the opening day of its centennial meeting today with reports of new discoveries.

Dr. Edgar V. Allen of the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., told those at the convention of two new drugs which now can be safely used to treat blood-clotting in the veins and in the heart muscle. These are heparin and dicumarol, which serve as anticoagulant agencies.

He said case histories now show that the drugs are helpful in treating acute myocardial infraction, a condition which exists in the heart muscle as the result of a blood clot. This, he described as one of the most serious circulatory diseases in man. Both drugs also can be used to halt intra-vascular thrombosis or pulmonary embolism, he said.

Uranium By-Product

Dr. Stanley P. Reiman of Lankenau Hospital, Philadelphia, told association members that atomic by-products may aid in cancer research.

He said that radioactive substances such as isotopes—the by-product of uranium piles—have opened up new paths for cancer research. He declared that "neither surgery nor X-rays and radium" fulfill the requirements for cancer control, and that search is being made for a drug or chemical compound.

Another advance in cancer treatment was reported by cancer researchers of Massachusetts General Hospital. It was predicted at the association convention that a new examination technique may save more lives among women suffering from a highly fatal cancerous condition of the womb known as cancer of the cervix.

The new technique consists of a method of rapid determination of the effect of X-ray or radium radiation on the cancer, so that methods of treatment might be changed if it is indicated that the radiation treatment being given the patient is ineffective.

New hope also was held out to sufferers from allergic diseases such as hay fever, asthma and skin rashes. Dr. George L. Waldbott of Detroit, told the AMA members that four effective drugs today are available for the treatment of such allergies. These are the co-called antihistamine drugs—benadryl, antistine, pyribenzamine and neoantergan, which counteract the action of histamine, which causes allergic conditions in the body.

Two Georgia doctors, describing a "two-hour pregnancy test" they've developed, said it was faster and more accurate than older tests for diagnosing pregnancy and that its prime value was in surgical emergencies where "the more lengthy tests cannot be employed."

99.5 Per Cent Accurate

Drs. Herbert Kupperman and Robert D. Greenblatt of the University of Georgia's school of medicine said their test compared with between 6 and 96 hours for other laboratory diagnostic procedures and that its accuracy in 1200 cases was 99.5 per cent, compared with a maximum of 98 to 99 per cent achieved by the longer tests.

Their method consists of injecting urine of women under study into an immature female rat. If the woman is pregnant, the ovaries of the rat become reddened with blood in two hours, due to a dilation of blood vessels.

ALCOHOLISM is a disease

Institutional treatment for only several days is required to eliminate the craving and desire, and also to create an aversion to alcohol in all its forms.

Social Lobby Most Active, Cain Finds

By The Associated Press

Senator Cain (R., Wash.) said yesterday that while 788 full time lobbyists are registered with Congress "there is probably more lobbying going on in nearby country clubs than in the corridors of the Capitol."

"Here is an intangible manifestation of the political lobby—it is the social lobby—the plethora of elaborate cocktail and dinner parties, sports, junkets and related activities that provide entertainment," Cain said in a statement. "It is mostly talk and nearly all political in a town of little music and less theater."

"Obviously," the freshman Senator added, "coincidence alone cannot account for congressional leaders being invited to the same party with special-cause proponents . . . and old timers tell me there also is a sharp falling off of invitations to once influential members of the minority party."

In plain language that means the Democrats aren't getting as many free meals as when they were in power in Congress.

Cain said the registered lobbyists are concerned with "practically anything you can dream up."

He added that they flood Senators' offices with so much propaganda that it is a major job "to evaluate this material for what it is worth."

"However, I myself, have encountered no vicious or corrupt lobbyist activity," Cain said. "Most of these lobbying groups are frank and above board."

Subcommittee Would Abolish 5-Star Rank in Future

A House Armed Services subcommittee acted yesterday to cut down the number of top-ranking Army, Navy and Marine Corps officers.

They voted to abolish the rank of five-star general and admiral a year hence and force the retirement or demotion of 13 other "brass hats" by that date.

Both actions would result from amendments tentatively written into Administration-sponsored legislation revising the Army and Navy promotion systems. After 10 weeks of hearings, the subcommittee submitted a series of changes to the War and Navy Departments for comment and incorporation into the bills.

Present Leaders Unaffected

The subcommittee then will combine the Army and Navy measures into one bill and press for passage at this session. Other features of the bill would institute promotion by selection for Army officers and make certain refinements in the long-existing naval officer advancement system.

Chairman Andrews (R., N. Y.) of the full House Armed Service Committee said the plan to abolish five-star rank in peace-time would not affect the seven World War II leaders given that rank.

But by July 1, 1948, the number of four-star generals and admirals must be cut to 11 and the total of lieutenant generals and vice admirals (three stars) to 60. There are now 80 on active duty.

No decision was reached limiting the number of major generals, brigadier generals and rear admirals, though a cut is expected.

Committee Acts Reluctantly

The committee said it recommended the cuts reluctantly but felt that they were necessary "in this difficult period."

"All members of the subcommittee were reluctant to require reduction when many of the officers to be affected so recently furnished the leadership and vision necessary to win the greatest war in the history of the American people," it said.

"However, in consideration of the fact that a very large production of the lower ranking officers who did the actual fighting in the last war have already been reduced in rank, the subcommittee felt that what is necessary in their instance must, in this difficult period, apply comparably to those who served above them."

Distribution Stipulated

The committee stipulated that the 11 permissible four-star ranks be distributed as follows:

Army (4)—Chief of Staff and three others not yet designated.

Navy (3)—Chief of Naval Operations, commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, and commander in chief of the Atlantic fleet.

Marine Corps (1)—The commandant.

Air Forces (3)—Chief of Staff and two others not yet designated.

The Army now has 10 four-star officers, including those in the Air Forces, while the Navy has 9 and the Marine Corps 1.

In the three-star ranks, the committee decided to limit the Army to 23 lieutenant generals, the Air Forces to 14, and to restrict the Navy and Marine Corps to 23 vice admirals and lieutenant generals. There are 30 Army and Air Forces lieutenant generals, while the Navy and Marine Corps have 34, including 2 who were retired but recalled to temporary duty.

Bars Lowered To Jap Trade

Japan but for the world," MacArthur said.

Plans for reopening private trade were drafted by MacArthur's headquarters and the United States Trade Mission. The latter is made up of representatives of the Departments of State, Treasury, War and Commerce, RFC and the U. S. Commercial Company.

At the start, no foreign exchange rates will be established. Any rate set now, it was said, would be unrealistic and would tend to limit transactions.

For the time being, SCAP commodity specialists will establish prices based upon world market standards. However, individual traders may discuss prices with Jap producers. Later, this function will be transferred to the Japanese, and after "a flow of expert trade in a wide range of commodities has been established," an official exchange rate for the yen will be fixed.

The Japanese government will license transactions made through private negotiations and SCAP headquarters will validate the deals, it was said. SCAP, however, will not be a party to any transaction. They will be between foreign buyers and the Boeki Cho, the Nipponese Board of Trade.

Because some nations do not use private trade channels, government-to-government transactions will continue along with private trade. The United States Commercial Co. will continue government-to-government sales in this country for the present, but will not be involved in any private trading, the announcement said.

Raw silk, cotton textiles and the 1947 tea crop will not be available for private trade for the present, as they have already been committed for sale.

U. S. to Keep Buyers Posted

To help buyers avoid going to Japan on "wild goose chases," SCAP will furnish the Commerce Department here with information about available goods.

International quotas for the 400 places open in Japan for trade representatives will be set by the Inter-Allied Trade Board of the Far Eastern Commission here. SCAP reserved the right to pass on all representatives.

Banking, international communications, insurance and other business service representatives will be admitted first. Later an influx of toy merchants, silk buyers, shoe and clothing salesmen, etc., will follow.

Little Importance Seen

Tokyo (Tuesday), June 10.—Little immediate importance to Japan's economy was attached here today to the announcement of the resumption of foreign trade on August 15. General MacArthur, in a supplementary statement, termed the measure "merely palliative."

The admittance of 400 representatives of foreign business interests was received happily by the Japanese, who are beginning the see some light at last in the economic blackout. The Japanese Board of Trade was reserved, however, on the prospects of an immediate economic upswing. Allied observers, some of them in General MacArthur's headquarters, called the announcement a "gesture."

Election Scandal May Lead To Separate FBI, Senator Says

ate for a resolution which the Senate Judiciary Committee will be asked to report out, calling for an appropriation of $10,000 for a full scale investigation of the scandal.

McCarran contended that such an investigation would be "an almost flagrant waste of money" because the FBI is now making a full dress inquiry into the whole affair. The FBI was given instructions by the Justice Department to make a complete inquiry after the safe in which the ballots were held in Kansas City was blown up and most of the ballots stolen.

"Up to the present nothing has been disclosed that constitutes the basis for believing or signifying a violation of a Federal statute has taken place," McCarran insisted.

Postpones Action

Ferguson was expected to present a memorandum for subcommitee action yesterday but postponed the move until Wednesday. Third member of the subcommittee is Senator William Langer (R., N. Dak.).

When Attorney General Clark testified before the subcommittee he reminded its members that Federal jurisdiction in election cases is limited to a civil rights statute concerned with conspiracy to deprive a voter of his rightful opportunity to vote for a Federal official.

Ferguson said the subcommittee might consider changes in the laws relating to Federal elections.

Both Ferguson and Kem charged that the Justice Department acted with lightning speed on a Democrat's complaint of a possible election fraud in Republican Kansas even while ignoring the charges against the Pendergast machine.

Ferguson made public a letter from J. Edgar Hoover, FBI chief, giving the details of the FBI inquiry into charges brought by Carl V. Rice of Topeka, Kans., a Democratic National committeeman, concerning the Wyandotte County, Kans., election.

Ferguson claimed the evidence showed that the Justice Department was not dispensing even-handed justice to Democrats and Republicans alike.

Official spokesmen of both parties reflected the usual partisan give-and-take in a round of public statements, but at least one highly placed Democrat privately told reporters:

"It's a good thing for the party it worked out this way. If Savage had been elected it would have gone down on the books as a Henry Wallace victory and a Truman defeat."

Pleases "Regulars"

He and some other Democratic "regulars" hailed the defeat of Savage by Russell V. Mack, the Republican nominee, as a victory for the "Truman doctrine." Mack supported the President's foreign policy but Savage declined to commit himself.

In Newark, N. J., however, Henry Wallace told newsmen "it was a mistake" to say Savage was his candidate. Wallace insisted Savage was a candidate of the Democratic Administration, which put money into his campaign, adding:

"Some members of the Administration felt it was inadvisable for me to appear on the same platforms with Mr. Savage, but when I spoke in Washington I supported his candidacy."

Wallace said it was "hardly true" that Mack's win over Savage was a victory for the President's foreign policy. He said foreign policy was not an issue in the Washington campaign.

Republican National Chairman Carroll Reece in a statement last night said final returns gave Mack a 2000 vote margin over Savage.

"It seems that the Democrats cannot win with or without Wallace," said Reece. "The continuance of the trend, evidenced in 1946, which showed the majority of the American people rejecting those doctrines which smack of alien un-American theories, is confirmed."

House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck (Ind.) meanwhile termed Mack's victory both "a repudiation of the Truman administration and radicalism" and an omen of what will happen in 1948.

"Radicals will capture Democratic nominations and the people will continue to vote Republican as a sure way to keep the American way of life," said Halleck.

The House Republican leader called on President Truman "to repudiate Henry Wallace" by signing the labor and tax reduction bills, saying:

"Vetoes of the tax relief and labor bills will be interpreted as expediences to placate the radical masters of the Democratic Party."

"Democrats in Dilemma"

Representative Leonard W. Hall (R., N. Y.), chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, observed that the Democratic Party "is up against a real dilemma. It can win neither with nor without its Henry Wallace wing." Hall said Mack won "a victory not only for republicanism but for sound Americanism."

Representative Pat Drewry (D., Va.), chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, noted that Mack won by only 1500 votes. He said Mack's Republican predecessor won last November by over 7000 votes.

"So if any trend was shown, it was in the direction of the Democratic Party," said the Virginian. Drewry told newsmen that while his congressional committee contributed no money directly to Savage's campaign, the Democratic National Committee, with the congressional group's consent, made funds available. Both Gael Sullivan, executive director of the Democratic National Committee, and President Truman, publicly indorsed the nominee.

Held Doctrine Indorsement

Drewry and several other Capitol Democrats commented on Mack's support of the Truman Doctrine. Drewry said he regarded it as a significant factor in Mack's election.

Representative J. Percy Priest (D., Tenn.) termed the election "a key to the strength of the Truman Doctrine."

Senator John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.), former speaker's bureau chief of the Democratic National Committee, said:

"If it was fought out on that issue it certainly shows an indorsement of the Truman Doctrine and shows that the people of that section, and I believe all over the United States, are through with isolationism, political and economic."

Sparkman said he discounted reports Wallace would form a third party "because as a practical matter they can do only one thing—put Republicans in power . . .

"Wallace has only three other alternatives. He can support Truman, support the Republican nominee or go fishing."

Czech Army Group Will Make Tour Of Yugoslavia

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, June 9 (AP). The Yugoslav government said today that Czechoslovakia's defense minister and a group of high ranking Czech army officers would arrive Wednesday for a 10-day tour of Yugoslavia.

Already visiting Yugoslavia are Romanian Premier Petru Groza and his party of top government officials who were honor guests last night at a reception given by Yugoslav Premier Marshall Tito.

The government said Gen. Ludwik Svoboda, Czechoslovakia's minister of defense; Gen. Bohumil Bochek, chief of the Czech general staff; Gen. Alois Vikerek, chief of the Czech air force, and four other generals would comprise the Czech delegation.

Their visit was termed a "courtesy call" repaying the visit of Lieut. Gen. Kocha Popovich, Yugoslav chief of staff, to Prague in March.

U. S. Sugar Quota Given Huge Boost

Hundreds of Thousands of Tons Seen Bringing Control End Nearer

Removal of sugar rationing was brought nearer last night when the International Emergency Food Council voted this country several hundred thousand additional tons of sugar for 1947.

IEFC also increased this year's sugar supplies for 20 other nations, for which it acts as sugar control board.

No announcement of the increased amounts to be allocated will be made until after the embassies and legations of the nations involved are notified today.

Reports last night were that the United States' allocation was increased from 6,800,000 tons to 7,200,000—the original amount requested last winter. The 6,800,000 tons was allocated February 21.

The additional sugar divided up by IEFC yesterday comes from two sources:

(1) Increased production in Cuba and Puerto Rica over estimates by IEFC last winter.

(2) Cuban and Puerto Rican sugar allocation to various nations, but not claimed.

The IEFC action came while James H. Marshall, chief of the Sugar Branch of the Department of Agriculture, was telling the House Banking Committee that household users probably will be granted an additional 15 pounds of sugar this year for canning purposes. This will be additional to the 35 pounds per person already planned for the year.

At the department, rumors were persistent that the IEFC action will result in the removal of rationing for home consumption by the end of the month.

Such action, Marshall told the committee, would make it virtually impossible to continue ration controls over small industrial users, such as small bakeries and candy makers.

Chicago, June 9 (AP). — Kraft Foods Co. said today it had reduced prices 17 per cent at wholesale level on all its line of dressing oil products. Goodyear Prices Cut

Akron, Ohio, June 9 (AP).—Slashes of from 4 to 25 per cent in retail prices of certain tire and tube items were announced today by the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.

R. S. Wilson, vice president and sales manager for Goodyear, said the concern's tire most popular with most motorists, the 6.00-16 Goodyear de luxe, would be cut 10½ per cent in price. The heavy duty tube for the tire was reduced approximately 25 per cent, he reposted.

The price slashes, effective June 12, also include the following reductions: De luxe six-ply automobile tires, 8 per cent; all automobile inner tubes, with the exception of lifeguard safety tubes, 20 to 25 per cent.

"The tire industry has achieved the unprecedented in reconverting to peacetime production so efficiently as to meet the demand for its products within approximately 18 months of the war's end and bring its prices back to approximately prewar levels or lower," Wilson said.

Career Diplomat Named to Post

NORMAN ARMOUR, nominated yesterday as Assistant Secretary of State to replace Spruille Braden in a major move in Secretary Marshall's reorganization of the State Department which Secretary Marshall has wanted to make since he took office in January. It reflects the Secretary's belief that a tidy "chain of command" is as necessary in the State Department as it was in the War Department when he was Chief of Staff.

The choice of Armour as Assistant Secretary was generally expected. As Ambassador to Spain, Chile and Argentina and Minister to Canada, and in previous posts in Europe, Asia and Latin-America, Armour acquired probably the greatest volume of experience of anyone in the career service.

His service started in Paris early in the First World War and included assignments to Tsarist Russia, Fascist Italy and imperial Japan. He retired at the end of last year, when he was brought home from Madrid as a result of the United Nations Assembly decision to recall the chiefs of mission from Franco Spain.

Armour, who is 59, was born in England of American parents. He was educated at Harvard and Princeton, and started his diplomatic career abroad at 28.

He will become Assistant Secretary with vacancies impending in three of the four offices in his charge.

H. Preston Matthews, director of the office of European affairs, and John Carter Vincent, director of the office of Far Eastern affairs, will have to be moved into the field in accordance with the new law which prevents a foreign service officer from serving more than four years consecutively in the United States.

Ellis Briggs, whom Braden brought into the department to head the office of American republics affairs, is expected to be appointed Ambassador to Uruguay. The sole survivor of the four is likely to be Loy Henderson, director of the office of Near Eastern and African affairs, where jurisdiction includes Greece and Turkey.

Freeman to Discuss Purchasing Problems

"Special Phases in Purchasing for Government" will be discussed before the Government Purchasing Agents' Association of Washington at 2 p. m. today at the National Museum. The speaker will be W. M. B. Freeman, deputy director of the Treasury Department's Bureau of Federal Supply.

Walsh Takes 'Bad Turn'

Boston, June 9 (AP).—Former United States Senator David I. Walsh, 74-year-old veteran of more than a quarter century service in the Senate, "took a bad turn about 4 p. m. today" at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, where he has been a patient since last Wednesday.

Due at Ottawa Today

Tomorrow at Rouse's Point, N. Y., just before crossing the border, the presidential special will stop to take on board the Right Hon. L. S. St. Laurent, Canadian Secretary of State for External Affairs, and Ray Atherton, the United States Ambassador to Canada.

The train is scheduled to arrive in Ottawa at 3:30 p. m. President Truman and members of his party will be met by Viscount Alexander, the Governor General, and Lady Alexander; Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Mme. St. Laurent and Mrs. Atherton, Hume Wrong, Canadian Ambassador to the United States, and the Mayor of Ottawa and Mrs. Stanley Lewis.

After a drive through the streets of Ottawa, which will be lined with troops, President Truman and his entourage will go to Government House at Rideau Hall, home of the Governor General. Here the President will receive a royal salute of 21 guns and afterward will review a guard of honor.

The President, the First Lady, and Miss Truman are to spend the night at Government House as guests of the Governor General and Lady Alexander.

Northern Ireland Charges IRA Plot

London, June 9 (U.P.)—Northern Ireland's Ministry of Home Affairs charged today that the illegal Irish Republican Army is reorganizing again in Northern Ireland and intends to establish a reign of terror.

It released nine photographs of arms alleged belonging to the IRA, seized in various parts of North Ireland. One arms cache in a parochial school in Belfast was said to include revolvers, tommy guns, sawed-off shot guns, bombs, hand grenades, rifles and much ammunition.

Business Groups Hit Housing Plan

By The Associated Press

The Budget Bureau yesterday recommended, and business interests opposed, President Truman's plan to put most Federal housing agencies under one roof and one director.

The proposal, Government Reorganization Plan No. 3, was sent to Congress May 27. Unless Senate and House both turn it down beforehand, it becomes effective automatically 60 days from that date.

The House Expenditures Committee opened hearings on a resolution to reject it.

Assistant Budget Director Frederick J. Lawton, testified the plan would promote efficiency and reduce duplication in Federal housing activities.

Then, in statements prepared for the committee, that position was challenged by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the American Legion, the National Association of Home Builders, the National Association of Real Estate Boards and the Commerce and Industry Association of Metropolitan New York.

Thomas S. Holden, who spoke for the New York group, said the "vague general terms" of the presidential plan "boil down to national planning for all the housing activities of the United States; in other words, nationalization of the home building industry." The other opponents expressed similar views.

Brazil May 'Eliminate' Reds From Congress

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, June 9 (U.P.).— A five-man Congressional committee today recommended that all Communists "eliminated automatically" from seats they now hold in national and state legislature and city councils as the result of the supreme electoral tribunal's May 7 decision outlawing the Communist Party in Brazil.

Political sources said Congress may decide this week by a simple majority votes to declare the Communist seats vacant and call new elections to fill them.

Removing Them Now Would Cost 200,000 Homes, Says Creedon

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Housing Expediter Frank R. Creedon warned yesterday that immediate removal of the "few remaining" construction controls would reduce by more than 200,000 the one million homes he estimated will be completed this year.

Creedon's warning was issued as Senate-House conferees prepared to meet tomorrow to work out a final housing-rent control measure. Both bills remove at once most of the remaining construction restrictions.

The House bill retains Federal controls over construction for amusement and recreation purposes; the Senate bill continues controls for all commercial building.

The Housing Expediter offered the warning in an address before the monthly meeting of the Washington Building Congress, at the Mayflower Hotel. At the same time he said he believed "all restrictions can be safely removed in the Fall" without injuring the housing program.

The "few remaining restrictions" of the veterans emergency housing program include a limitation on non-housing construction to $50 million monthly and allocation controls over pig-iron and millwork, to assure production of cast-iron pipe, and finished lumber for doors and windows.

Under the present program, veterans get a priority to buy or rent all new housing. This restriction is retained in the legislation passed by both House and Senate.

The lifting of controls now, Creedon said, would result in still-hard-to-get materials being attracted to construction of the "less necessary" commercial projects. The reference was to race tracks, gambling houses, amusement centers and the like. There's a pent-up demand for three billion dollars in commercial-industrial construction, Creedon pointed out.

The building group elected John G. Scharf head of Prescott Construction Co., president to succeed A. W. Lee. Louis Justement, P. Y. K. Howat and William F. Nelson were elected vice presidents; George V. Graham, secretary; W. A. H. Church, treasurer; M. C. McKinnon, William K. Karsunky and Thomas H. Locraft, directors.

to continue rent control is now in a House-Senate conference.

FPHA requested a 1948 appropriation of $15,600,000 in comparision with about $18,000,000 it had for this year. The committee recommended $10,400,000 and gave it a stern lecture on "business practices." It charged the agency with poor administration, questionable practices, and an "inexcusably bad accounting situation."

The committee said that 36 per cent of FPHA employes were paid over $4500 and that the list of titles of so-called specialists is "startling."

It was unofficially estimated that the 3550-man staff would have to be cut to around 2200. FPHA has about 5500 additional people employed in its housing projects. This group of employes wouldn't be touched.

FHA, which makes money for the Government, had planned to expand its staff from 4700 to 5600. The Washington office would have been enlarged from 1500 to 1763 under its budget. But the more than six million-dollar cut by the House committee would compel the agency to drop expansion plans and to make a small reduction in force.

HOLC and its allied agencies would be facing a stiffer cut in personnel had they not voluntarily reduced staff recently. For example, HOLC, now in liquidation, requested a budget of 910 employes, but it's down now to 763 people.

However, officials said the cut for the Home Loan Bank System and the Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation were "ruinous" as vital functions would have to be wiped out if the cuts are approved.

The committee also recommended cuts in administrative expenses for State Department corporations. The Institute of Inter-American Affairs would be cut from $788,000 to $550,000, and the Inter-American Foundation, Inc., from $400,000 to $250,000.

Tennessee Valley Authority was given a cut of $4,914,000 to $17,762,000. In all, the committee would reduce administrative expenses of Government corporations by $14,797,550.

RETIREMENT: That unpredictable Langer-Chavez retirement bill was dug up from its grave and revived yesterday at a meeting of the House Civil Service Committee.

In brief, it's now the private opinion of one Civil Service actuary that the bill as written would not cost the Government an additional cent. That actuary is Russell R. Reagh of the Treasury Department.

Officially, however, Reagh joined with another member of the board of actuaries to estimate the bill would cost the Government about 39 million dollars a year. Previously, the actuaries said the bill would cost 105 million dollars, but they don't care to be reminded of it. That huge estimate appeared to have killed the legislation which would amend the Civil Service retirement system to provide for higher annuities and earlier retirement ages.

It has been the position of Warren Irons, chief of the Civil Service retirement system, that the measure would impose no additional cost on the Government. Irons has now been backed up by Reagh.

Representative Vursell (R., Ill.) criticized that provision in the bill which would increase pensions by either a flat $300 or 25 per cent whichever is smaller. He said the annuitants didn't need the money and that they didn't expect to get the increase.

Representative Stevenson (R., Wis.), chairman of the retirement subcommittee, said he would seek to amend the bill to permit employes who serve less than 10 years to withdraw their money from the retirement system. He appeared to be optimistic that the bill would be given a favorable report by his group.

would be cut 20 per cent; between $137,000 and $302,000, 15 per cent, and over $302,000, 10½ per cent.

Knutson told the House:

"It is in order for the President to tell us how it comes that the Canadian people have already been given one tax reduction, with a second reduction which will amount to as much as 29 per cent, to become effective July 1.

"The individual taxpayers of the United Kingdom have also been given a substantial tax reduction since the war's end, but if the President has his way American taxpayers will continue to stagger under their wartime tax load until Mr. Truman has been retired to private life."

Dr. Johnson Promoted At John Hopkins

Baltimore, June 9 (AP).—Dr. Robert W. Johnson, jr., has been appointed adjunct professor of orthopedic surgery at the Johns Hopkins University school of medicine and orthopedist in charge at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, officials of both institutions announced today.

Effective July 1, Dr. Johnson will succeed Dr. George E. Bennett, who asked to be relieved as adjunct professor and head of the hospital's orthopedic division.

University and hospital officials said, however, that Dr. Bennett "will continue his close affiliation with both the school of medicine and the hospital."

Since 1931 Dr. Johnson has been Dr. Bennett's assistant.

Authority from 15 to 10 million dollars, and ordered FPHA to reduce sharply the number of its higher-paid personnel.

Its hearings, the committee said, "are replete with instances of poor administration and questionable practices and policies" in FPHA.

Included, it says, are "instances of embezzlement of the funds of local housing projects," indications that "labor unions are exercising an undue influence in at least some of the personnel changes by FPHA, and "indications" that long-distance telephone and travel expenses have been "very loosely controlled."

In addition to ordering the TVA to repay appropriations it has received in past years for power facilities, the committee ordered that $2,500,000 of outstanding bond principal of the TVA be paid annually out of net income from power operation. Not less than 40 per cent of the remaining power revenue is to be used each year to repay the $343,239,240 in appropriations.

The committee called this proposal "a forward and progressive step."

It cut by two million dollars TVA's request for dam construction and reduced by the same amount funds sought for additions to chemical plants. Other TVA cuts recommended included: $375,000 from the fund for fertilizer tests and demonstrations, $125,000 from funds for rural organization and cooperative development activities, and $220,000 from funds for the purchase of new automobiles.

The committee's recommendations with respect to the other larger agencies financed or controlled by the bill include these:

Reconstruction Finance Corporation: No action, pending decision by Congress on legislation extending the RFC, which expires June 30 unless continued.

War Damage Corporation: Ordered to return to the Treasury $210,751,618 which the corporation said represents the excess of its income over expenses and which was slated for transfer to the Treasury. The corporation—which wrote wartime insurance—is going out of business.

Export-Import Bank of Washington: Administrative expenses cut $42,000 from $842,000 and bank directed not to make major loans for reconstruction and rehabilitation but to let the newly established World Bank handle such loans, or to obtain congressional sanction in advance.

Inland Waterway Corporation and Warrior River Terminal Co.: $418,100 for administrative expenses approved in full, with recommendations that the corporation be liquidated in five years, and the company be sold.

Institute of Inter-American Affairs and Inter-American Educational Foundation, Inc.: Direct appropriation requests for seven million dollars and $1,115,000, respectively, approved in full.

Judd Calls U. S., Not Soviet, World 'Question Mark'

Oxford, Ohio, June 9 (AP).—The United States, not Russia, is the "question mark" to peace-loving people of the world, Representative Walter Judd (R., Minn.) said today in an address at Miami University's 108th commencement exercises.

Congressman Judd, who was awarded an honorary doctor of civil laws degree by the university, declared:

"America and other freedom-loving nations must learn to play as a team in peace as we do in war. Eighty per cent of the nations will join with us if we show them we mean to resist totalitarianism.

"We, not Russia, are the question mark to millions and millions of men and women who love freedom and will fight and die for it if only they have hope.

"These people look to Washington, D. C., and not to the Kremlin for guidance. Even the Kremlin's decisions depend on the decisions made in Washington."

Leon Henderson, Jr., Playmate Save Girl, 5, From Drowning

Leon Henderson, jr. — Jane Raynor — Allen Klein

Two 9-year-old District boys were credited yesterday with having saved the life of 5-year-old Jane Raynor, who fell into the South River near Annapolis Sunday.

The boys, Leon Henderson, jr., son of the former OPA administrator, and Allen Klein, son of Dr. Elmer Klein, psychiatrist, of 3634 Barnaby st. nw., leaped into 10 feet of water to rescue Jane, who was unable to swim.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hayden Raynor, of 6647 32d pl. nw., Jane had been playing on a pier at Wild Rose Shores when she lost her footing and fell into the river. The two boys also playing on the pier, dived in after her. They kept pushing her toward shore until James E. Glose, a resident of the summer colony, arrived and pulled her from the water.

She was given artificial respiration and oxygen, by Dr. Klein and recovered. The Raynors had been visiting the Kleins over the weekend.

U. S. Cafeterias Get Approval

emerging is certainly understandable. Who, during the war years, didn't make some mistakes?"

Gen. Grant in Defense

General Grant, who is president of GSI, described the history of the corporation and defended certain of the charges brought against it in 19 pages of rebuttal.

He claimed that "each day's inquiry seems to have dealt with some petty incidents."

General Grant said, in summary, that:

1. GSI is the "best and most flexible method yet found to operate cafeterias in Government buildings and perform other similar public services."

2. The corporation has carried on its business "successfully and efficiently with only such minor errors as were inevitable in a business exposed to such repeated and unexpected changes of conditions."

3. The management "has proven capable, loyal and honest."

4. Differences with the General Accounting Office have been in opinion or interpretation.

5. No "other device has yet been discovered which so definitely establishes both financial and services responsibility . . . and which secures to the Government a return for the facilities afforded."

Senator Raymond E. Baldwin (R., Conn.), the subcommittee chairman, wanted to know "whether the Government and the corporations are sure of a fair and equitable distribution" of profits.

General Fleming said the only alternative to GSI operation of the 53 Federal eateries is for the Government itself to go into the cafeteria business. He added, "I don't believe running a restaurant chain is a proper function of the United States Government."

He revealed later that he had requested $200,000 from the Budget Bureau to make necessary structural changes in Federal buildings housing GSI cafeterias. The District Health Department recently refused to grant licenses to most of the GSI eateries because the buildings did not conform to health standards.

Senator Baldwin said the final hearing, in the event GSI seeks to make a further rebuttal, will be held at 10:15 a. m. next Monday. An executive session is scheduled for tomorrow.

3 Held in Capture of Truck Loaded With Loot

Three youths arrested Saturday morning driving a truck full of assorted loot, yesterday were ordered held for the grand jury on $5000 bond each.

The trio, brought before Judge Aubrey Fennell, in United States Branch of Municipal Court, were held on 14 charges.

Charles E. Rockenberg, 21, of 4506 Lily Pond dr. ne., was held on five charges of housebreaking and one charge of unauthorized use of a vehicle; Joseph A. Watson, 19, of 833 11th st. ne., and George R. Davis, 20, of the same address, three charges of housebreaking and one of unauthorized use of a vehicle.

The three youths were arrested after a chase by two suspicious police. One of the three youths was captured when he knocked himself out running into a tombstone in Mount Harmony Cemetery. A fourth escaped and is still being sought.

The truck contained $2600 worth of laundry, which, along with the vehicle, was taken from the Pioneer Laundry, 920 Rhode Island ave. ne. It also contained an unopened safe and adding machines taken from Hope's Windows Inc., 721 Channing pl. ne.

Police filed the two other housebreak charges against Rockenberg yesterday, asserting he twice before, on May 11 and May 28, had looted the Hope concern.

300 Million Annual U. S. Grant to State Schools Approved funds to assist any private schools.

The bill emphasizes the fact that the Federal Government will have no control whatever over the expenditures of the funds by the States. Departments, agencies, officers and employes of the United States are specifically forbidden "to direct, supervise, or control in any manner, or prescribe any requirements with the methods of instruction or the materials of instruction" or to require any change in any State constitution as a prerequisite of benefitting under this measure.

The bipartisan bill was sponsored by Senators Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), Elbert D. Thomas (D., Utah), Lister Hill (D., Ala.), H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.), John S. Cooper (R., Ky.), Dennis Chavez (D., N. Mex.), and Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.).

More for Poorer

The apportionment of the funds to the States is based on an allocation formula which is the difference between 1 per cent of the State's annual income and a sum representing the number of children between 5 and 17 in the State multiplied by $45.

Thus the apportionment of Federal funds would vary with each State. The apportionment would begin at $5 per child and might in some States go as high as $28. The richer States would thus receive less Federal aid and the poorer States more.

Subcommittee figures show that State expenditures range from $42.65 per child in Mississippi to $185 in New York.

The bill specified that the States must spend the Federal funds for current expenditures.

At the end of four years each State would be required to pay at least $50 on each pupil in every school district each year or become ineligible for further Federal assistance.

The committee also provided that after the fourth year of operation States should be ineligible unless they are spending two per cent of the annual State income on education or averaging $120 a year a pupil.

Two per cent of the total funds may be apportioned to Alaska, Hawaii, the Canal Zone, Puerto Rico, American Samoa, the Virgin Islands and Guam.

May Help Teachers

The measure provides that in the District of Columbia the Board of Education will have the administration of the Federal funds.

Aiken declared that the measure should help solve the teacher shortage because "a large part of the appropriation undoubtedly will go for teachers' salaries."

Joining him in voting for the bill were Senators Hill, Thomas, Smith, Allen J. Ellender (D., La.), and Irving M. Ives (R., N. Y.).

Ellender said the measure is "a splendid equalization bill for assisting those States which are rich in children and poor in dollars."

Adopt Two Amendments

The final committee bill is a composite of the bipartisan measure sponsored by Taft and others and legislation introduced by Aiken.

Two major amendments adopted yesterday were one providing that the bill go into effect in September, 1948, instead of September, 1947, and another reducing the annual Federal grant from 350 million to 300 million.

Committee members said it would be impossible for the States to begin operating under the measure next September since the House has not yet had any legislation reported to it.

Estimates have all fixed upon the sum of 300 million as the minimum needed. Orginally another 50 million had been contemplated as a cushion to be drawn upon when needed.

Pullen Indorses U. S. School Aid, Hits Shaping of Policies

Safety of the whole country demands a certain level of education—and that level requires Federal aid, Thomas C. Pullen, Maryland State superintendent of schools, said yesterday.

Addressing the morning session of the Southern Regional Conference of the Council of State Governments, Superintendent Pullen declared that "if we permit ignorance in some places, then we permit demagogues to flourish."

"Equalizing" of education should be carried out by the States themselves, however, with the Federal Government giving financial aid directly to the States and not to any subdivisions, Pullen declared. The Government, he said, "must not shape educational policies or impose any conditions for the Federal aid."

For the Government, John Studebaker, Commissioner of the U. S. Office of Education, agreed he would "hate to see a thorough federalization of education of education in order to achieve equalization of opportunity." Grants, he said, should provide only a "floor" for education pay.

In a report session on education in the states, J. Maynard Magruder, Arlington delegate to the Virginia General Assembly, told the meeting that 44 of the 51 specific recommendations made by a Virginia commission on education in 1944, have been put into effect. These include higher appropriations for all phases, subsidies for teacher training, and authorization of school consolidations. Two commissions are now studying the state's education "from top to bottom," he said.

For Maryland, Albert L. Sklar, Baltimore member of the House of Delegates, said 65 per cent of the 53-million-dollar increase in the state budget for the next two years is for education. Minimum pay has been raised from $2000 to $3600 for teachers who have graduate credits, and from $2200 to $3800 for those with degrees, he said, with the state equalizing fund aiding the counties.

Anglo-American Oil Pact Held Essential to Defense

By The Associated Press

A spokesman for Secretary of War Patterson and Secretary of the Navy Forrestal told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday they believed the Anglo-American petroleum agreement is "essential to our national defense."

But the Independent Petroleum Association of America argued against Senate ratification of the agreement, contending it "will provide the means and vehicle for control and regulation of the oil industry by the Federal Government and by an international commission."

Indorsement of the agreement by Patterson and Forrestal was contained in a statement to the committee by the Army-Navy Petroleum Board. Col. G. H. Vogel, executive officer of the board, said he was making the statement for the two Secretaries.

The statement cited this reason, among others, why the treaty should be ratified:

"American oil companies have to date built up substantial interests in foreign countries. Past experience has shown that it is necessary to keep valid concessions, contracts and lawfully acquired rights of all nationals free from undue interference and restrictions.

Interests Held Essential

"The military forces consider that American oil interests in foreign petroleum are esesntial to our national defense in the event of an emergency."

The treaty, which requires a two thirds vote of the Senate for ratification, provides for mutual respect of oil concessions and equal opportunities for both British and American interests in drilling, refining and other operations.

The statement read by Vogel said the War and Navy Departments regard ratification of the agreement as the first step toward:

1. "The greater objective of bringing all oil-producing countries into a multilateral petroleum agreement with a view toward mutual acceptance of the principles contained in this agreement."

2. "Providing a free and unrestricted exchange of international petroleum agreement."

Russell B. Brown, general counsel of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, testified his organization's objections to the treaty stem primarily from an August 1946 broadcast in which, he said, State Department officials hinted that the agreement might lead to a world organization with power to control oil production.

Not Worried, He Says

Chairman Vandenberg (R., Mich.) commented that it was "a very silly broadcast if it can be interpreted in any such fashion as you indicate."

Vandenberg told Brown that so far as plans for expanding the present agreement to cover all oil producing countries are concerned, "I am not worried" because the Senate would get a chance to pass on such a treaty.

Ralph K. Davies, wartime Petroleum Administrator, returned to the stand yesterday to say "there can be no question that the terms of the agreement leave the Government completely free to adopt any and all measures that it may deem necessary for the protection of the domestic oil industry."

Rep. Poage Will Sell You Spuds—Cheap

Representative W. Robert Poage (D., Texas) turned the staid conference room of the House Agriculture Committee into a potato auction yesterday, when he tangled with a witness about the Government potato program.

Orville D. Judd, a Richmond, Va., restaurant operator, had just testified that he had bought Canadian potatoes for his Richmond restaurant for 4½ cents a pound. At the same time, he said, the Government was destroying potatoes in Alabama.

"Do you want some of those potatoes?" Poage demanded. "If you do, I'll sell you some. I'm authorized by the Department of Agriculture to sell them."

When Judd declined the offer, Poage leaned across his desk and shouted:

"If you'll make starch out of them I'll sell you potatoes at $5 a carload—and its costs more than $5 to load the car.

Poage Warms Up

"If you'll export them I'll sell them to you for $4 a carload."

Warming up Poage shouted:

"If you'll give them away, I'll give them to you.

"Just bring in your charitable institution, and I'll give you potatoes."

Subcommittee Chairman August H. Andresen (R., Minn.), whose House resolution brought about the potato inquiry, interrupted to comment:

"I don't know where he gets authority to sell potatoes."

Turning to his chairman, Poage asked:

"Do you want some potatoes? I'll sell you some, too."

Judd had earlier complained that the Canadian potatoes had been imported into Richmond while homegrown crops were being destroyed at Toano, Va., 22 miles away.

Later, he admitted that the potatoes at Toano had been destroyed last July, while Canadian potatoes had been imported just a month ago.

10,000 Strike To Protest Bill law any coal strike when the mines pass out of Government control June 30. Negotiations between UMW Chief John L. Lewis and the operators broke down last week.

Today's shutdowns preceded by three weeks the 10-day vacation the miners get under their Government contract. The vacation, starting June 27, was expected to delay any actual strike until July 7.

The 300 members of one AFL-UMW local returned to work when their president, Andrew S. Rayner, warned against any violation of the Federal anti-strike injunction which was sustained by the Supreme Court.

The local, which had been idle since Friday night, was No. 6326 at the Gates mine of the H. C. Frick Coke Co., a U. S. Steel subsidiary.

Rayner declared he didn't want the local accused of "starting a strike."

In Washington, the Coal Mines Administration and the United Mine Workers headquarters remained silent concerning the walkouts.

Truman Receives Labor Bill; Action Deadline June 20

A Presidential "yes" or "no" on the labor bill by June 20 became assured when the measure physically reached the White House yesterday after its formal signature by congressional officials. The Constitution requires the President to sign or veto a bill 10 days after he receives it, not counting Sundays, or have it become law without his signature.

A torrent of letters and postcards on the labor and tax bills has swelled the volume of White House mail close to record proportions. Eden Ayers, Presidential press aide, reported 100,000 letters and 350,000 postcards have been received to date and said the "great majority" appeal for a veto of the labor bill. The week-end alone brought 18,000 letters and 2000 telegrams.

Sitting Bull Memorial

A bill to establish a national monument to Sitting Bull, famous Sioux Indian chieftain, near his grave at McLaughlin, S. Dak., was introduced yesterday by Representative Case (R., S. Dak.).

Auto Body Strike Scheduled Tomorrow; Ford Closes Shops

Detroit, June 9 (AP).—Lagging car and truck production schedules got two more jolts today as the CIO United Auto Workers executive board authorized a strike Wednesday in eight Briggs Manufacturing Co. plants and the Ford Motor Co. closed two departments in its big Dearborn Rouge plant.

The door was left open, however, for a possible settlement of the Briggs contract dispute 24 hours before the strike deadline. Negotiators for the company, a principal auto body producer, will meet with union representatives here tomorrow morning.

Meeting at Chicago, the UAW-CIO executive board notified Company Vice President Walter O. Briggs, jr., that 20,000 workers would be ordered off their jobs at 10 a. m. Wednesday unless union demands were met by that time. There was no immediate comment from Briggs.

Experienced industry observers said the two disputes could bring idleness to upward of 50,000 workers.

The Ford department shutdown came as the strike of some 3700 members of the Independent Foreman's Association neared the end of its third week. It was announced by D. F. Harder, Ford vice president in charge of manufacturing, with a charge there had been a "slow down and sabotage of equipment."

CIO United Automobile Workers' Local 600 replied with a statement that the charge was "merely a subterfuge to gain strength and fight against the Foreman's Association."

Full Day's Work Expected

"Harder knows only too well," said the union statement, "that the absence of supervision in the plant must be corrected if the plant is to be operated properly."

The Ford statement said: "Workers were told that when they decided they wanted to put in a full day's work they could return to their jobs." Other workers, it added, "will be told the same thing."

The foremen's strike against Ford followed cancellation of a contract between Ford and the Independent Foreman's Association of America.

Meanwhile negotiations between Ford and the UAW-CIO have been deadlocked following union refusal of a 15-cent hourly wage increase equivalent offered by the management.

The union is demanding, in addition to the wage offer, a company-financed retirement program for some 75,000 Ford production workers. The UAW-CIO already has filed a 30-day strike notice which expires June 24; it announced today that 10,500 Ford production workers had voted to conduct a strike ballot.

Some 2300 employes of the Briggs Manufacturing Co. Conner Avenue plant in Detroit left their jobs this forenoon, but later voted to return to work tomorrow, pending outcome of efforts to avert the strike scheduled for Wednesday.

Oakland Transit Strike Set

Oakland, Calif., June 9 (AP).—A strike of 1000 key system employes today was ordered for 12:01 a. m. Wednesday, threatening a tieup of public transportation in the metropolitan Oakland area and across the Oakland-San Francisco Bay Bridge.

House Boosts D. C. Revenue to 23, the House overrode the bid of Representative John L. McMillan (D., S. C.) former House District Committee chairman, to erase the proposed gasoline tax increase.

Representative George J. Bates (R., Mass.) chairman of the District fiscal subcommittee which drafted the revenue program, teamed up with Representative Dirksen to fight changes in the bill.

Would Cut Spending

Bates' original program had been indorsed by Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.), chairman of the Senate Fiscal Affairs Subcommittee, which joined with Bates' group in studying the tax proposals.

Cain is expected back at the Capitol tomorrow, his office said. First move will be for Cain to clear the program with his subcommittee and the Senate District Committee.

One effect of the tax bill cleared by the House would be a forced cut of at least two million dollars in recommended city spending plans for the next fiscal year. As set up by Bates, the revenue program called for a budget of about 95 million dollars, at least two million dollars less than the combined proposed outlay of the Commissioners' budget and the teachers' pay bill now in Congress. It also forecast a surplus of about two million dollars at the end of the 1948 fiscal year.

Eisler Intended to Testify After Stating Rights, He Says

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

Gerhart Eisler declared yesterday he intended to testify when called before the House Un-American Activities Committee last February 6, but only after stating his rights as an alien.

The German-born Communist, said by the FBI to have been a representative of the Communist International to the United States from 1933 to 1938, declared he had been repeatedly interrupted by the committee.

"I said, 'I am not going to take the stand,'" he testified. "But that was only the first part of the statement; I was interrupted. I wanted to add "before I make a few remarks.'"

District Court Justice Alexander Holtzoff refused to permit introduction of those "few remarks." But at a bench conference where the matter was discussed before the decision, Defense Attorney Abraham J. Isserman said Eisler wanted to tell the committee:

Claimed War Prisoner Rights

He was a political prisoner and held as an interned enemy alien; that his arrest two days before the committee hearing was illegal since he was entitled to prisoner-of-war treatment as an enemy alien; and that Charman J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) of the Un-American Activities Committee personally caused the arrest.

Judge Holtzoff obtained promises from Prosecutor William Hitz and Isserman that the trial would be completed and presented to the jury of seven women and five men by noon today.

Maximum punishment is four months to one year in jail and a fine of $1000.

Unperturbed at the prospect, Eisler was handed a four-leaf clover at noon and quipped: "With this good luck maybe I'll only get one year."

Eisler took the oath calmly when called to testify yesterday. He identified himself as an Austrian national, a writer and journalist, and a "potential refugee from concentration camps in France." He said he held a transit visa to enter the United States en route to Mexico and he arrived here in 1941. Eisler faces another trial Monday for passport fraud.

Defense Counsel Rebuked

At the Congressional committee hearing, Eisler declared, he had "made repeated offers to be sworn," but only after being allowed three minutes to make his statement.

Judge Holtzoff banned efforts of Isserman to ask Eisler if he supported the American war effort. Objections were numerous as Isserman tried to show that Eisler was actually not an enemy alien, but a citizen of friendly Austria. Isserman drew another rebuke when he asked permission to interrogate the jury to determine if they had been swayed by newspaper accounts of the trial.

When Isserman tried to introduce evidence questioning the right of the Un-American Activities Committee to conduct the hearing, Judge Holtzoff warned:

"The court has no right to scrutinize the motives of a committee of Congress. Good faith is not an issue here. Tthe only question is whether there was a default and whether the default was wilful."

Eisler will be cross-evamined this morning by Prosecutor Hitz. But on the basis of his previous decisions, Judge Holtzoff is expected to prevent any questioning other than pertaining to the actual contempt of Congress.

Earlier, Mrs. Brunhilde Rotstein Eisler, 35, wife of the defendant, testified she had typed and cut a stencil for a 20-page statement Eisler intended making to the committee and distributing to reporters.

Smartly gowned in a costume of navy blue, Mrs. Eisler said she personally bought two round-trip tickets to Washington for Eisler's trip to testify at the committee hearing before his arrest. Isserman brought that out to show Eisler had intended to testify.

Appropriation Deadlock

As the fiscal year nears its end, House and Senate conferees on the Labor-Federal Security Appropriation bill remain deadlocked over the former's insistence upon a provision denying any funds to the top officials of the Conciliation Service. This provision is Representative Frank Keefe's circuitous and legalistic way of ousting the director of conciliation, Edgar Warren. Senator Knowland, on behalf of the Senate, refuses to countenance a provision as mischievous as it is vengeful. But the very recklessness which permitted the House to adopt this provision gives it something of a whip hand in this situation. Unless agreement can be reached before the close of this month, vital Government agencies will be left without funds. Mr. Keefe seems willing to go even this far to vent his personal spleen on Mr. Warren.

The deadlock is similar to one that developed over a similar problem four years ago when the House attached a rider to an urgent deficiency appropriation bill, forbidding the payment of any Federal funds for the salaries of Messrs. Watson, Dodd and Lovett. The rider, subsequently called a bill of attainder by the Supreme Court, was unanimously stricken from the appropriation bill by the Senate. But the need for the funds it provided at last forced the Senate to yield reluctantly and forced President Roosevelt to sign the measure with a protest that he considered the rider unconstitutional. Now, as then, the Senate is on the side of essential principle—the principle that the Legislature should not, under the American system of separated powers, usurp the executive authority to hire and fire. It may be that enactment of the Taft-Hartley labor bill, under which the Conciliation Service would be transferred from the Labor Department and reformed, will make the issue moot before the end of the month rolls round. If the labor bill should fail to become law, however, the issue must be faced. We hope, in that event, that the Senate will not accept and the President will not sign a measure dangerously subversive to the structure of the United States Government.

Philippine Loan

A few weeks ago we directed attention to the scandals arising out of the wholesale pilferage and illegal sales of surplus war materials in Manila. We did this in a friendly spirit in the hope that it would spur the Roxas administration to clean house. It is encouraging to note that the editorial was widely printed in the Filipino press, which is demanding a thorough investigation by the Philippine Congress. Even more encouraging is the report that the government is showing a more active inclination to grapple with the problems to which this scandal has given rise. The most severe test of the Roxas administration may well be the vigor and capacity that it throws into exposing this scandal and into the erection of safeguards against a repetition.

Meanwhile, the United States still has obligations to the Philippines which it should meet. Congress recognized this fact last August when it authorized the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to lend the Philippine government not more than 75 million dollars to help balance its postwar budget. Demands upon the Manila government are enormous because of the wartime destruction. At the same time revenue is meager because so much wealth was destroyed and productive industry halted. Having launched the island republic upon its independent career while it was literally staggering from unforeseen blows of war and enemy occupation, the United States ought to make certain that the venture will not fail for want of reasonable assistance from us.

The RFC lent the Philippines 25 million dollars under this authorization last fall. Apparently further action was postponed to await the report of a commission appointed by President Truman to survey the economy of the new republic and estimate its needs. This report has not yet been made public but it is available to officials and it undoubtedly points up the necessity for further assistance from the United States. Several weeks ago the Philippine government asked the RFC to lend it the additional 50 million dollars authorized by Congress and that question is now under consideration. It is well to remember that our influence with the Filipinos will remain great only so long as we treat them fairly and do our part to pull them through the present emergency. It is no time to take a narrow or ultraconservative attitude toward this new nation in the Pacific whose security and future destiny is so closely bound to our own.

Balkanization

Looming close to realization is the setting up of a Danubian federation under Slav (and therefore the Kremlin's) auspices. The latest milestone on the road is the jailing of Bulgaria's opposition leader, Nikolai Petkov. Removal of Petkov will ease the way to Bulgaria's acceptance of the role seemingly cast for Tito as head of a southern Slav group.

With Petkov at large, Bulgaria would have had some difficulty in calling Tito leader, in spite of agreement by the Bulgarian Communists headed by Dimitrov, formerly secretary general of the Third International. After all, the Bulgarian opposition polled a quarter of the votes in the last elections, and it would have proved a by no means negligible thorn in the side of the Tito federationists. Now the thorn may have been plucked. The Sofia coup was followed by a Belgrade meeting between Tito and Romania's Premier, Petru Groza. Here, it is reported, a line-up of Yugoslavia and Romania with Albania and Bulgaria was discussed. Albania's consent, of course, may be taken for granted, for Albania's Hoxha is well ensconsed in Tito's pocket.

The tempo at which events are moving in southeastern Europe has been the subject of a spate of interpretations. It is said that all this activity, coupled with the coup in Hungary, marks a Russian counteroffensive to the Truman Doctrine. That is not an objective appraisal. Just the converse explanation, it seems to us, is the logical one, as the chronology bears out. The nucleus of a Balkan federation is Tito's Yugoslav federation, but this still has to be rounded out by the acquisition of Greek Macedonia, which on paper is part of it. (It is credibly reported that the Yugoslav design includes Trieste, too.) The Greek border trouble, as is now clear, was Tito's show. This was spotlighted by the U. N. border commission on which Mr. Mark Ethridge sat as American representative. A coup in Greece, in our opinion, was frustrated by announcement of American aid. Diverted from Greece, the Kremlin seems to have given a green light to the later stages of the Balkan program, with the subjugation of Hungary speeded up because of the imminent signing of a peace treaty with Hungary and the discussion of a peace treaty with Austria.

On its face the development of a Danubia would be the fulfillment of a long desired reform. The worst feature of the peace after the first World War was the breakup of Austria-Hungary. Austria-Hungary was called "a political monstrosity but an economic masterpiece." It increased the Balkanization of southeastern Europe, and the word Balkanization had already come to mean a breeding ground for war. Would a unity out of this diversity, then, stand for peace? By no means. This Danubia in the making is the creation by force of some of the worst thugs in Europe; and, as is shown by the troubled atmosphere overhanging the Greek frontier and Trieste, is itself aggressive. Moreover, it is bent upon being exclusive, except for arrangements with Czechoslovakia which, presumably, would act as supplier of manufactured goods.

Thus the upshot of a Russified Danubia would be to set up two Europes instead of one. This would have the most profound reactions upon the old continent. Hitherto eastern and western Europe have built up an economic unity out of the exchange of food and raw materials for manufactured goods. It was the hope back of the establishment of U. N.'s European Commission to restore this unity. But ever since the commission entered upon its labors in Geneva, Russia has been engaged in blocking all progress. Now we know why. She wants her own Danubia to gain some form and substance before any links are repaired between eastern and western Europe, and then to bring the rest of the continent under her sway.

ADA's Criticism

Critics of the Taft-Hartley bill are combing through it for every conceivable defect in order to pile an impressive list of complaints on the President's desk. Some of their findings are unquestionably disturbing. As we have previously noted, the bill is far from being perfect or even ideal. Like most complicated pieces of legislation, it is a patchwork of compromises. Like most reforms which come in response to popular demand, it goes too far in some respects. And when all the objections are put together, they constitute a protest that demands careful analysis.

We refer in this connection to the criticism that is coming from thoughtful persons—not to the rabble-rousing and utterly unwarranted denunciation of the measure as a "slave labor bill." There is, for example, a bill of particulars prepared by the Americans for Democratic Action. One of the ADA's complaints is that the bill would slow up the operations of the NLRB. When that slowing up gives promise of fairer procedure we approve it, but some unnecessary obstacles have been put in the way of the NLRB. Before a union could take any representation case or charge of unfair labor practice before the board, for example, it would have to show that it had filed certain data and financial reports with the Secretary of Labor and submitted a financial accounting to "all" of its members. The reports required are not unduly onerous, as the ADA points out, but they certainly should go directly to the NLRB. And the requirement that all members of the union be furnished with copies of the financial statement, while unquestionably fair in intent, may be cause for delay and obstruction in practice.

The bill also unreasonably forbids the NLRB to hire economic analysts. In dealing with the free speech issue it goes to the extreme of forbidding any uncoercive statement to be used as evidence of an unfair labor practice instead of merely preventing the board from finding an uncoercive statement to be an unfair labor practice. As it stands, this provision seems to deny the board access to statements which, in connection with previous or subsequent action, might indicate encroachment upon the rights of either employes or employers. From within the NLRB comes a legitimate protest against the requirement that the board itself, instead of arbitrators appointed by it, shall hear and decide every jurisdictional dispute. It is reasonably contended that the board has neither time nor the particular skill demanded for successful performance of this task.

Unquestionably a committee of experts could greatly improve the bill if it had such an opportunity. But that is not the issue before President Truman. His choice is not between the Taft-Hartley product and a bill of the type he or experts within his Administration would write. If Mr. Truman is going to deal with the problem on its merits, he must choose between this imperfect bill and the present intolerable situation. We think that the hope of getting a better labor bill in the future is very small. But the hope of correcting defects in the present bill after it becomes law seems to be fairly good, because of the creation by this bill of a joint Senate-House committee to survey the entire field of labor-management relations and bring in recommendations. Certainly the Administration's views as to amendment of the Taft-Hartley bill will be more sympathetically considered by that committee if the President signs the initial bill.

Prices Turn Downward

Public agitation over high prices is growing in intensity in face of evidence that prices are beginning to drop. To be sure, the great mass of consumers have not experienced any relief as yet from the pressure of rising living costs, judging from the BLS living costs index, which showed only a negligible decline in mid-April from the March peak. Moreover, it is highly probable that after June 30 many tenants will have to pay substantially increased rentals. But retail prices are for obvious reasons tardy reflectors of price trends. The business analyst looks rather to wholesale price indices for a guide to price movements, and he is especially interested in the day-to-day price changes of specific commodities that, because of past experience, are regarded as sensitive barometers of more general price changes to come.

Wholesale prices have already receded substantially from the peak levels reached last March in case of farm products and foods, the BLS weekly index for May 31, showing a drop in excess of 3 and 5 per cent, respectively. Much more significant evidence of the current down trend is afforded, however, by the sharp drop in the BLS daily index of spot market prices. Between March 31 and June 5, the foodstuffs index dropped about 12 per cent while the index for industrial raw materials was nearly 8 per cent lower.

Turning from general averages to specific instances of price declines that point to a reversal of the upward movement is the weakness in scrap markets—long regarded as a particularly sensitive barometer of changes to come. The demand for scrap metals falls off when supplies of primary metals increase, and prices decline in turn. Prices of steel scrap have already dropped from the top levels of the early spring. Prices of scrap copper have also declined, as have prices of secondary aluminum. In short, the evidence indicates that the supply of metals is becoming more adequate in relation to demands, which means that the pressure on prices is relaxing.

Thus there is ample evidence, general and specific, to support the view that prices not only can be brought down but are actually coming down. Of course there are numerous exceptions to the trend while day-to-day fluctuations in prices tend to obscure the picture. There is also an ever-present possibility that unforeseen political or economic developments entailing unexpectedly heavy drains on our resources, financial and material, might lead to another upward spurt of prices and living costs. But barring such adverse happenings, there is good reason to hope that the peak of postwar inflation is behind us and the period of adjustment has begun.

Fascism In Action

Whatever the motive of the Congressmen who insisted on watering down the pamphlet Fascism in Action, the move will be regarded with deep suspicion. The Legislative Reference Service, which prepared this study, was trusted implicitly when a similar publication, Communism in Action, was issued in great quantity. Nor were Congressmen afraid of any implications in that document. Representative Wright Patman, who has sponsored the research on fascism, has described himself as opposing both communism and fascism. Yet the House Administration Committee, in the person of Representative Fred Busbey, has undertaken to prune Fascism in Action of certain sections which he believes might be offensive to business, the South, Spain and the Catholic Church. To our mind, in the publicizing of any totalitarian ism, it is a question of "if the shoe fits . . ," and it is inconceivable that any real believer in our way of life could be embarrassed by the truth. Just what are the Congressmen afraid of, anyhow?

Tax Reduction Veto

The tax reduction bill passed by both houses of Congress is before President Truman for his decision. I hope he will veto this measure.

The case for tax reduction, if considered by each of us on the purely personal basis, is unanswerable. It provides an immediate increase in the amount of income each of us can spend or save. It is very human to be tempted to support it, but I am convinced that we and our Government cannot base sound domestic and international policies on the result reached by merely totaling individual desires which do not take into account far wider considerations.

It is precisely at this time that we, as citizens, should turn our backs on all catch-all panaceas and refuse to be beguiled by the prospect of individual gain at the cost of abandonment of a sound national financial policy and at the risk of failing to meet our moral international responsibilities.

I have been dismayed at the congressional proposal to reduce the level of income taxes before knowing the total of appropriations required by the Government for the coming year, and before an adequate plan has been drawn up for the reduction of our national debt. I cannot escape the conviction that it is wrong for us to pass this burden on to future generations. We stand at a very important crossroads—I hope we will continue our policy of reducing our debt before reducing our taxes.

Out of the chaos of the last war there has emerged a pattern of American action at home and abroad which provides a high moral standard. It rests on freedom, peace, justice and aid to free peoples to resist totalitarian aggression. A large part of the peoples of the world watch with pardonable skepticism our efforts to live according to our promises. A veto of the tax bill, which I hope will be upheld by Congress, would be an eloquent proof of our determination to keep the faith.

PAULINE SABIN DAVIS.
Washington.

War Appointees

The Post is to be congratulated for publishing the letter by "R. F. N." concerning the plight of war service appointees in the Federal Government.

I came to Washington from New England in January, 1943, at the direct request of a volunteer worker in the Boston office of the Civil Service Commission, who was helping in the recruitment of properly qualified workers for a war agency. I was told my services were greatly needed because of my unique professional background.

I found my work far more enjoyable than my previous private employment because I was aiding my country instead of just making money for myself and my employers. In other words, Government employment offered spiritual satisfaction which no other job has given me. Consequently, I did not avail myself when the war ended of the leave of absence my employer gave me.

The work which the war agency I joined is now doing has become even more important than it was during the war. Similarly, my services are needed by this agency even more now than they were in the critical days of 1943. I have acquired four years of invaluable experience in my work.

However, as a result of the present procedure for reduction-in-force, I have been given a separation notice. I cannot help questioning my judgment on joining Government service as a war service appointee. J. A.
Washington.

May I say a word for the so-called permanent status or career employes with a record of questionable academic attainments and little else to recommend them referred to by R. F. N. in The Post of June 4?

The war service appointees were neither paragons nor wizards. Some of them graduated from $1 a year to $10,000 a year men with an ease that was stupefying to the "career" employe who stood behind them and, like the Roman censors kept whispering in their ears "you are only human!" Then came the Ides of March. We career employes come here not to bury Caesar but to praise him. By the "stupid application of a slide-rule retention system" his "demonstrated ability, experience and maturity of judgment," can now be offered to "private competitive enterprise." We shall miss him. The Government will miss him. And safely ensconced back in Walla Walla or Kalamazoo, no doubt the atomic bomb will miss him. REALIST.

The left-handed plow depicted on the shield of the United States Department of Agriculture is not so remarkable.

A combination left-handed and right-handed plow was in use on one of my father's ranches in southern California from 1876 to 1880. A wagonmaker at Santa Barbara changed an ordinary single plow so that it could be used in running horizontal furrows back and forth on our hillsides.

Behind the tip of the plowshare was installed a bait bolt that served as a swivel hinge. Down through the rear of the wooden frame, and in front of the handle, was passed a ring-eye bolt holding the ring end of a pencil-thick iron bar that hooked into a hole through the outer edge of the top of the molding board.

As the end of each furrow was reached, the horse was turned abruptly about, the plow tilted erect by its handles, the hooked bar kicked loose, the dangling metal section of the plow boot toed round to the reverse side, and the bar rehooked into the top of the molding-board.

The "sidehill plow" eliminated upgrade pulling and left no dead furrows. ARCHIE RILL.

Dual Schools

Many Washingtonians, I hope, heard Dr. Ernesto Galarza discuss the problem of racial segregation in the public schools of Washington on the Americans All program Sunday evening. Dr. Galarza described a situation in which his daughter, classified as a white student, was barred by the Board of Education from attending a Negro school in order to study under a teacher especially qualified in the field of her interest.

Dr. Galarza in his brief talk made it clear, I think, that the details of the situation are not as important as the basic issue of how long is the Capital going to tolerate a dual school system?

Many of us in Washington have gone to school at all levels of our education with Negro students, we know from first hand experience what these contacts have meant to us. We covet similar experiences for our children. We think that the time is past due for Washington to abolish its costly, undemocratic and, I believe unconstitutional, dual school system.

GSI Discrimination

I would like to bring to your attention an instance of gross discrimination against a citizen of the United States. On Memorial Day I was present when a Negro war veteran and his wife were denied the facilities of the Government Services, Inc., bicycle concession at East Potomac Park. This was not done directly but by the very cheap and obvious subterfuge of requiring a $35 deposit for each bicycle rented.

Upon overhearing the conversation, I asked the attendant why the individual in question was required to pay $35 while I was only required to deposit $2.50 per bicycle. I received a meaningless mumble of words together with meaningful smirks from the attendant. I attempted to discuss the matter with the man in charge but found him so rude and arrogant that I soon realized it was of little value.

It is bad enough when persons in control of private property indulge themselves in prejudices of this nature but when an organization such as Government Services, Inc., which is entrusted with the administration of public property, presumably for the benefit of all the people, deliberately discriminates against one group of citizens, the crime is ten-fold worse.

While this is but a small part of the larger picture of racial discrimination now existing in the Nation's Capital, it is the type of discrimination which is completely inexcusable and is apparently impelled more by a spirit of meanness and pettiness of character on the part of those responsible than by any supposed compliance with the so-called mores of the community. It is peculiarly inappropriate that such an instance of bigotism should occur on the day originally set apart and dedicated to the memory of those who fought.

"America's Doors"

Your excellent editorial of June 1, "America's Doors," reveals the inability of people in general, and of a patriotic group in particular, to grasp a human problem that has been preesnted only in total terms. It means little to most of us to read of hundreds of thousands of displaced persons in desperate straits, most of them potentially valuable citizens.

Well-meaning patriots can shirk their responsibilities to humanity and ignore the distress of such distant and incomprehensible groups by talking in such comfortable terms as 100 per cent Americanism and protection for our veterans. We need to know these refugees, through hundred of examples, as specific individuals whose problems are so clear and whose worth is so real that no intelligent American can want to do other than share our opportunities and use their talents.

Likewise, it is not easy to show how the resources of our country can provide the basis of self-support for the 400,000 refugees that the Stratton bill would permit to enter this country over a period of years But put it in terms of 14 individuals or four families for a community of 500 and it is no longer a problem but something that we can readily grasp and, perhaps, willingly solve.

Attack On Lincoln

As a student at Georgetown University, I should like to go on record as being entirely unsympathetic with Dr. Tansill's speech before the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

To my mind, it is the greatest calumniation of Abraham Lincoln's name since the formation of the Abraham Lincoln Brigade during Spanish civil war days.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Doctrine Test

VOTERS in the State of Washington have just given an advance demonstration of how Henry Wallace can help the Democrats lose the presidential election next year. The Republican victory in Washington's Third Congressional District revealed above all the split personality of the party of Truman and Wallace.

The election was to fill the seat left vacant by the death of Fred Norman, who was elected in last year's Republican landslide. Republicans had been fearful of losing the seat in view of drastic GOP cuts in appropriations for power and reclamation projects. Some Republicans, discounting the outcome of the election, said a defeat would be a healthy shock to overconfidence.

In the primary on May 17 the Democratic vote was almost twice that of the Republicans. Executive Director Gael Sullivan of the Democratic National Committee hailed this showing as "proof of a Democratic tide in the Northwest." But when the ballots were counted in Saturday's election, Republican Russell Mack had defeated Democrat Charles Savage by 2000 votes out of the more than 60,000 cast.

Republican Mack was an open advocate of the Truman doctrine. Savage walked a tightrope across the yawning chasm of the foreign issue. He did not, however, repudiate the support of Wallace, who spoke twice for Savage in the district in the course of his barnstorming tour of the country.

SAVAGE represented the Third District for one term which ended with his defeat by Norman. He was one of the extreme left wing Democrats whose most articulate champion was former Representative Hugh DeLacy from the neighboring First District. DeLacy was also defeated last fall in a bitter campaign in which he was charged with Communist backing.

In the primary, regular Democrats were for Savage's opponent, Smith Troy. Troy, attorney general of the State and a veteran with a splendid combat record, spoke openly for the Truman doctrine. Figured as the winner, his defeat by Savage upset the calculations of Democratic planners.

They quickly rallied. Three days after the primary Sullivan and Gov. Mon C. Wallgren issued a joint statement heralding Savage as a "consistent supporter of President Truman and his liberal policies." Wallgren, a close personal friend of President Truman, pointed out that it was the first time that Democratic votes had totaled more than two to one over Republicans.

At the same time, however, in his own paper DeLacy in a banner headline had proclaimed Savage as a disciple of Wallace. Savage denied this in an interview. In his campaign he stuck to domestic and, particularly, to State issues.

The Republican Legislature had just voted to cut old-age pensions in the State, which has the highest pension level in the country. Savage denounced this action, as well as drastic economies by the Republican Congress in Washington which directly affect the people of his State.

THE REPUBLICANS, of course, worked intensively for victory, knowing the outcome would be taken as an indication of national trends. An unprecedented amount of Republican money is said to have been sent into the district. Twenty-four hours before the election the news was carefully leaked out of a Senate subcommittee that the Senate would restore House cuts in reclamation and power.

Nevertheless, those who followed the contest with a background of local knowledge believe the election was decided on the foreign issue, with Wallace's intervention a distinct handicap for Savage. They also believe that Troy could have defeated Mack, who is an orthodox old-line Republican.

To be sure, this is all in the realm of speculation. But certainly if Savage had won, the Wallace choir would have claimed the triumph. They would have read into it a trend against foreign aid on the Greek-Turkish pattern.

The West Coast has just given another demonstration of the Democratic split. In California, a belated Jackson Day dinner was the occasion for a boycott by the Truman wing, with Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder cancelling his appearance in Los Angeles at a dinner at which Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt was a speaker. This, in turn, brought an angry denunciation from Representative Chet Holifield of California, one of the few liberal, pro-labor Democrats to survive last year's GOP sweep in the West.

Here for the Democrats to ponder is a painful problem in political geometry. Wallace's power is negative. It is the power to disconcert, to dismay, to confuse and divide. Yet, as the election in Washington has shown, it is a power.

'Molesting' Owls

As a recent visitor in Washington I wish to express my disgust with the supposedly humorous articles entitled "Nature Notes" in The Post of June 2. It certainly was a brave deed for the patrolman to slaughter five small owls which had been "molesting" the population. The scheech owl feeds largely on grasshoppers and mice, and it happens to be protected by Federal law. There have been numerous instances of other cities showing sympathetic interest in occasional predatory bird visitors, bue evidently this is not the way they are treated in our Nation's Capital.

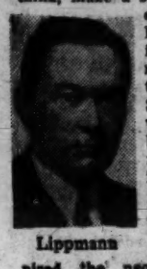
Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

What Is Moscow Doing?

THE MAIN preoccupation of Soviet policy has become clearer, and we can now, I venture to think, make a substantial inference as to what lay behind Stalin's cryptic remarks to Secretary Marshall. Stalin said that while there had been no agreement at Moscow in April, after people had exhausted themselves in dispute, they then recognised the necessity of compromise.



Lippmann

This was apparently a hint that the Soviet government needed time to take action in its own interest before agreeing to a settlement about Germany and Austria. Why? Because any settlement which establishes peace would necessarily carry with it the evacuation of Eastern Europe by the Red army, specifically of Poland, Austria, Hungary, Romania. Though the Allies, including the Russians, would still keep some troops in Germany, there would cease to be any legal right or any reason, which could be justified, for the Red army's staying in the countries between Germany and Russia.

IF WE BEAR in mind that a peace settlement means the evacuation of Europe by the Red army, we have, I believe, the main clue to what Russia is now doing. She is working to perpetuate her power and influence after the Red army withdraws. For as long as the Red army is present in force in any country, the Kremlin can command the government of that country. The character of the government is not of primary importance since any government must take orders from the Soviet commander. But if the Red army leaves, the Kremlin must make other arrangements if it is to continue to control the political and economic life of that country.

The Red army must leave behind it a "friendly government," that is to say a dictatorship by those local Communists who can be relied upon to take orders from Moscow. Such a dictatorship has now been set up in Hungary. There is already such a dictatorship in Yugoslavia and in Bulgaria and in Romania. The Russians are reported as demanding a similar arrangement in Austria before they sign a peace treaty. We shall see what precautions they will still feel are necessary to them in Poland, and, most critically of all, in Czechoslovakia.

ALL THIS would, in spite of the disconcerting immediate consequences, be hopeful in the long run if we could be certain that the Russians had made up their minds that they must evacuate Eastern Europe. It is not certain that they have. But it is reasonably clear that they think they may have to do it. For they know that military occupation of their Slav allies is not promoting friendship for the Soviet Union, is not a good advertisement for communism, and is not good for the morale of their own troops.

They have a bear by the tail. If they stay too long, resistance and hostility will grow until they may become uncontrollable. If they retire, the Communist dictatorships which they leave behind, will in trying to crush the opposition almost surely intensify it.

The chances are, moreover, that a Communist dictatorship, say in Hungary, would be succeeded not by what we would call a democratic government but by a postwar form of fascist government, an avowed enemy of the Soviet Union. The chances of this happening are so real, and the Russians must fear it so much, that before they leave, they will attempt to crush not only those who might form such a government, but also those who might support it. This is what they have in mind when they say they are fighting the "anti-democratic" forces in Hungary and elsewhere.

THE RUSSIANS' prospect in Europe, should they feel compelled to withdraw the Red army, is all the more unfavorable insofar as Western Europe, including most of Germany, is able to organize recovery and is assisted by North America. What we call "Western Europe" comprises the modern highly developed core of Europe; the countries of the Soviet orbit, with the exception of Czechoslovakia and western Poland, are not only in industry but also in agriculture an undeveloped and backward area. Before the war, for example, a Dutch farmer produced three times as much on every acre as a Yugoslav peasant, and kept four tmies as many head of cattle.

The eastern dictatorship, which Moscow leaves behind when the Red army withdraws, will not be able quickly to alter this disparity. Therefore, the prospect of revival in Western Europe is better than in Eastern Europe, and the contrast will add to the difficulties of the Soviet satellite regimes. No wonder that Moscow will go to great lengths to prevent Western Europe from organizing its recovery.

IF THIS diagnosis is correct, it is, I think, clear that what we may call the Marshall policy of European recovery would be defeated if we accepted Mr. Hoover's suggestion of a separate peace with Western Germany. Such a separate peace would not merely permit but would actually compel the Kremlin to keep the Red army in Germany and in Eastern Europe.

Our object should be the very opposite—to persist, no matter how long it may take, and to pay a good price if necessary to get it, in working for a peace settlement which means the evacuation of Europe by the Red army. We must keep our eye on the ball. Europe can be restored only if it is evacuated. It can be evacuated only by a general treaty which the Soviets are in the end induced to sign. There is no alternative. War is no alternative, and everybody in his senses knows it.

A SEPARATE treaty, or a separate declaration of peace, can solve no problem of European reconstruction or of European liberty. It can make the European problem forever insoluble. For the paramount problem which has to be solved is how to get the Red army to withdraw from the middle of Germany to the borders of the Soviet Union. A separate peace with a part of Germany would not cause the Red army to withdraw, but on the contrary to stay on.

Yet the problem of liberating Europe is not insoluble. We know that from the very fact that in Germany and Austria and elsewhere the Soviets are taking measures designed to insure themselves against the consequences of withdrawing.

Struggle For Europe

THE GERMAN military writer, Clausewitz, once described war as the continuation of policy by other means than diplomacy.

NOVER

What is happening in Europe today can best be described as war by other means than armed conflict.

Let's make no mistake about it. Everywhere on the continent, Russia is engaged in waging war on the West. This time she is placing her chief reliance not on the uniformed Red Army but on that civilian foreign legion whose field marshals bear such names as Rakosi, Tito, Togliatti, Thorez, and Dimitrov.

Having first consolidated her power in the area lying to the east of the Stettin-Danzig line, she is now engaged in a multipronged politicial offensive in crucial areas west of that line.

WHAT HAS happened in Hungary was both the continuation of what had previously taken place in such countries as Yugoslava, Romania, Bulgaria and Poland and the forerunner of what the Kremlin intends to bring about in Italy, France, Austria, Germany and elsewhere.

Everywhere the chips are down.

In France, the threat of national paralysis has developed as a result of what Premier Paul Ramadier has called a "spiral movement of strikes that has taken shape as if in response to a secret bandmaster."

It is no coincidence that this very serious threat to France's economic stability occurred after Premier Ramadier had demonstrated that his government could get along without the help of the Communists.

The Communists had not reckoned on this possibility when they deliberately excluded themselves from the government early in May. Now, through the strike weapon which they are in a position to exercise through their domination of many key trade unions, they are seeking to blackmail themselves back into the government.

IN ITALY, Palmiro Togliatti, the Communist leader, has declared war on the government of Premier Alcide de Gasperi.

Togliatti has promised that the Communists will limit themselves to "democratic means" in their struggle with the present regime.

In view of the reports that a new partisan army is in process of formation in Italy and in view of the curious definition which Communists sometimes give to the word "democratic," Togliatti's pledge is not reassuring.

In his case as in the case of Thorez, Dimitrov, Rakosi and Russia's other stooges, we can take it for granted that he does not lift a finger without orders from the Kremlin. Whatever he may do will be designed to serve Russia's interests.

In Austria, a Communist leader, one Ernst Fischer, has warned the cabinet that unless a Communist-controlled government is set up in the little Danubian republic, Russia will indefinitely postpone making peace with it.

In Bulgaria, what shreds are left of the Yalta agreement are being torn up by the Communist regime which is headed by Georgi Dimitrov. The British and American demands for an explanation of the arrest of Nikola Petkov, opposition leader, have been contemptuously rejected.

THE STAKES in the developing European struggle are tremendous. The outcome will decide the fate of the continent for years.

Russia's moves on the chess board reflect both great self-confidence and great urgency. The Soviet leaders realize that if the present movement to bring about economic unity in Europe succeeds, a movement that has now won the powerful support of Secretary Marshall, Russian influence will decline in Western Europe.

Once that happens Russia will be put on the defensive in Eastern Europe as well. The economic plight of the satellite countries behind the iron curtain is steadily deteriorating. Russia can do little for them. All she has thus far done is to loot them.

On the other hand, the men in the Kremlin are gambling on the possibility that the United States which alone can thwart Russia's machinations, will be timorous when it ought to be bold, hesitant when it ought to move swiftly, will pursue a policy of economic assistance, which, for reasons of false economy, will be grudging, inadequate and belated. Russia is algo reckoning on the confusion of the American mind whose portent is Henry Wallace.

If Russian calculations are right, if her present maneuvers succeed, Russia will be the master of Europe. The challenge to the United States is unmistakable, immediate and grave.

The next three months may decide the fate of Europe.

Big Crowds Drive 'Faith Healer' to Secret Retreat

Palm Springs, Calif., June 9 (AP). Avak Hagopian, young Armenian "faith healer," left here today for a secret mountain retreat to join Vaughn Arakelian, 37, epileptic son of wealthy wine producer Krikor Arekelian. Vaughn departed Saturday.

Diram Arakelian, Vaughn's brother, quoted Avak as saying before he left: "I came here from Iran to heal Vaughn. Since that time the crowds have kept me so busy I have been unable to work properly with Vaughn. We are going to a quiet place in the mountains for 30 days. Vaughn will come back a well man."

Diram estimated "about 9000 persons" had braved the 120-degree summer heat of this winter resort to see Avak.

High Court Stands by Ruling On Police Powers of Search

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

The Supreme Court yesterday stood by its 5-to-4 decision that policemen with arrest warrants have sweeping powers of search and seizure.

Without comment, the justices turned down several motions for a new hearing. Thus the decision—which drew the fire of many newspapers, labor groups and liberal spokesmen—became the settled law of the land.

The court ruled on seven cases and ordered two others reargued next term. This cut down to about 30 the cases that have been heard and are due to be decided before the justices start their vacations.

The court, in rulings yesterday:

1. Upheld jail terms given an Army officer and two manufacturers who paid him $7000 to keep two soldiers from going overseas. "A sordid three-sided case," Justice Jackson called it.

2. Refused to review its decision that the Interstate Commerce Commission should raise certain freight rates 10 per cent in the North and East.

3. Agreed to hear the appeal of John H. Rooney, who is serving a life term in Illinois for a killing in 1933. Rooney claims one of the witnesses against him was a perjurer, and that the prosecutors knew it.

4. Awarded the California real estate of Alvina Wagner, who died there in 1942, to four German citizens named in her will. Attorney General Tom C. Clark, as Alien Property Custodian, claimed the land for the Germans.

Justice Douglas, who has had pneumonia and was on the bench for the first time in several weeks, held that our 1923 treaty with the Weimar Republic still was in force. So Americans may inherit land in Germany and Germans inherit land in America, even though there is a California law against leaving land to aliens.

5. Dodged the constitutional issues raised by the Gospel and Rescue Armies, which claimed Los Angeles taxes on them violated religious liberty. The case was sent back to the California courts for further action.

Jackson's decision in the bribe case means a year and a day in prison for Walter V. Radovich, once an Air Force major, who won a row of ribbons and a name for courage in the Burma theater of war. For Samuel Bayer, a threat maker, it means two years in prison and a $10,000 fine. For his brother and partner, Elias Bayer, it means 18 months and a $5000 fine.

Samuel Bayer had three sons in uniform. One of them was Martin, who enlisted in the Air Corps with his cousin, Melvin Usdan, on the last day a volunteer could pick his branch of service. The Bayer brothers set out to save these two soldiers from the dangers and discomforts of war.

When the boys were stationed at Mitchel Field, Long Island., the Bayers gave parties for their officers, and bought them uniforms. Hoping to keep the boys at the field a year, they gave a Colonel Jacobson a Waldorf dinner and four new tires. For a transfer to a medical unit, they gave Radovich about $2000.

The boys were sent to an airborne engineer outfit that was going overseas in 1943, and their father and uncle made a deal with Radovich to call them into—and then put them out of—his own air commando unit, which had a high priority. He got $5000 for this.

In Insane Ward a Month

When the Army started to investigate in 1944, Radovich was locked up in an insane ward for about a month. There were no charges against him, yet he was not allowed to have his clothes, money, papers or the like. Nobody was allowed to see him. He confessed. Jackson said the court would assume this confession to be void.

After he confessed, Radovich was given more liberty, but he was still confined to the post when he gave a second confession six months later. He read the first one before he made the second, but Jackson said that was not enough to make the second one void.

"After an accused has once let the cat out of the bag by confessing," Jackson explained, he is never thereafter free of the psychological and practical disadvantages of having confessed. He can never get the cat back in the bag. The secret is out for good. In such a sense, a later confession always may be looked upon as fruit of the first."

This flatly reversed the Second Circuit Court of Appeals, which gave Radovich a new trial because the second confession was used against him.

Red 'Cooperation' Rebuffed in Austria

Archduke Convicted of Collaboration

Budapest, Hungary, June 9 (UP).—Archduke Joseph of the proud Hapsburg Dynasty, was found guilty by a "People's" court today of wartime collaboration with the Germans. The government prepared to seek his extradition from the American occupation zone in Austria, where he is believed a refugee, to face a possible death sentence.

Archduke Joseph

Archduke Joseph, 74, former president of the Hungarian Academy of Sciences, was found guilty, as a member of the upper house of Parliament under former Regent Admiral Nicholas Horthy, of urging continuance of the war against the Allies in October, 1944.

Pending the attempt to extradite the archduke, the court ordered all his property confiscated. Sentence will be pronounced if and when he is returned to this country.

Others Condemned

Sofia, June 9 (AP).—A Bulgarian military court condemned to death in absentia today Alexander Tsankov and nine members of his wartime Nazi collaborationist government. One member of the government was sentenced to life imprisonment and 18 were acquitted.

Chancellor Figl Moves to Expose Party Weakness

Vienna, June 9 (U.P.).—Chancellor Leopold Figl has turned down Communist demands for drastic changes in the government based on a program of closer "cooperation" with Russia, it was indicated authoritatively tonight.

An authoritative American source said Figl had moved to show up Communist weakness in Austria" before the Communists could attempt to "capture the government as was recently done in Hungary."

Statements by Moscow-trained Communist Leader Ernest Fischer and Figl divulged a series of talks by Fischer with leaders of Figl's People's Party in which the Communists outlined a series of demands, including stronger representation in the cabinet and an early election.

Socialist Party Angry

The powerful Socialist Party was angry because it was left out of the talks and tonight it charged Russian Army officials were instructing Austrian Communists at a "Communist agent school" in the Russian zone. Socialist officials in the government asserted that Communists were secretly arming and forecast that they would incite armed riots within two months.

Events started when Fischer said that Figl, in a talk with him last Thursday, indicated his willingness to "broaden the government with more Communists" or resign in preparation for an early general election.

In the 1945 election the Communists, elected only five men to the lower chamber of Parliament, against 84 for Figl's People's Party and 76 for the Socialists. The Communists have one man in the coalition cabinet—the Minister for Power.

Calls for Conciliation

Earlier at a meeting with People's Party leaders, Fischer said, he announced:

"The only way to bring about Communist cooperation is to effect a policy of conciliation with the Soviet Union and implement economic cooperation with neighboring countries." The neighbors he referred to are Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Yugoslavia.

Then Figl announced that he had not offered to broaden his cabinet by including more Communists "or even to resign." He said Fischer's statement was wishful thinking.

Italy to Seek More Loans, Gasperi Hints

Rome, June 9.—Italy will continue to ask the United States for periodic loans for another three or four years, Premier Alcide de Gasperi indicated tonight.

Italy's Communists and left-wing Socialists sat glumly as De Gasperi outlined the extent to which Italy will be dependent upon the United States.

De Gasperi's speech was part of the formal presentation to the Parliament of Italy's first postwar government without Communists and Socialists.

Parliament reaction to De Gasperi's speech indicated that the government will be approved by the support of about two-thirds of the Parliament. The government will be submitted to a vote of confidence during the next few days.

The center and right of the Parliament rose and aplauded De Gasperi as he finished the reading of his cabinet's program, but Palmiro Togliatti, Moscow-trained Communist leader, and the rest of the leftists' one-third of the house sat silently.

De Gasperi told the Parliament that Italy will have to get a loan of 200 million dollars, presumably from the United States, to finish 1947. He said that Italy would need 685 million dollars worth of industrial and food imports in the next six months but would be able to export only 300 million dollars worth of goods toward paying for it.

In addition to borrowing 200 million, Italy will make up the remaining 185 million dollars difference by drawing approximately 150 million dollars from the international relief machinery, which will be set up to succeed the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, from sums sent home by Italians abroad, and by payments from allied armies in Italy, De Gasperi said. The other 35 million will come from "invisible" items, such as the expenditures of tourists.

Seek to End Md. Mill Strike

Cumberland, Md., June 9 (AP).—The local of the United Textile Workers of America (CIO), on strike against the Celanese Corp. of America, has tentatively scheduled a general membership meeting for Friday night, union President William Boyd Coleman said today.

Earlier, the city of Cumberland asked officials of the strikebound plant to submit to arbitration the issues which have caused the 8600 workers to walk out.

No date for a resumption of negotiations between workers and management has been set, but observers said the scheduling of a membership parley indicated renewal of contract talks was expected before Friday.

Mayor Thomas Post and the city council unanimously approved preparation of a resolution asking arbitration after the local appealed for assistance.

The union has offered to arbitrate the dispute which led to the strike last week but said the company had declined to arbitrate on all matters at issue.

There was no immediate comment from the company of the city's action.

Iturbi Loses Grandchildren

New York, June 9 (U.P.).—Concert Violinist Stephen Hero arrived here today with his two daughters and said he secretly had taken them from the California home of their grandfather, Pianist Jose Iturbi, in the latter's absence on a London concert appearance.

Hero asserted that Iturbi never had obtained legal custody of Antonia, 9, and Teresa, 10, and that his father-in-law's removal of the children from New York to California in 1941 amounted to an "abduction."

Hero said his action in bringing the children here was in their welfare and that "they were unhappy" in the Iturbi home.

The fight for custody of the two Hero children started after their parents separated in 1939.

The children's mother, Maria Iturbi, daughter of the concert pianist, obtained custody of the children in a court action before she committed suicide last year, Hero said. He claimed, however, that the court decision was not valid because he was not informed of the suit.

"Jealousy," would not permit the girls to show any affection for Hero said Iturbi, because of their father.

Trouble Ahead, Mr. President!

An Open Letter to President Truman from General Electric Workers

President Harry S. Truman,
The White House,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. President:

You must now decide whether to sign or veto the Taft-Hartley Bill. Its backers claim it will promote industrial peace. The answer to this claim already has been given in this city, headquarters of one of the biggest of Big Business—the General Electric Co.

The General Electric Co. is now relying upon the Taft-Hartley Bill to promote not harmony, but industrial strife and chaos.

Our membership believes you should know that this company has just boldly refused to comply with the simple language of its union agreement, providing that when a grievance cannot be settled directly between the companies and the union, it shall be settled by an impartial outside arbitrator. The General Electric Co. refused arbitration of a dozen grievances which we have tried patiently to settle for many months. The General Electric Co. is seeking to destroy the sanctity of collective bargaining agreements and the accepted pattern for peaceful settlement of disputes under such an agreement.

The reason for this brazen stand by General Electric is obvious. Its spokesmen in Congress, its employee at the head of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, E. O. Shreve, have been working ceaselessly to enact a law which would break unions, and they are already counting their chickens.

General Electric knows that the "mildest" bill which will come out of Congress will destroy all of labor's gains since 1932, and destroy fundamental liberties which existed before that date. General Electric knows that the miscalled "milder" Taft Bill would:

- Tie up contract enforcement in endless court action.
- Let employers sue unions over legitimate activity in defense of contract rights.
- Give workers' jobs to strikebreakers.
- Protect company spies and stool pigeons.
- Make the government a strikebreaker by injunction.
- Protect and promote company unions.
- Encourage the break-up of industrial unions.
- Give employers excuses for not dealing with unions.
- Deprive workers of the free choice of their representatives.
- Pack the National Labor Relations Board against the workers.

All this will serve only to protect the record profits which big corporations are making today at the expense of the living standards of the workers. It will promote a depression. It already has promoted General Electric's attack on our union . . . leading to strife in the community.

Only your Veto stands between this disaster and the American People.

Fourteen thousand G. E. workers and their families urge you . . . VETO THE TAFT-HARTLEY BILL.

Respectfully yours,

Local 301, United Electrical Radio & Machine Workers of America, CIO

U. S., Soviet Agree on Plan For Koreans

Seoul, June 9 (INS).—Plans for the formation of a Korean national government were agreed on today by the joint Russo-American Commission now meeting in Seoul.

Maj. Gen. Albert E. Brown, head of the American members of the commission, said the full commission will meet with leaders of various political and social organizations of south Korea June 25.

The commission will then journey to Soviet headquarters in Pyongyang to meet with political and social organizations there on June 30.

He said the consultations will be held mainly to orient the Koreans with the program worked out by the commission.

Actual work of organizing a cabinet will be launched by subcommittee of the joint commission simultaneously in Seoul and Pyongyang on July 5.

The commission planned to have each Korean group name a representative to negotiate with the Russians and Americans on formation of the proposed government not later than June 23.

By June 23 each Korean group must sign last year's so-called "Communique Number Five," an agreement pledging support of the Moscow decision and cooperation with the joint commission in carrying out its objectives.

Prisoners Flee In U. S. Zone As Guns Blaze

Frankfurt, Germany, June 9 (U.P.).—Military police and constabulary troops fought running battles with six escaped American Army prisoners today in the German countryside where two years ago the American forces fought the German army. One military policeman was wounded.

Two of eight prisoners, serving terms of up to 40 years, who fought their way out of the stockade at Mannheim yesterday, were recaptured today.

The others ranged the countryside, exchanging shots with MP search groups, as they apparently sought to get to Stuttgart or to Karlsruhe, in the extreme southwestern corner of the American zone about 1 mile from the French zone border.

One prisoner, whose name was not announced, was captured as he neared constabulary headquarters at Heidelberg, where he said he intended to give himself up.

A second, Charles Bond, alias Charles Burton, Nashville, Tenn., surrendered to constabulary troops after a brief gun fight at Hockenheim, about 20 miles southeast of Mannheim. Officers said Bond holed up in a German home, armed with German army rifles.

Ramadier, Rail Union Chiefs Confer Today

Paris, June 9.—Hope for an early settlement of the Nation-wide railroad strike rose tonight when it was announced that Premier Paul Ramadier would confer tomorrow with leaders of the strikers' union, the National Federation of Railwaymen.

The strike, in progress since Friday, has been confined to passenger trains mainly, but freight trains have inevitably become involved to some extent, and the inconvenience to the general public has been great.

Meanwhile, the Gas and Electric plant workers announced that a government mediator had failed to meet their wage demands and that the question would be put up to the membership. A threatened 24-hour strike May 28 had been called off pending this mediation.

In the railroad strike, it was not yet clear whether the government or the union was retreating from its previous stand. The government's attitude has been that it would not reopen wage talks until the union, which did not authorize the strike, ordered the men back to work. The union replied that it would not issue a strike cancellation order unless the government agreed to discuss the wage demands.

Emergency methods were used again today to keep passenger traffic moving, and about 10,000 persons were sent from Paris to various parts of France.

Jewish Agency Protests Note Action by Lie

Lake Success, June 9 (AP).—The Jewish Agency for Palestine protested today that Trygve Lie went "outside and beyond" his authority by circulating a British note asking all the United Nations to help curb Jewish immigration into Palestine.

Lie, secretary-general of the U.N., had no comment on the protest and took no immediate action to transit it to the U. N. members as the Agency demanded.

It was the Agency's first complaint against U.N. procedure in the Palestine inquiry since the special U.N. Assembly last month established the commission to look into the problem. The first part of the main body will depart from New York by plane at 10:30 a. m., EDT tomorrow.

Two Britons Kidnaped

Jerusalem, June 9 (AP).—Eleven armed Jews, one a girl, kidnaped two British police officers from a crowded swimming pool at Ramat Gan late today, just two hours after the arrival here of the secretariat of the United Nations Commission to investigate Palestine.

The abductors, some of whom wore masks, fled in a commandeered truck after tossing smoke bombs into the pool and pool area, where 150 civilians were swimming and sunning, an announcment said.

One woman bather was injured slightly, apparently by one of the smoke bombs, and one of the kidnap victims was clubbed over the head when he resisted.

Reliable private sources said the girl in the kidnap party also struck a cashier on the head with a pistol butt as she entered the pool area.

Authorities blamed Irgun Zvai, Jewish underground organization, for the daring raid.

Police immediately threw a dragnet around the Palestine costal plain. Ramat Gan is near the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv.

Haganah, the moderate Jewish underground organization, was said tonight by reliable Jewish sources to have issued orders to its "striking forces" to "seek out and arrest the kidnapers and return the victims safely."

Chavez, 48, will resign the judgeship on the first judicial district bench at Santa Fe, N. Mex., to which he was elected in November after his return from military service.

In the Puerto Rican judgeship he will replace Robert A. Cooper.

Flood Reaches Record Levels

were under water. The Coast Guard reported farms flooded under 8 feet of water north of Hannibal.

The Alexandria levee failure eased the flood situation at Canton, Mo., somewhat and the water was receding after about half of the city had been inundated. The municipal light and power plant, still surrounded by water, continued to operate. About 125 persons still were unable to return to their homes.

At Quincy, Ill., where the river reached a record stage of 23.6 feet, railroad yards in the waterfront area were flooded, but the town itself, situated on a bluff, was not endangered. Several persons were forced from their homes in south Quincy.

Col. W. M. Leaf, District Army Engineer at Rock Island, Ill., said the Mississippi was cresting north of Hannibal but that "the danger remains great."

"Our heaviest fight now is to save the levee at Pike County, Ill., across from Hannibal," he said. About 120,000 acres were threatened with inundation in this area, he said.

Eight Levee Breaks Listed

The Army Engineers reported eight levee breaks between Wapello, Iowa, and Louisiana, Mo., as follows: Two at the mouth of Iowa River near Wapello, 1200 acres flooded; at St. Francisville, Mo., 1000 acres; South Quincy, Ill., 5500 acres; near the mouth of the Des Moines River, 11,000 acres; two private levee breaks between Clarksville and Annada, Mo., 3500 acres; and Marion County, Mo., 4000 acres.

At St. Louis, the Midwestern area headquarters of the Red Cross estimated the number of persons forced from their homes at 2540 in Nebraska, 2400 in Missouri, 1300 in Illinois, the number of homeless in Iowa, where the city of Ottumwa was hard hit, was estimated at 16,000.

The Red Cross said its latest report from Nebraska, where several small tributaries of the Missouri River in the eastern part of the State overflowed, was that the situation was easing in that area.

The crest of the Missouri River flood, farthest west in Missouri, was reported nearing Waverly with a stage of 22.5 feet, 4½ feet over the banks.

The Grand River was at 23.6 feet at its mouth near Brunswick, Mo., but was receding further upstream.

Cliffs Corp. Liquidation Asked in Supreme Move

Cleveland, June 9 (AP).—Management of Cliffs Corp., in a surprise move, asked for liquidation of the concern today at a stockholders meeting called for a vote on a proposed merger with Cleveland Cliff-Iron Co.

The move was made by interests who have been opposing efforts of a minority group to block the consolidation step, which would create a new 92-million-dollar iron ore, coal, timber and lake vessel concern.

Some observers expressed belief the proposal was made under the belief it would be voted down, leaving the way clear for the merger.

Attorneys for the group opposing the merger immediately asked for a recess. Later it was announced that a vote would be taken on the liquidation proposal and that balloting would continue through Thursday.

Utility Issue Awarded

New York, June 9 (AP).—Halsey, Stuart & Co. and associates today were awarded six million dollas of Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. 2⅞ per cent first mortgage bonds due in 1969, on a bid of 101.269. It was expected the bonds would be reoffered to the public later this week at 102.05 to yield 2.75 per cent interest at maturity.

Jones Expects Good Business To Continue

By The Associated Press

Jesse Jones, former Secretary of Commerce, told Congressmen yesterday that business should be good "for quite some time," and declared: "I do not believe we can talk ourselves into a depression."

He warned, however, of "some clouds on the horizon, internationalwise, that could affect our economy."

Countering widespread talk of a slump this year, Jones said in a statement to the House Banking Committee:

"I see no possibility of a depression in the near future."

The onetime Secretary of Commerce and Federal Loan Administrator, who in 12 years loaned upwards of 50 billion dollars in Government funds, listed several reasons why he thinks business should continue to prosper:

Among them is the "urgent necessity of construction work of every character, public and private, throughout the country."

Much to be Done

Industry needs to replace "outmoded and inefficient buildings and equipment on a substantial scale," he said.

"Altogether, there is so very much to be done, which necessarily has been neglected for the past half a dozen years," that business should be good for "quite some time."

Jones declared that "some reduction in the price of necessities is highly desirable and would help reduce prices."

The former cabinet officer, who was fired by the late President Roosevelt in January, 1945, in a move to make room for Henry A. Wallace, outlined his views in a statement requested by Representative Wolcott, (R., Mich.), chairman of the House Banking Committee. The committee is studying legislation to extend the lifetime of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which Jones formerly headed, beyond its June 30 expiration date.

Jones said the RFC should be kept in existence but should "revert to its original purpose of domestic emergency lending" now that the war emergency is over. (During the war it branched out into the foreign economic field and into such things as subsidies to spur domestic production.)

The Texas publisher-financier said the RFC was largely responsible for our recovery" from the depression of the 1930s and "if continued will serve a good purpose as a standby" in assuring credit at reasonable rates and terms.

While Jones painted a continuing bright economic picture, the Commerce Department reported that income payments to individuals (wages, dividends, interest, rents, etc.) declined in April along with ebbing industrial production and factory employment.

The Department had previously cited April as marking a halt in the long upswing in business.

It said income payments in April dropped to the equivalent of 176 billion dollars a year compared with 178 billion dollars in March.

The Department said hourly earnings continued to increase, but factory payrolls went down with a reduction in the number of workers and shortening of the work-week.

Steel Output Hovers At Postwar Peak

New York, June 9 (AP).—Steel operations this week will be little changed from their postwar peak of a year ago, the American Iron and Steel Institute said today in estimating operations at 96.9 per cent of capacity and production at 1,695,700 tons.

This represented a decline of 0.1 per cent from the 97 per cent of capacity last week, when production was estimated at 1,697,400 net tons.

A month ago the rate was 94.2 per cent of capacity and production 1,648,400 net tons and a year ago 76.1 and 1,341,200.

Spanked Children Back Dads In Ideal Father Competition

Spank your children and they'll still love you.

This is shown in two entries received yesterday in The Washington Post contest to pick the city's "ideal father." The contest closes midnight tonight.

Eight-year-old Beverly writes: "Sometimes we get angry with daddy for spanking or punishing us, but we know he is doing it for our own good, so that we will grow up to be well liked and good American citizens."

Takes Mother Out, Too

This dad "helps my oldest sister and me with our homework, then he reads stories to my younger brother and baby sister."

He also "finds time to take mother out on a date at least once a week, without neglecting us, as he provides us with a reliable sitter."

Twelve-year-old Adele has a stepfather, and to her he's "the most wonderful father one can have."

"You see, he loves me, gets all the things I need and even spanks me just like a real father," writes Adele.

Contest Closes Tonight

"Most of all I think he is so wonderful because I feel that he is there as my father. Even when I'm nasty, I know that he won't leave."

These are but two of the entries pouring into The Post for the contest. To nominate your dad, write down how you feel about him and send the entry to the Ideal Father Editor, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C. But don't put it off. Entries must be postmarked by midnight tonight. The winner will be announced Friday.

The city's top "pop" and his family will be guests of The Post next Sunday, Father's Day, for dinner and a show and they will broadcast over station WINX. Dad also will receive a plaque as a permanent reminder of his day.

Premier of Turkey Indicates He'll Fight to Keep Dardanelles

Copyright, International News Service

By Frederick Benda

Ankara, June 9 (INS).—Premier Recep Peker of Turkey indicated tonight that his nation will fight if Russia moves to impose her military grip on the strategic Dardanelles.

In reply to a questionnaire submitted by International News Service, the Turkish premier made it clear that while Turkey believes in the United Nations organization, it will feel impelled to take all necessary self-defense measures immediately in the event of such aggression.

Addressing the Turkish parliament of May 29, Premier Peker cited various Russian demands for bases on the Dardanelles and obtained appproval for extension of the "state of siege" which has existed in Turkish provinces surrounding the Dardanelles.

Right of Self-Defense

He declared then that Turkey did not know when she might find herself threatened by "invasion forces in the interior of the country."

The Turkish Premier was asked: "Does your recent statement to arliament mean that Turkey, without recourse to the United Nations, would be forced to resort to military measures in self-defense if any nation attempted to obtain a base or bases in the Dardanelles area?"

Peker replied:

"In the event an armed attack occurs against a member state of the United Nations, the charter explicitly recognized to this state, until the Security Council has taken the necessary measures to maintain international peace and security, the inherent right of individual collective self-defense . . . this organization has not yet at its disposal the international armed forces to carry out its decisions. Besides, a circumstance that may arise through use of the veto would constitute also a matter for serious consideration."

Truman Policy Praised

Peker declared that Turks "consider President Truman's policy of aid to Turkey and Greece . . . will produce good results for maintenance of world peace."

Russia's requests for joint bases in the straits were revealed in a note of August 22. This note rejected the requests and emphasized that Turkey would take part in talks for revision of the Montreux Accord only within the framework of an international conference to be attended by all signatories of the convention, plus the United States.

(On September 24, the Kremlin dispatched another note regarding the straits, and this contained what some Turks called "threatening passages." A strongly worded note then was handed by Turkey to the Soviet charge d'affaires in Ankara, repeating all previous declarations on the issue and stressing firmly that Turkey believed there was nothing to be gained by any further bilateral exchanges.)

New Dry Amendment Offered

A new prohibition amendment to the Constitution was proposed yesterday by Representative Bryson (D., S. C.).

He introduced a resolution providing for an amendment to prohibit the manufacture, sale, transportation, or possession of any beverages containing more than one half of one per cent alcohol by volume in the United States and all territory subject to its jurisdiction.

To become effective, the amendment would have to be approved by a two thirds majority of both House and Senate and then by the Legislatures of three fourths of the States.

"The condition of the people of this country under the free sale of alcoholic beverages has become pitiable," Bryson declared in a speech for the House.

"We have waited until the war was over and the troops were home to introduce this measure, in order that there might be no question as to the full discussion and free determination of all the people of the United States on this matter of public policy."

Bryson did not identify any other person or group as being associated with him in introducing the measure.

He said that "again a peoples' movement has started" in support of national prohibition and that there has been "a steady increase of dry territory under local option."

'Lucky' Brownie Run Beats Nats, 1-0

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

"THE CORK CENTER of a baseball is two centimeters in diameter, surrounded by three millimeter layers of rubber and then wound with woolen yarn and string until it is about 20 centimeters in circumference. It is then covered by two pieces of figure-eight-shaped horsehide which fit snugly together and are sewed with one continuous seam. Then it weighs 140 grams."

POVICH

Also, "the pitcher stands at the approximate center of a square, about 25 meters on a side. At three corners of this square are sand-filled canvas bags called bases, first, second and third. A white marker flush with the ground is set at the fourth corner; it is the home plate. The batter, equipped with a heavy stick tapered to a handle, stands beside the home plate . . ."

If it all sounds elemental, that's what it's intended to be, because the foregoing is out of "Amerika Illustrated," the slick, Life-sized magazine of the United States State Department which is now on sale at Russian newsstands at 15 rubles per copy. It's a re-translation from the Russian, in the ninth edition of the magazine that is aimed at giving the Communists a picture of life in America.

THE STATE DEPARTMENT hired Arthur Mann to do the job, and it was an inspired selection. Mr. Mann, former baseball writer, magazine author and now assistant to the president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, is perhaps the top historian of baseball. Mann and the State Department tossed a six-page section at the Russians, depicting America's national game in a running text with color photographs and diagrams, for whatever better understanding of the American way of life it might produce among the Commies.

Mann tells the Russians what baseball in America is all about, how the populace is stirred by the excitement of a pennant race and the World Series, and points up his story by noting that during the war, American sentries in the Pacific would call out in the night, "Who won the World Series this year?" If the man challenged didn't know the answer, the sentry knew he was a Jap.

Baseball obviously isn't going to replace soccer as the national game of Russia on the strength of "Amerika Illustrated's" delineation of the game. But Mann's article is at least educational for the Russian and a portrayal of America's zest for friendly strife on the playing fields as opposed to war-making.

POINTING OUT that there are only 3000 professional baseball players in America's widely-publicized national game, competing in 44 organized leagues, Mann tells the Russians that the basic structure of the game is the boy with a baseball, playing on the sandlots and school fields all over the breadth of the Nation.

Mann reveals his own complete understanding of the game in his dissertation on the various positions of a baseball team when he writes for the Russians, "The catcher's lot is a particularly difficult one. Protected by a wire mask, chest protector, shin guards and a heavy glove, he must stop every thrown ball that goes by the batter.

"In the humble game of the pasture lot, the fattest or slowest boy invariably gets the sweaty job of catching. He must learn to keep his eyes open even while the bat is swinging a few centimeters from his nose, and while he is learning he is going to make awkward catches and bruise his knuckles."

TO CATCH the interest of the Russians, Mann also points out the unimportance of class distinction in America's national game and and uses the duo of Hans Wagner and Ty Cobb to tell Commies that baseball skill is not exclusive with any social strata.

"Baseball heroes come from every walk of life," he tells the Russians. "A great popular idol was Honus Wagner, born in 1874 just outside of Pittsburgh, steel capital of the United States. He was homely, ungainly, bow-legged, and had little formal education. As a boy, he would walk bare-footed to Pittsburgh in order to see his hero, Cap Anson, of the Chicago team. Having no money, he accomplished his goal by climbing a tree outside the ball park and peering over the fence.

"Of a totally different background was another great baseball hero. Tyrus Cobb, born in 1886 in Georgia, of an old Southern family, had schooling and gentility. He was tall, slender, graceful and taught himself baseball on the pastures of his home State."

Cobb and Wagner never saw each other play until they met in the World Series of 1909, the greatest stars of their individual leagues. Then it was, Mann relates, that this pair of batting champions, discovered that though self-taught, they had adopted the same distinctive and unusual grip, with hands a palm-width apart on the bat, with the lower hand a few inches from the bathandle, a grip they alone of all players, were using. Mann's article is good reading for Americans, too.

Cooper's 2d Homer Clips Pirates, 13-10

New York, June 9 (AP).—Walker Cooper's second home run of the day, a long wallop into the left field stands with two men on base in the last of the ninth inning, topped an exciting struggle by the New York Giants today with a 13-10 decision over Pittsburgh.

Mel Ott's fence-busters hammered five home runs on their way to a first place tie with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Coming into the eighth inning, trailing 8-1 and completely mystified by the two-hit pitching of Kirby Higbe, the Giants lashed out with an eight-run spree in the eighth to take the lead.

Mickey Witek led off the last of the ninth with a home run to tie the score. With one out, Johnny Mize doubled and Willard Marshall was walked intentionally.

Ken Stribling Knocks Out Gannon in 1st

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Lightning struck at Griffith Stadium last night and Joe Gannon caught every bolt smack on his chin.

The punches were thrown by Ken Stribling who knocked the props out from under Gannon in 2:54 of the first round of their scheduled 10.

Stribling fired but three punches—hard right hand shots to the head—and Gannon caught them all. The last, coming seconds after Gannon had been floored for a count of eight, caught Gannon dead on the chin and knocked him cold.

Out for Three Minutes

He remained stretched out on the canvas a full three minutes after Referee Ray Bowen had finished the fatal toll.

Stribling leaped out of his corner at the opening bell and started his assault immediately. Gannon refused to go on the defensive, however, preferring to mix it and this unwise bit of logic resulted in a disastrous defeat for him.

Stribling weighed 162, two pounds more than Gannon. A slim crowd of 1441 customers paid a gross of $3319 to witness the Turner Arena production.

Cranford KOs Lake

In the companion feature, also billed for 10, Jackie Cranford belted out Jimy Lake in one minute and 47 seconds of the third round.

Cranford, the tow-headed Washington heavyweight, speared Lake, who operates out of Montreal, with a hard right to the head in the first round and had things his own way for the rest of the fight. Lake went down again in the second when Jackie ripped him with a left and right to the head.

Lake, offering little opposition, was sent sprawling twice in the third heat, the last time coming at 1:47 of the round when Referee Ray Bowen counted him out.

Cranford, 180½, against Lake's 186, had a breeze in Lake who bothered the handsome Washingtonian only once, in the first round with a short right to the head.

That slowed Jack down for a second, but he bounced back to work and stayed on top of Lake until the end in the third.

Puggy King won his third straight start as a pro when he stopped Henry Young, also of Washington, in 1:21 of the first. King weighed 121, Young 123; Arthur Bethea, 149, decisioned Jimmy Briscoe, 143, in a six, and Jimmy McGriff, 145½, was awarded a TKO over Bobby Suma in 2:33 of the fourth.

Time of Her Life

The Babe Goes Native in Kilts

GULLANE, Scotland, June 9 (AP).—Babe Didrikson Zaharias, up here after the British Women's Amateur golf championship, is going native.

She's acquired a kilt, and after breezing through her first two matches successfully today she announced, "I'm trying to live like the Scots and beat them on their own food and their own grounds."

She closed out Mrs. Enid Sheppard on the sixteenth green in the afternoon round, then told the crowd "now we'll give you a little show."

The Babe teed up on the 380-yard seventeenth and told the crowd, "I suppose you want to see me hit a long one."

The Scots cheered assent.

She bent over the ball again, stuck a match up against it, and cracked the shot about 320 yards. But she wasn't happy.

"It didn't pop," she pouted while regarding the match wistfully.

"I wish I had an American match," she said.

She poured sand over her ball, balanced another on top of it, and let fly. The bottom ball skied onto the green. The top one spouted up like water from a broken pipe and the Babe caught it as it dropped toward her right shoulder.

She bent over the ball and putted it between her corduroy clad legs, barely missing the 6-foot shot.

The crowd besieged her for autographs and one untravelled Scot who said he thought she was "a typical Yank," diffidently asked her to sign her autograph in the winner's slot of his draw sheet "if you don't fear it will bring bad luck."

The Babe scratched her bold signature under "winner" with the comment that "I'll sign anything but a blank check."

The Wicket Throws 'Em

Hey, What's This? Yanks Win at Cricket, Lose Baseball

CAMBRIDGE, England, June 9 (AP).—Amid cultured murmurs of "kill the umpire" from the British and raucous shouts of "oh, oh, well played" from the Americans, a United States men's team from Cambridge defeated a British girls' team from Oxford at cricket today but lost ignominiously at baseball.

The Americans tripped over the wickets. They lost their straw hats and gave a cricket performance that threatened to shake the ivy-covered walls of this 700-year-old university. Yet they won, 56-52.

But when it came to their own national game, described in the official program as "a variation of the children's game, rounders," the Americans took a 14-9 drubbing despite their use of Sharman Douglas, daughter of American Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas, as a pinch hitter in the third and final inning.

Some 5000 spectators flocked to the vast athletic field for the first—and very likely last—"international test match" between the two countries.

A troupe of American girl cheer leaders, led by Miss Douglas, drew roars from the crowd with such yells as:

"Oh, well played, sir. Oh, well played. Sir, you shall sup on lemonade, sir."

It was all very gay and very collegiate. American players who didn't wear the standard straw hat, gay blazer and white flannels, dressed up as Uncle Sam, George Washington, Stonewall Jackson and a couple of Red Indians.

The British spectators quickly got the point of American ball park humor.

"Take him out," they shouted in hoarse whispers. Then, gaining confidence, "murder da bum."

The English Speaking Union, sponsor of the affair, said it was just another move toward bettering Anglo-American understanding . . . it says here.

Variety Clubs Book Packers, 'Skins Sept. 21

Washington's Redskins and the Green Bay Packers of the National Football League will meet September 21 in Baltimore's Municipal Stadium in a charity game sponsored by Variety clubs.

Carter Barron, chairman of the general committee, announced the date yesterday at a press conference. Kickoff time will be at 2:30 p. m., with more than 60,000 seats available.

This year's game will be the third played by the Redskins in Baltimore for this cause. Last year's game returned $55,868.45 to charity.

The Variety clubs contribute funds to boys' clubs, children's hospitals and similar organizations.

The Redskins-Packers game will be the first in this part of the country by the 'Skins when they return from their California training camp.

In two previous Baltimore prechampionship games, the Redskins whipped the Detroit Lions, 21-14, but lost to the Chicago Bears last season, 20-14.

Jack Jacobs, Oklahoma Indian with the Redskins last fall, will be in Green Bay's backfield to do much of the kicking and passing against his old teammates at Baltimore.

Ticket Sale Today

Ticket sale for the third annual Variety Club benefit football game will open today at the Redskins' office, 739 Ninth st. nw. Reserved seats will sell for 2.50, $3.50 and $4, all prices including tax.

Yanks Blow 6-Run Lead, Lose by 9-8

Chicago, June 9 (AP).—Climaxing an uphill battle in which they trailed by six runs at one time, the Chicago White Sox scored a run in the tenth inning to edge out the New York Yankees 9-8 today.

The deciding tally came in on Murrell Jones' single to center which sent Floyd Baker over the plate. There were two out and two on at the time.

Joe Page, third Yankee pitcher, retired the first batter in the tenth but Catcher Aaron Robinson misjudged Baker's easy pop in front of the plate and the ball fell for a hit. Dave Philley's single advanced him to second. When Page fanned Luke Appling, he seemed out of trouble, but Jones then hit a 3-0 pitch for the game-winning single.

Luke Appling's two-run homer with a mate aboard in the eighth tied the score at 8-all

Alhalon, 10-Year-Old, Takes Goose Creek Purse at Charles Town

Laili Rose Beaten in Final Jump

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., June 9. Alhalon, an old man as horses go, and Robert Shirey, a youngster who rode his first winner less then a month ago, teamed to put on a stretch drive today to win the Goose Creek Purse.

The track was as deep and holding as the bottom of the stream for which the race was named. The going, however, suited Alhalon for the ten-year-old came with a stretch rush that disposed of Mrs. L. A. Whitely's Laili Rose in the final jump.

Time to Run was third while carrying the colors of the H. M. Simpson entry in the starting field of eight.

First Win in Six Tries

It was the first victory of the year for Alhalon in six tries. Last season he accounted for only two triumphs in 32 outings. Shirey, riding the fourth winner of his brief saddle career, brought the veteran home in time of 1:28 1-5 for the six and a half furlongs.

A crowd of 5000 reported for the day's sport and those who played Alhalon collected at the rate of $7.80 for each $2 investment.

Laili Rose, ridden by Apprentice Jimmy Baird who tops the jockeys here, slipped through on the inside rail to take the lead at the first turn with Sarcerto and Time To Run close up. Alhalon looked like anythnig but a winner at this stage.

It's a Photo Decision

The leaders kept their position at the far turn but then Sarcerto dropped out of it and Alhalon began to show signs of life. Laili Rose, however, came into the stretch with what appeared to be a safe lead.

Then Alhalon, on the outside, responded to Shirey's whip. Laili Rose was so tired she began to run all in one spot and the 10-year-old came on with a rush to take the photo decision.

The fifth race brought the day's most exciting finish and the three-way photo showed L. Salus' Sea Pilot the winner under a fine ride by Jockey Willie Nertney. Wayne Kendrick's Psychic Fancy was a charging second with W. V. Rose's Edmar Jojan third. Sea Pilot paid $7.60.

The Daily Double paid $176.60. Jockey Lawrence Eversole brought A. E. Essley's Scotty B home at $10 in the first race and Ray Arduini, Washington boy, booted R. W. Kidwell's Hair Cut home at $25.60 in the second.

Moss May Set Homer Record

By The Associated Press

Howie Moss, the Babe Ruth of the International League, is clouting homers at a pace that will not only better the "Bambino's" major league record but also the organized baseball mark of 69.

"The Baltimore Clipper" is off to a good start in his bid to surpass Ruth's output of 60 for the 1927 New York Yankees and Joe Hauser's organized baseball mark of 69 set in 1933 with Minneapolis of the American Association.

Moss has slammed 21 round-trippers in the Orioles' first 46 games, a gait, that, if maintained, will give Moss a total of 75 at the end of the season.

The hard-hitting Baltimore outfielder also is gunning for the International League record of 63, likewise held by Hauser who set the mark in 1930 while playing for the Orioles.

The 27-year-old flychaser, who had major league tryouts with the New Giants, Cincinnati and Cleveland, won the circuit's home run crown in 1944 with 27 and after spending 1945 in the service, he came back and won it again last year with 38, although he didn't join the Orioles until late in May.

It's Here to Stay

Pros Made Good Show at Open, And They'll Be Back Again

THE play-for-pay brigade has turned the Prince Georges golf course back over to the play-for-fun golfers, but the great show the par-busting pros staged in the first annual National Capital Open has zoomed golf interest to an all-time high in Washington.

The four-day, 72-hole event which Lloyd Mangrum won with a 269 was the most ambitious strictly golf event attempted in this area since the National Capital Open was staged here years ago. Sponsors of the event can't declare a dividend—they'll probably lose a little money—but they know they've got something in the tournament and have already made arrangements to bring the troupe in here again for at least three more years.

The 72-hole grind was an exciting, dogfight for its entire four days and the estimated 10,000 who witnessed the grand-slam assault on par thrilled to every shot.

"We will probably lose a little money," said Host Pro Al Houghton yesterday, "but we are well satisfied with the show. Rain cut down the crowds on Saturday and Sunday. But the show itplayers were most enthusiastic self was terrific. Spectators and about the tournament and it's here to stay. We're sure of that."

* * * *

NO DEFINITE dates have been assigned for next year's show, but there is a good possibility that the National Capital will open the pros' winter tour next season.

George Schneiter, chairman of the PGA players' committee, submitted three tentative dates to Prince Georges officials. No action will be taken for three or four months, however.

The tourney itself was filled with thrills. They're still talking about:

The sizzling 66, six-under par, Mangrum shot in the final 18 to win the event with his 19-under-par score of 269.

The two great iron shots Porky Oliver hit on his final round to finish in a tie for second at 272 with Skip Alexander.

The spectacular 63 Ed Furgol, Pontiac, Mich., made Friday to establish a new course record. Sam Snead, earlier that same day, had a 65 to shatter the record 66 which Lew Worsham set up last year in a program event.

—The terrific start the tournament got when Mangrum and Clayton Heafner birdied the first hole Thursday only to lose it to Snead's eagle.

—Mangrum chipping in from a sand trap on No. 5 for an eagle, Ellsworth Vines' 60-foot chip shot from behind the green on the same hole for an eagle and the spectacular iron shot Snead made on No. 7 Sunday, blasting out of casual water in the rough between two trees to within 30 feet of the pin.

—The spectacular play of 23-year-old George Payton, of Hampton, Va., who tied for the lead at 54 holes.

—Bobby Locke's monchalance, his style, his dress and his work with his magic wand, an old, wooden-shaft putter. . .

Cleveland Rebels Quit Association

Cleveland, June 9 (AP).—The Cleveland Rebels have suspended operations as a member of the Professional Basketball Association of America, Al Sutphin, president of the Cleveland Arena and promoter of the cage club, reported tonight.

The Rebels lost $75,000 last year while taking third place in the new league's Western Division, but Sutphin's principal reason for dropping out of the loop was his lack of desire to "promote" pro basketball, he said.

Didrickson, Sigel, Woodward Rout British Golf Opponents

Gullane, Scotland, June 9 (AP).—All three American seekers of the British women's amateur golf title—Babe Didrikson Zaharias of Denver, Helen Sigel of Philadelphia and Ruth Woodward of Fall River, Mass.—moved into the third round today with golf that almost any man would envy.

Mrs. Zaharias, currently the United States queen, blasted her way past a pair of opponents as might be expected of one favored to take the trophy across the Atlantic for the first time.

What surprised the gallery was the way Miss Sigel, a quiet Philadelphia miss with flashing brown eyes, demolished her two opponents. Helen, a finalist in the 1941 United States Women's championship had a 37 on the out nine in the afternoon and immediately the spectators began discussing the possibility of an All-American final Thursday.

Miss Sigel is in the lower half of the draw, Mrs. Zaharias in the upper.

The Babe defeated Helen Nimmo, a tall Gullane native, 6 and 5, in the morning round, sometimes outdriving her opponent by as much as 10 yards. In the afternoon she engineered a 4 and 2 verdict over Mrs. Enid Sheppard of England.

Miss Sigel eliminated the chic Mme. Phillipe Eloy of Morfontaine, France, in the morning by a 7 and 6 margin and then came back after lunch to sidetrack Mrs. J. N. Duncan, a former Scottish champion, 6 and 5.

The New England miss defeated Nacy Jupp of Longniddry, Wales, 2 up in the first round and eliminated Mrs. A. H. H. Gilligan of England, 5 and 3 after lunch.

Virtually every spectator on the wind-swept East Lothian Course followed Mrs. Zaharias, winner of 15 consecutive tournaments in the United States before she sailed for England and the "only major golf title I've never won."

During the morning she hammered out drives that always were at least 50 yards better than those of Miss Nimmo and most of the time were from 75 to 100 yards longer. Against Mrs. Sheppard she remained as long but lost some of her direction, landing in the wicked rough several times.

It was during the afternoon round that the Babe, holding a 3 up margin but forced to halve the thirteenth and fourteenth holes, turned to a friend and said: "I have been fooling around too much." She closed out the match on the sixteenth and then invited the gallery "to see some fun"

Mrs. Bower Wins Low Net

Mrs. A. B. Bower of Indian Spring won the Times-Herald Cup for her 79—2—77 low net score in the DWGA play yesterday at Kenwood.

Mrs. Bower went out on 41 and came home in 38 strokes for her winning score. She led a field of 84 players.

Mrs. Walter Stokes of Manor was low gross winner with a 42, 43—85.

Second low net was Mrs. John Long of Indian Spring with 78, four down to par. She was followed by Mrs. M. S. White, Army and Navy, 78, five down to par; Mrs. Bunker Hill, Manor, 79, four down to par; Mrs. Webb Hays, Columbia, 79, foul down to par; Mrs. E. Wiemayer, Kenwood, 79, four down to par; Mrs. A. P. Sasscer, Indian Spring, 80, four down to par, and Mrs. A. A. Morrill, Kenwood, 80, six down to par.

'Broken Time' Issue Avoided by IAAF

London, June 9 (AP).—The International Amateur Athletic Federation today postponed until after the 1948 Olympics decision on the controversial "broken time" issue—allowing payment to amateur athletes while absent from their regular jobs—and opened the door to the admission of Russia as a member.

The IAAF council was empowered to make the final decision on the Soviet application after the fulfillment of certain formalities, including Russia's agreement to abide the rules of amateurism.

Deal Island Ball Team Plays Too Close to Church

Princess Anne, Md., June 9 (AP).—Warrants charging 10 members of the Deal Island baseball club with "unlawfully engaging in a baseball game on Sunday" were sworn out today by Carl Hoffman, a member of the Maryland House of Delegates.

The warrants were issued by Magistrate L. Shanley Ford under a statute authorized by Hoffman and enacted during the 1947 session of the Legislature.

Hoffman said the Sunday ball games "seriously" curtail church attendance. He said the Deal Island diamond, only 120 yards from the St. John's Methodist Church, was a "scene of profanity and drunkenness."

He declared a week ago, when there was no game on the home field, 90 attended church while yesterday, when there was, he counted only 39 worshippers.

The Hoffman Act provides for a $25 fine or a jail sentence in lieu of the fine. It applies only to the legislator's home district of Deal Island.

Here's Why Pearl Diver Won Derby

New York, June 9 (U.P.).—Some English newspapers hinted darkly today that a French "black market in oats" had helped the French 40-to-1 shot Pearl Diver beat England's best horses in the Epson Derby last Saturday, according to a British Broadcast Co. breadcast heard here by N. B. C.

On the other hand, B. B. C. said, several papers declared that French breeders, who suffered more during the war than English turfmen, are just smarter than British breeders.

Unfair Labor Charges Dismissed by Board

New York, June 9 (AP).—The New York State Labor Relations Board today dismissed a complaint of unfair labor practices which had been filed against the New York Yankees, New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers.

The Rev. William J. Keller, chairman of the board, said the dismissal "without prejudice" followed a brief hearing at which counsel for the clubs appeared and offered no objections to dismissal.

Bobby Locke Arrives for Open Carrying Favorite Ukelele

St. Louis, June 9 (AP).—Bobby Locke flew into town today for the U. S. open golf championship Thursday, chatty and informal despite no sleep since he left Washington an dthe Capital Open in which he finished in fourth-place tie with 273.

The man who may be backed into a 2-to-1 favorite's spot to take the open stepped off the plane with a ukelele under his arm.

"I play it occasionally," he explained. "I like to click it for relaxation."

There are those who have seen the 29-year-old South African in action since he arrived in the United States who say he could use the instrument for a putter and still finish in the money.

He arrived in America in early April and he has pocketed nearly $10,000 in prize winnings and has averaged 69 and a fraction strokes in 33 rounds of tournament play.

Locke, who is traveling with Ed Furgol, Pontiac, Mich., star who carded a 63 on one of his rounds in Washington, said he wanted to tour St. Louis Country Club course as soon as he got some sleep.

He inquired about the custom tailored country club course, which is suited to Locke's accurate drives and razor-sharp short game.

"It looks like an open to me in every sense of the word," he said. "Many players should have a fine chances to win. Lloyd Mangrum might repeat, mind you. He had two 66s in Washington and he's hitting the ball beautifully, every shot."

Other new arrivals for the three-day championship included Gene Sarazen, Tommy Armour, Graig Wood, Vic Ghezzi, Billy Burke and Henry Picard.

Campbell Ready to Try For Speed Boat Mark

Coniston, England, June 9 (U.P.).—Sir Malcolm Campbell arrived at the site for his forthcoming attempt on the world's water speed record today and said he expected his jet-propelled boat, Bluebird, to take the water Wednesday.

"It's all 'superexperimental,'" Campbell said of his boat, the first jet-propelled marine craft in history. "We do not know what will happen. Bluebird may go in circles or she may leap to the heavens. She has never been in the water and we know nothing about her speed."

Horan Asks New Check On District Relief Rolls

He Would Inquire What Persons Get Aid Their Families Should Give Them

Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.) called yesterday for a closer check on whether the District is paying relief to persons whose families should support them.

Horan's House District Appropriations Subcommittee heard welfare officials testify in executive session on their proposed $11,371,000 budget for next year.

In addition, they are seeking restoration of more than a million dollars, trimmed by the Commissioners, for an expected increase in next year's relief load.

Horan questioned the officials about persons getting old-age assistance and living with their families.

On this point, Raymond F. Clapp, principal assistant welfare director, said later that a two-year-old study indicated 15 per cent of old-age assistance clients live with their families. In many cases, he said, either the relatives are getting relief themselves or have incomes so low they could not take care of the aged person without some payment. He said the grants in these cases are small, and the District saves the extra expense of institutional care.

Subcommitte inquiry is slated today on a report that a Federal employe assigned to work with the District Welfare setup is listed as a member of a Communist front organization in files of the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Clapp said the name given Horan's subcommittee differed from that of the employe—same last name, but different first name. He said that from conversation with the employe he did not believe she was listed by the Un-American Activities Committee.

Annie Oakleys Multiply

D. C. Officials Are Pictured As Fond Circus (Pass) Lovers

Carnivals are the "sewer of show business."

These two statements highlighted testimony yesterday before the District of Columbia License Committee considering increases in license fees charged to fifteen types of business.

The blast at the Annie Oakleys handed to District officials each year by the circus people came from Melvin D. Hildreth, past president of the Circus Fans Association of America.

He declared that the number of tickets that have to be given away each year by the circus to local officials has become "alarmingly great."

Hildreth said that he and other members of his association never accepted circus passes.

The circus association past president testified before the committee in oppostion to a proposal to raise per-day rates for each wagonload of circus equipment from $2 to $6.

Hildreth said that he had been "shocked to see the type of games and girl shows that are permitted to run at carnivals."

The increase in the license fee for carnivals is from $35 to $50 per day, as compared with the $2 to $6 per wagonload per day increase asked for circuses.

A. Julian Brylawski, president of the Motion Picture Theater Owners Association, who labeled carnivals "the sewer of show business," declared he thought carnival fees should be increased to $500 per day, instead of the $50 proposed by the licensing committee.

Brylawski said that his association was not objecting to the proposed increase from $30 to $75 per year in licenses for motion picture theaters.

Brylawski suggested that it would be more equitable to charge the small movie theater a fee of $50 per year, and the large theater a fee of $100.

J. Emerson Sauerhoff, a partner in Nield and Sauerhoff, local commission merchants, testified in opposition to a proposal to increase license fees for commission merchants from $5 to $100.

Others who testified included John A. Upshur, for the Federation of Civic Associations; Frederick Ball, representing Uline's Arena; Charles A. King; of the Anacostia Council, Junior Order of the American Mechanics; William I. Lee, Odd Fellows Hall Association, and Lester Scott, representing the Merchants and Manufacturers Association.

2 Hot Dogs Bite Man for 40c And Bring Law on Their Owner

Two hot dogs had their day in court yesterday, and bit the hand that bought them.

In a 20-minute trial before Judge Reid in Arlington County Court, J. E. Collins, 54, of the 400 block 6th st. sw., testified he saw hot dogs for 10 cents advertised in the window of a cafe in the 200 block of Moore st., Arlington, ordered two dogs, and was charged 40 cents for the brace. Andrew Kirk, 68, cafe proprietor, took the stand accompanied by one of his hot dogs and testified that he explained to Collins that prices had risen since the sign was painted 10 years ago. Further, Kirk said, he would have refunded the money had not Collins thrown the two hot dogs at him.

Judge Reid put the bite on Kirk for Collins' 40 cents charge and ordered the restaurant man to remove the sign. It was the smallest debt suit in recent history, court attaches said.

Showmanship doesn't always pay, George Bragg, 42, roustabout with the Ringling Brothers' Circus, discovered in Municipal Court yesterday.

Bragg was charged with indecent exposure when he was arrested while taking a sun bath in the rear of temporary building U, Madison dr. near 14th st. nw., clad only in socks.

Police Pvt. Willis A. Headlee, Park police, testified that Bragg told him he'd removed his clothes because he had been caught in a heavy downpour.

Boy Drowns for Turtle

Eight-year-old George Sartain drowned yesterday in the swollen waters of Folly Branch near Glenn Dale, Md., trying to recapture a turtle. Rescue squad members from Glenn Dale and Brentwood worked more than two hours, but were unable to revive the boy.

George and Barry Sauer, 8, also of Glenn Dale, were playing with the turtle about 5 p. m. on the banks of the branch. The turtle escaped and George pulled off his clothes and waded after it. He sank about 5 feet of water and did not come up, the Sauer boy told his mother, Mrs. Dorothy Sauer, after running the three blocks to his home.

The body was removed to Gasch's funeral home, Hyattsville. Funeral arrangements had not been completed last night. The Sartains have two daughters, Mary, 6, and Betty Jean, 3. The father is employed by the Christian Heurich Brewing Co.

$850,827 for Nevius

The United States Government yesterday deposited $850,827 with the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia in payment for the 25-acre Nevius tract in Arlington.

Government appraisers had named this figure as a fair value for the property on which the Veterans' Administration plans to build a hospital. Federal Judge Sterling Hutcheson signed a condemnation order on the property about two weeks ago.

Doctors Fix McAllister Murder Date

Hammer Slaying Victim Dead 3 to 11 Days When Found, Physicians Testify

Special to The Post

Hagerstown, Md., June 9.—Mrs. Florence Athey McAllister, 29, could have been dead for as long as 11 days before her hammer-battered body was discovered last December 10 in a house at Burtonsville, Md.

Two physicians so testified here today as the trial of Bruce Davis, 31, of Laurel, opened in Washington County Circuit Court, on a change of venue from Montgomery County.

Dr. Jacob Bird, chief surgeon at Montgomery County Hospital and chief pathologist for the county, who examined the woman's body, said he believed she had been dead "not less than three days" and possibly as many as 11 days before discovery.

Dr. Richard M. Rosenberg, deputy coroner of the District of Columbia, expressed the belief the woman may have been dead a "minimum of ten days."

The medical testimony introduced by the prosecution apparently was a move to spike an expected defense claim that Mrs. McAllister was slain after Davis' arrival in Tennesee November 30. He was arrested by the FBI in Memphis December 19.

In his opening address to the jury, State's Attorney Walter W. Dawson of Montgomery County said the State would prove:

1. That Davis had known Mrs. McAllister for several months and that they were together in the old Athey home in Burtonsville, about 6 miles from Laurel, on November 26, 27 and 28.

2. That the pair quarreled in Silver Spring November 28 and that Davis awoke the following morning near Laurel in Mrs. McAllister's car. (This, Dawson said, the defendant has admitted.)

3. That Davis headed south on November 29, and on December 3 wrote to the victim's sister, Mrs. Mamie Brown of Laurel, that he and Mrs. McAllister planned a trip to Florida.

Mrs. Brown "became worried" sometime later, Dawson declared, and with some friends went to the family home in Burtonsville where they found Mrs. McAllister's body.

Mrs. Brown, testified she last saw her sister alive on November 19.

Detective Capt. Theodore Bolton of the Montgomery County Police, took the stand to relate that there was no food or heat in the seldom-used Athey house at Burtonsville when the body was found.

At the request of Chief Judge William A. Huster, a thirteenth juror was sworn in at the beginning of the trial to substitute for any member of the jury who might become incapacitated during the trial.

Presiding with Judge Huster are Judges Joseph W. Mish and George Henderson.

Martin Ingram, Washington County State's attorney, is assisting Dawson and Thomas M. Anderson, assistant Montgomery County State's attorney, in the prosecution. Defense attorneys are Paul B. Mules, Baltimore, and Stuart Bushong of Hagerstown.

Davis shuffled into court glumly at 9 a. m. today, his hands manacled. As the trial opened, he sat beside his father, Jefferson Davis, of Edson, Tenn. Two brothers were also in court.

Only American Air Superiority, Atom Bomb Prevent Red Attack, Bullitt Tells Graduates

Georgetown Gives Honorary Degree To Ex-Ambassador

William C. Bullitt, former Ambassador to Russia and France, said last night that only American air superiority and the atom bomb prevented Russia and her satellites from occupying all Europe and attacking the United States.

"But if they ever believe they are the stronger they will attack," Bullitt declared in a commencement address at Georgetown University.

In a stinging attack on Stalin and communism, which he distinguished from the Russian people, the former diplomat charged that Russia is gearing her economy to war and attempting by fifth columns to break down the resistance of all democratic peoples.

Bullitt asserted Soviet spies and agents are active in American labor unions and "even in our Government offices in Washington."

Eventually the Russians will free themselves from Soviet dictatorship, he predicted. He then added that until such freedom comes:

"We and all other free peoples will be in danger of attack unless we keep the Soviet Union constantly confronted by superior force."

He called for support of the Truman Doctrine of aid to democratic nations and urged creation of a European federation to combat communism.

Earlier in the university's 148th commencement exercises, honorary doctor of laws degrees were conferred on Bullitt and Thomas A. Dean of Chicago, manufacturer and president of the national Georgetown Alumni Association. Presentation was made by the Very Rev. Lawrence C. Gorman, S. J., president of the university.

Degrees were awarded 613 graduates of the college, graduate school, medical, dental, law, foreign service and nursing schools.

Certificates honoring their golden jubilee were presented by President Gorman to alumni of the class of 1897.

Among those present were H. Anton Heitmuller, LL.B., of 1329 Gallatin st. nw.; C. Clinton James, LL.B. of 900 F st. nw.; the Rev. Francis X. Delaney, S. J., A. B. of Brooklyn, N. Y., and William G. Bouie, LL.B., of Hot Springs, Ark.

Washington Gets Solution To Parking Headaches

Plan Proposes Private Enterprise Spend 50 Million On Several Projects

Washington businessmen were presented with a plan for the solution of one of their top headaches—downtown parking—yesterday.

Planners proposed in a 36-page illustrated report that private enterprise be encouraged to spend 50 million dollars on various projects to defeat the growing trend toward decentralization of the business section.

The parking "blueprint," prepared for the Commissioners by C. T. McGavin, chief economic analyst of the District Highway Department, was sent to Capitol Hill, where Speaker of the House Joseph W. Martin, jr. (R., Mass.), immediately referred it to the House District Committee.

The plan, result of an 18-month study, was disclosed at the Burlington Hotel yesterday at a special luncheon, sponsored by the Board of Trade traffic and city planning committee.

Favors Parking Garages

It recommends:

1. A series of off-street parking garages in the downtown area.

2. Increased use of express buses to encourage shoppers and downtown workers to leave their autos at home.

3. A system of parking lots and garages on the "fringe" of the downtown area, where drivers could park their cars and receive a shuttle-bus ride downtown and back—all on one car-parking "ticket."

4. Reconstruction and modernization of downtown buildings, plus strengthening of zoning requirements that new buildings provide parking facilities wherever practicable.

5. Improvement of downtown truck loading and unloading conditions "to bring about needed changes in routes, hours of delivery, and methods of handling."

6. Designation of off-street "pickup points" where motorists could pick up passengers during rush hours and avoid traffic slowdown and congestion.

Parking should be provided on a self-sustaining basis and neither the city nor merchants ought to help foot the bill, McGavin pointed out.

Motorists should be willing to pay a "reasonable parking fee" for downtown parking advantages and accept it as "a necessary part of automotive transportation cost," he believes.

13,000 for Northwest

McGavin's surveys indicate need for the following specific space goals in these areas:

Northwest Retail Area—bounded by New York and Massachusetts aves. and Mount Vernon Square on the north; 5th and 6th sts. and Indiana ave. on the east; Pennsylvania ave. on the south; and 15th st. on the west—13,000 spaces, 7200 for short-time and 5800 for all-day parkers.

Northwest Office Building Area—bounded by M st. and Massachusetts ave. on the north; 12th st. on the east; New York and Pennsylvania aves. and Lafayette Square on the south; and 19th st. on the west—9000 spaces, 3000 for short-time and 6000 for all day parkers.

Northwest Government Triangle Area—bounded by Pennsylvania and Constitution aves. and 15th st.—3500 spaces.

Bureau of Engraving and Agriculture Department group—1200 spaces.

Social Security group—Near 3d and C sts. sw.—500 spaces.

North Capitol and C sts. Federal Building group—1100 spaces.

The plan was prepared at a cost of about $10,000 to the District, McGavin revealed.

Armory Finally Falls to National Guard but Congressional Fight Brews Over Its Control

The National Guard "marched" into the Armory yesterday and took possesion without a shot being fired.

But Guard officers murmured wearily that it had been a long, hard siege.

The Guard has been waiting for months for the FBI to vacate the huge drill shed, at 20th and E. Captial sts., completed in 1941 at a cost of $2,750,000. The FBI moved the last of its vast collection of files from the armory on Friday to a new home at 3d and D sts, sw.

The staff of Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, District National Guard Commander, wasted no time in reoccupying the armory.

A Guard spokesman said the moving of materiel and equipment on hand had been almost completed yesterday. He added that the bulk of the Guard's equipment will be new Army issue which will come into the armory later.

The return of the National Guard to its own armory paved the way for the use of the big drill shed for sports and other civic events, but did not settle the issue of whether the Guard or the District will control the armory.

The armory, with extra bleachers, could accommodate crowds of 15,000. This is triple the capacity of Uline Arena, which has been the largest arena available for indoor sports in the District.

The 400x200-foot drill hall will also be excellent for conventions, exhibitions and balls.

The District Commissioners are attempting to steer through Congress a bill which would give them comtrol of the armory, which was built with District funds.

Guard to Fight Bill

General Cox, while declaring the Guard wishes to see the public gain every possible use of the armory, has announced he will fight the bill.

"We just can't stand by and let somebody take our armory away from us," he said.

Even before the armory was completed, war conditions forced the Guard to yield part of the space to the War Department. The National Guard never had a chance to dedicate formally the new structure and it is probable that such a ceremony will be held within the next 30 days.

The return of the Guard to the armory means the Guard strength, now slightly more than 500 officers and enlisted men, can be expanded to 4000.

There are four buildings at the corners of the drill hall and each will be assigned to a major Guard group. The buildings will later be identified as separate armories.

Contract Talk Progresses, Dairies Report

"Progress" was reported yesterday in efforts to settle a contract dispute between the Metropolitan area milk industry and its employes.

The optimistic note was sounded by a spokesman for the milk distributors, following a full day of negotiations with union representatives at Wardman Park Hotel.

Officials of the Milk Drivers and Dairy Employes Union, Local 246 (AFL), who have the authority to call a strike at any time, declined to comment.

Yesterday's conversations dealt primarily with a company demand for a written promise that a walkout will not be called in the 15-day so-called "truce" period voted by the membership last Friday night.

At that time, workers rejected a company proposal providing, it was said, for: A flat $4.80 weekly pay rise for plant workers; a $2.40 increase for helpers, garage attendants and butter and egg department employes; a boost to wholesale drivers of one-half of 1 per cent over the existing commission for sales exceeding $3000; an increase of 1 per cent over the present commission rate to retail drivers, for sales over $700 weekly.

Negotiations were recessed until 10 a. m. Thursday.

Third Policeman Given Suspension

Seventh Precinct Private Charged With Intoxication

The suspension of another Seventh Precinct policeman—the third in less than a week—was announced yesterday by Acting Superintendent of Police Walter H. Thomas.

Thomas, who has ordered an investigation into incidents involving police, Georgetown University students and neighborhood hoodlums in the precinct, identified the suspended policeman as Pvt. L. E. Gatlin.

His announcement said Gatlin, a former Marine who lives at 507 Timber ln., Falls Church, Va., was suspended Saturday night and charged with being under the influence of alcohol so as to be unfit for duty.

Gatlin joined the force in 1943 and has had a good record, Thomas said. After a full investigation of the case, he will be given a hearing before the police trial board.

Criticized by Judge

Last Friday, Gatlin was criticized in Municipal Court by Judge Walter B. Casey for failing to arrest both participants in a fight at a Wisconsin ave. restaurant. At the same time, the judge dismissed disorderly conduct charges against Robert McCole, 22, of 3935 Legation st. nw., a Georgetown University GI-student, allegedly one of the principals in the battle.

Meanwhile, Acting Superintendent Thomas announced a probe of the Seventh Precinct incidents will be undertaken by Inspector Lloyd Kelly assisted by Capt. Archie Winfree, precinct commander, who returned to his post yesterday after a 10-day leave of absence.

Fitzpatrick Case Up Today

It was also disclosed yesterday that two Georgetown precinct police, suspended last week following assertions by another G. U. student that he was beaten when arrested by them, would be notified of formal charges today.

The suspended pair are Pvts. James A. Stewart, jr., 35, of 5701 North Tenth rd., Arlington, and Warren L. Garrett, 32, of 1549 Thirty-fifth st. nw. The student, Daniel J. Fitzpatcrick, 22, insists he was arrested without justification and that Stewart blackjacked him.

Fitzpatrick, also a wer veteran, was charged with being disorderly following an incident at an M st. tavern. He will go on trial this morning before Judge Casey. The two suspended policemen will testify.

The defendants were fined by Associate Justice Alexander Holtzoff after pleading nolo contenders, or no contest, to the charges.

Second Case Of Tick Fever Reported

The District's second case of spotted fever for 1947 was reported yesterday by the Health Department.

Infected is a 55-year-old woman, a resident of the 2500 block of Minnesota ave. se., who was bitten by a tick about June 5 while at a beach at Deal, Md. She now is undergoing treatment at Gallinger Hospital, officials said.

The District's first fatality and only previous case of the disease this year was on May 15 when a 70-year-old man, a resident of the 2700 block of 29th st. se., died from spotted fever.

Meanwhile, two children, aged 5 and 7, residents of Marshall, Va., are under treatment at Children's Hospital for possible spotted fever. It was reported that preliminary tests established the "clinical" diagnosis as that of spotted fever. Further tests are being made.

So far this year there have been two spotted fever cases reported in suburban Virginia, both in Arlington. Both victims have recovered. Montgomery County, Md., also reported two cases, with no fatality resulting. There have been no cases in Prince Georges County.

Natural Gas Now Goes to 60,000 Here

Washington Gas Light Co. has converted approximately 60,000 of 180,000 gas consumers here to natural gas, Howard Noyes, general superintendent, said yesterday.

He said the huge change-over job, started April 1, is proceeding on schedule.

All of the area west of Rock Creek Park and that north of Park rd. from Rock Creek Park to Soldiers Home is now served by natural gas, he said.

The change-over should be completed, he said, by the end of October, with the downtown commercial area the last to be changed.

Nearby Maryland and Virginia Counties have been converted to natural gas.

Her tulle veil fell from a tiara of seed pearls and her bouquet of white roses and baby's breath was centered with a white orchid.

Bridal attendants were Miss Slocum Gowdey, maid of honor, wearing peach marquisette, and the Misses Phoebe Reasor and Carolyn Carter, cousins of the bride, in green marquisette. All carried colonial bouquets. Another cousin, Patsy Logsdon, dressed in yellow and carrying daisies, acted as flower girl. Joseph Henry Stevenson served as best man and ushers were Harold Carter, Eddie Logsdon and Berry Elliott. A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents.

Ask Anne — Your Questions On Homemaking

Happy choice for hot-weather menus is the quick-service ham, that ready-to-eat wonder that eases the homemaker's daily tasks. With such an item in your larder, you need never be at loss for a hearty dish when summer guests drop in unexpectedly, or when the heat discourages a session with oven or broiler. Serve with other cooling fare such as potato salad, crisp cabbage slaw, sliced tomatoes, fresh asparagus or cold spiced fruit

Please advise if water stains can be removed from nonwashable wall paper.

I'm sorry, but there seems to be no satisfactory method.

You printed an address telling where to send the old Christmas cards and other cards. Would you please print it again? How do you remove an iodine stain from a refrigerator?
E. A.

Two addresses to which used Christmas, birthday and other cards can be sent have been printed in this column. They are: Maine Sea Coast Missionary Society, 24 Ledgelawn ave., Bar Harbor, Me., and Mrs. Henry Hummer, 5825 5th st. nw., Washington 11, D. C.

Try to remove the stain with a fine scouring powder. If it does not come off readily, do not continue scouring. You may remove some of the shine.

Will you please tell me what will remove a small blood stain from a white kid glove?
R. E. J.

Mix raw starch to a paste with cold water and apply the paste thickly to the stain. Brush away when it dries. Repeat treatment until the stain disappears.

Can you tell me how to remove tobacco stains from clothing? My husband's pipe has leaked on both white and colored shirts. J. A. E.

Sponge the spots with cold water, then work warm glycerine into the stain. Let stand for half an hour and wash with soap and water. If the stain cannot be completely removed by washing, bleach it in the sun. Moistening with lemon juice before placing in the sun will make it disappear more quickly. If this treatment doesn't work, sponge with hydrogen peroxide or sodium perborate solution (4 tablespoons to 1 pint of water). Or sprinkle with powdered sodium perborate on moistened stain. Rinse thoroughly.

Please tell me how fingernails can be made stronger-thicker. What vitamin, food, medical treatment will aid the growth of nails? N. A. N.

Discuss this problem with your doctor. It is not within the scope of this column.

How can I clean a stainless steel pot which has become darkened from burner flames or food scorch? Are chromium skillets quite satisfactory? Is it true that citrus fruit juice loses its vitamin value within half an hour after being squeezed? Do canned juices lose theirs shortly after cans are opened? What is a good way of making patterns for sweaters when they are new so that the patterns may be used repeatedly for blocking to size after laundering? What clever ways are there for keeping purses, lingerie, etc., neat in minimum of bureau space?

I'll pass along two of my own space-savers: I use a rotary tie rack for costume necklaces and flexible bracelets; and all of my costume brooches and hat pins are fastened to wide velvet bands stretched across the inside of my closet door. E. L. M.

Scour your stainless steel pots with steel wool soap pads. If the stain is especially stubborn, use scouring powder with the steel wool.

It seems that chromium skillets are not as satisfactory as iron or aluminum because with use the chromium wears off, exposing the metal base.

Citrus fruit juices do not lose their vitamin value quickly. Orange juice for breakfast can be prepared the night before without appreciable loss if it is stored in a closed container in the refrigerator. Cans of juice can be opened and kept in the refrigator for 3 or 4 days without much loss in vitamin C.

A pattern to block your sweaters could be made out of a cloth and it would survive many uses.

Sectional dividers in the bureau drawers will keep slippery lingerie in piles and orderly. If your drawers are deep enough to stand your purses upright, you might have perpendicular dividers put into half of the drawer. Place them just far enough apart to allow you to slip one purse into each section.

Mothers Who Began Nursery Supervise and Study There

When the Cooperative Nursery School in Colonial Village, Arlington, Va., closes next week for the summer, it will be completing its fourth year. But, thanks to the determination of the village parents, it's a big improvement on the one-room site a few mothers began with in 1943.

The school now occupies the whole bottom floor of the building on Key Boulevard, including a separate kindergarten and an adjacent playground. The children receive expert supervision for a nominal cost and all the credit belongs to the parents.

Headed by Mrs. Pearl Isenbergh, the mothers founded Colonial Village Cooperative Nursery School, drew its constitution and obtained its license and membership in the Federation of Cooperative Pre-Schools of Northern Virginia.

Mothers Share Work

In order that her child attend the school, each mother helps the director, Mrs. Robert Lyddan, who has done graduate work in pre-school education at Wellesley College and Harvard University. Her assistant, Mrs. Hoshie Yamado, is supervising the children.

The mothers have to go to school as well. They have study group meetings where they learn modern means of combating child behavior problems.

Fathers of the children furnished and decorated the rooms the management at Colonial Village gave the school three years ago. They built and painted cabinets, shelves, tables and chairs.

Well Decorated

Circus scenes of elephants and bareback riders and all the other big top attractions were painted on the walls by Robert M. Coffin, professor of fine arts at Ohio State University, whose son attended the school.

The children have music lessons, group singing, painting, clay modeling and other pre-school training. While the mothers learn more about child care than they would at home, they still have extra time for household tasks, and the dads have plenty of room to put their hobbies to practical use.

Has Anyone Told You?

BARBECUE FORK has been designed with a trigger control. It can be used for picking up—and holding fast—steaks, frankfurters, roasts; removing potatoes and corn from boiling water; lifting hot pans and dishes from barbecue pits or open fires. The tines are made of heat-treated steel.

PLAY SHOWERS for the back yard can be operated with any garden hose. Made of aluminum, they are light enough to move from one spot on the lawn to another. These upright showers need no screws or bolts and are simple to assemble.

TODAY is the time for all good men to look to their screens. There's a synthetic resin liquid on the market that will protect them from rust and corrosion and at the same time put a coating of DDT on the mesh to kill flies and mosquitoes. The coating can be brushed on or wiped on with a cloth. The DDT cannot be jarred off, blown or washed away because of a special binder that makes the crystals adhere.

Fill Dessert Shells With Ice Cream and Jam

Those little sponge-cake dessert shells which you find in the grocery stores these days are wonderful for short cut shortcakes. But when the thrill of fresh strawberry shortcake begins to pall, try using them in other ways.

For a quick Sunday night dessert, fill them with ice cream and top with raspberry preserves. It doesn't have to be raspberry preserves; your grocer has many other rich flavors which will taste equally good.

If you don't have ice cream on hand, put a plump apricot half in the center of the shell and top with whipped cream.

Quick Salad Idea

For an easy-to-make salad, put chilled pear halves or pineapple slices on crisp lettuce and spread with apricot preserves. Current jelly, peach jam or orange marmalade are equally good and they are all available at your grocery store.

Couple, Married Less Than a Year, Have Many Heart-to-Heart Talks About Man's First Love, Whom He Cannot Forget; Wife Feels Stymied

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband and I have been married nearly a year. During that time we've had periodic heart-to-heart talks, with complete honesty, I believe, on both sides.

Our problem: During the war, my husband met a girl in Europe, before he met me. Of course I didn't hear the whole truth before our marriage; but he has since told me all.

He is fighting within himself, he tells me. He is in love with her—his first true love. And yet he says he loves me. He believes he is in love with two women at the same time; but in my heart I feel she is the one.

He has talked of a quick trip to Europe to see her and clarify his thinking; and I've urged him to go, if there is a chance that the trip might settle his mind and bring us contentment in future. I am willing to wait, as I happen to love him and believe in marriage. I would consider divorce—much as I dread it—only if there is no other solution.

Man Is Chafed By Close Ties

YESTERDAY we had another talk. What he needs to find out, we both agree, is whether the girl is standing between us; or whether the difficulty is primarily an urge on his part to be single again and have free rein to associate with other women, which he won't do while he is married.

He has mentioned the fact that his friends always thought he would be a bachelor for life, with no strings attached. He is restless, has silent moods, wants to go driving by himself and I have to leave him alone at such times. If I show devotion, he wants none of it.

He says he feels sorry for me, that I've been a wonderful wife, etc. However, it seems this isn't enough. Can you help me? Am I doing right? I believe the problem is out of my hands; too much for me. Please advise me.

L. D.

Infantile Nature Generates Unrest

DEAR L. D.: The problem is your husband, period. It just happens that you got mixed up in it by marrying him, as did the girl in Europe by having a love relationship with him. Perhaps there have been other girls besides. But if there haven't, it might just as well have been any other two in place of yourself and her.

It isn't a matter of his being torn between two significant loves, theoretically appealing to different sides of his nature—one side leaning to the sympatico wife, the other to the foreign flame—that keeps the marriage in hot water.

If he weren't vacillating between you two, he still would not have squared off to a steady purposeful social pace. He would be equally at sea in relation to other allegedly conflicting heart interests, because his own infantile selfish unstable character is the generator of his moody emotional rejection of you.

Habit With Him To Discard Love

THE RECORD shows he had run out on his "first true love" before he met and married you; and now he is discursively asserting an impulse to run out on you, too, citing nostalgia for his other love as the reason for his restiveness. Which suggests that running out on love relationships is a habit with him, the customary denouement of his courtier performance.

This inference seems confirmed by his recent admission, to-wit: that maybe a desire on his part to be single again and free to make love to any woman is the real fly in the ointment. He came near to being honest there; and I think you deserve much credit for that.

Apparently your heart-to-heart talks with him have borne some fruit, by giving him the helpful example of mature-type willingness to search for truth, face it unflinchingly and change one's course in the light of greater knowledge gained.

Wife's Patience Is Constructive

SUCH constructive listening and keen perceptive conversational steering are a part of the trained analyst's technique; and your instinctively wise employment of this approach has helped you, too, by bringing you at last to a realization that the problem is "out of your hands;" that there is nothing you personally can do to stabilize his fickle disposition or invest him with real contentment in relation to you.

You've been as deeply helpful to him as any layman could be, in focussing his attention on the large probability that his unrest stems from neurotic aversion to permanent monogamous love ties. Now, if he earnestly desires to get on the beam of satisfactory living, he should track his irresponsible traits to their roots, and start from scratch to develop psychologically mature habits of feeling and being. This course calls for specialist aid; it is the only remedy for his chronic turmoil, and if he refuses to take it, divorce is inescapable.

One-Year-Old Likes Varied Diet

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Every one of us tends to get into food habits. Our family table becomes monotonous because we serve the same foods day in and day out.

Even though the mother encourages a good appetite by giving her children the foods they like best, she is wise to introduce them to new foods so they will learn to like them.

Here is just a glimpse of the many varieties of different foods that can be in the diet of the child one year or more of age.

In beverages he is not restricted to sweet milk alone, but may have lactic acid milk or buttermilk, lemonade or orangeade and gingerale. After the second year, he may have weak cocoa made with milk.

The variety of meats is large, consisting of beef, lamb, liver, bacon, chicken and white meat of turkey and boneless fish. Use tender cuts of meat and remove all tough tendrils. Cut them finely and don't worry about their difficulty of digestion. Even the child without teeth can digest them.

There are very few vegetables denied children though corn, navy beans and cucumbers are not advised. But there are so many others: asparagus, broccoli, beets, green or wax beans, peas, celery, lettuce, turnips, carrots, squash, sweet potato, Swiss chard, spinach and tomatoes. What child would miss the few he should not have?

Vary Friut Diet

Fruits can be given in equal variety, oranges, whole or sliced or juiced, grapefruit juice, cooked prunes, strawberry juice, seedless raisins and dates, and both raw and cooked bananas, pears, peaches and apricots. The taboo ones are seedy berries, black or red raspberries, currants and plums which may come into the diet later.

Every type of cereal, whether coarse or fine, if well-cooked, will lend variety to the breakfast meal. All year around the best choices, whether home-cooked or ready-cooked, are those containing the whole grain.

As for desserts the child may have a choice of cereal puddings, custards or gelatines, plain cake or cookies and, of course, ice cream.

If the child has the willingness to drain his soup plate it may contain all varieties of soup made hearty and satisfying with added vegetables and cereals. Plain, clear broths offer too little nourishment for growing children.

D. C. Federation Installs Officers, Concludes Season

By Genevieve Reynolds

Installation of new officers, a memorial service for deceased members, and a business meeting concluded the D. C. Federation of Women's Club's official season.

Forty-four women who have died within the past year were honored at the memorial services. Special tribute was paid to the late Mrs. Mary Wright Johnson, president of the D. C. Housekeepers' Alliance, and to Mrs. Ross Snyder, president of the D. C. Sunshine and Community Society, who was fatally shot last year by her adopted, teen-age son. Mrs. Pierce Ashburn conducted the memorial services. Hymnals were sung by Mrs. Malcolm Scates, accompanied by Mrs. Edward C. Madgeberger.

New Officers

Mrs. Madgeberger later was installed president of the organization, succeeding Mrs. Gertrude Parks. Mrs. Edgar B. Merritt, past president and editor of the federation's organ, The District Club Woman, conducted the inaugural ceremony.

Among those taking the oath of office for three years, in addition to Mrs. Madgeburger were: Mrs. E. Morgan Pryse, first vice president; Mrs. Tavie Erickson, second vice president; Mrs. Erich W. Schwartze, recording secretary; Mrs. Edward E. Covert, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Henry Sawtelle, treasurer, and Mrs. Carl Alsop, auditor.

When Mrs. Merritt ended her presidency of the federation, the organization had not initiated the custom of presenting retiring heads with pins. So in recognition of past leadership and for her outstanding job as editor of the group's magazine, hard-working Mrs. Merritt yesterday was presented the president's pin.

Mrs. Parks, retiring president, who leaves a record of a three-year-administration devoted to civic improvement of the District of Columbia and to the welfare of its citizens, also was given the past president's pin. During her tenure of office, four new clubs were admitted to the federation and an active youth conservation program formulated and established.

Mrs. Baker Heads Alumnae Group

Mrs. Roudeboush Baker was elected president of Washington branch, Western College Alumnae Association, at a recent meeting held at the home of Miss Ruth Hunter in Hyattsville. Mrs. May Edgerton Fyfe was named vice president.

Keith's Makes a Promise

National Is Dimming Its House Lights; Olney Will Carry the Torch

By Richard L. Coe

A LITTLE WHEAT from desk-top chaff:

Looks as though the National will be dark next week . . . But Olney's carrying the torch for legit . . . Haila Stoddard's run in "Dream Girl" grossed the country theater over $5000, a very healthy figger . . . Only a week before that Mary Boland, in a new play, "Open House," didn't even hit $3000 in the heart of Philadelphia, which is making Redge Allen, Evelyn Freyman and Glenn Taylor, the Olney rulers, feel pretty hopeful . . . Their second offering of the season opens tonight, "The Male Animal," with leading lady of the company, Nancy Holland, in a starring part . . . Nancy played Sally, for a while, in the West Coast company of "The Voice of the Turtle," which indicates the gal is in good graces of Alfred De Liagre, a man noted for his discrimination, as those ads put it.

Shirley Temple

COMES A TELEGRAM: From Keith's and you know the faith we put in those telegrams from Keith's. For the record, here it is: "I think we are finally straightened out. 'Honeymoon' definitely will open Wednesday morning. S. L. Sorkin, Manager, Keith's Theater." That's what it says, anyway. We won't believe it 'til after we've seen the Shirley Temple-Guy Madison epic Wednesday.

AT THE PALACE: It looks as though "Duel in the Sun" is in its last two days. We'll take no bets on this one, either, but at the moment "Sea of Grass" is scheduled to open Thursday morning. . . . This one finds Katharine Hepburn tied to Spencer Tracy, but making eyes at Melvyn Douglas, from which Robert Walker is a result.

SURER BETS: You can be pretty certain this week of the Warner houses, which had holdover twins last week. . . . "Smash-Up—The Story of a Woman," goes into the Earle. . . . "High Barbaree," which had a very good week at the Capitol, goes into the Columbia. . . . "The Well-Digger's Daughter" goes into its fourth week at the Little Friday. . . . The Pix holds "Open City" through Thursday and "Rembrandt" replaces "Angel and Sinner" Saturday at the Hippodrome.

DAYS OF GRACE: Today is the deadline for subscription renewals for next season's Theater Guild-American Theater Society season. . . . But Manager Bess Davis Schreiner announces "the usual days of grace will be added to the membership privilege." . . . This means that "all members sending in their subscription orders up to and including Saturday of this week may hope to receive their same seat locations as this season." . . . Would that all deadlines were as flexible!

ON OTHER FRONTS: That "Open House" we spoke of up there finally hit New York, but closed after seven performances Saturday night . . . John Gielgud's London company closes "Love for Love" June 28 after 26 weeks in America, which puts the unit safely under the six-month tax deadline. . . . This is a reciprocal agreement between the United States and Britain whereby a theatrical unit from either country can work for six months in the other and avoid tax liability in the visited country. . . . In London, "Annie Get Your Gun" is a twin hit to "Oklahoma!" . . . The Irving Berlin musical, with Dolores Grey and Bill Johnson, got smash notices over the weekend. . . . The rest of the cast is British. . . . You may remember Johnson as a Capitol headliner of last year who did a swell job with a busted mike. . . . Page 1 of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph reveals a two-column picture of comedienne Sibyl Bowan sitting on her trunks (not "in," brother!) . . . Sib was caught by the local freight truck drivers' strike on her way to the Civic Light Opera, where she's starring in "The Cat and the Fiddle."

List of Screen Stars Having 'Date With Judy' Still Grows

Hollywood.—Elizabeth Taylor has been added to the cast of "A Date With Judy," which already has Jane Powell, Mary Astor and Eddie Arnold . . . Bette Davis made a host of new friends at Laguna Beach when she appeared for the Memorial Day services at Heisler Park with her husband and sister. Though out of the hospital only a short time after having her baby, Bette paid her respects to the war dead along with the other townspeople . . . Corinne Calvay, the new French importation who is under contract to Paramount, won $3800 at gin rummy the other night, and the male loser is now hiding under a petunia bush at one of our popular hotels . . . Johnny, a 12-year-old boy from New York, was brought out here to test for the role of the singing newsboy in "Time of Your Life," but he looked too angelic for the part. Last summer Paul Whiteman introduced him over the air on his "Stairway to the Stars" program. Johnny sang "Danny Boy" on it.

Party Packs Punch

The party Mrs. Fred Packard gave for her parents, the J. Arthur Ranks, was delightful. It followed the christening of the Packards' new daughter. And to show how unpicture-minded they all are, nobody had thought of having a photograph of the family group made. The Packard home on Toluca Lake—old English in design—might have been transplanted from the banks of the Thames. Mr. Rank was practically purring over the success of his picture, "Great Expectations," which broke all house records at New York's Music Hall on Memorial Day. Mrs. Rank said to me, "You know your cities are much more beautiful than I imagined they were after seeing them pictured on the screen." That set me thinking. Too often we show only the bad aspects of America, such as the slums and tough people. It's about time we started playing up the good in our country.

May Be Screen Stuff

Helga Moray, Tay Garnett's former wife, has several companies interested in her forthcoming book, "Katie Called Katje." It's about her Irish grandmother, who went to South Africa, married four times, and had 14 children . . . Van Heflin, one of my favorite actors, becomes Philip Marlowe, the detective, on the air show replacing Bob Hope for the summer. Yes, I'll be listening! . . . Alan Marshall looks as fit as a fiddle these days, and is ready to go back to acting.

'Let George Do It' Motto Just Fits Kaufman's Case

New York.—Last month George S. Kaufman signed a contract to direct the movie, "The Senator Is Indiscreet." He left his home at 410 Park ave., boarded a train and travelled 3000 miles to Hollywood where he was shown the script. On the first page he read the Opening Scene—showing Park ave. from in front of No. 410, where Kaufman lives. He boarded a train and travelled 3000 miles back to New York where, today, he'll shoot the first scene from in front of his house . . . Kaufman, incidentally, says he has his alibi ready in case the picture isn't good. A man came from Washington and forced him to do it.

George S. Kaufman

Gov. Tom Dewey has searched all over America, without avail, for a man he considers able enough to take the post of New York State Health Commissioner . . . The U. S. Supreme Court will adjourn the last week of June, three weeks later than customary . . . Mr. and Mrs. Henry Morgan will appear in summer stock doing "The Man Who Came to Dinner," at Westport. Morgan says that their opening will be remembered as "The Eclipse of Lunt and Fontanne" . . . Collier's will print five instalments of the Jim Farley story of his political friendship and break with Roosevelt. The first appears this Friday which is the 13th.

Mary Boland, the screen actress who returned to Broadway last week in "Open House," longed to come back to the theater for many years. Once, when she decided to rent her home in Hollywood, she showed a prospective tenant through the house. They reached the star's bedroom, and the tenant said: "This is a lovely room" . . . Miss Boland sighed: "And nobody in it when I come home to tell me: 'Darling, you were great at the theater. You milked the most wonderful new laugh out of your lines today'."

P. G. Wodehouse's first short story in seven years, "Joy Bells for Barmy," has been sold to Cosmopolitan Magazine. It will be published in the fall . . . Mike Romanoff, who has made a successful career as a restaurateur, had his income augmented this year by roles in two movies. "Money is all right," sighed Prince Mike, "but one wastes too much time earning it" . . . Ethel Merman is wearing a bracelet which spells out her full name in diamonds and rubies. Miss Merman explained: "I always wanted to see how my name looks in lights."

This is the time of year when big city gymnasiums are crowded with young actors exercising and taking boxing lessons for summer stock performances in Clifford Odets' play, "Golden Boy." Francis Lederer was the most thorough actor in his preparation for the Golden Boy role. Lederer hired Charles Massera the veteran heavyweight fighter, to teach him how to punch the bag, throw a left hook, jab, skip rope, uppercut, etc. When, the gym course ended, Lederer preened himself and said: "Well Charlie, how do I look to you?" . . . "You look okay," said Massera, "but don't start up with anybody."

Bill Holden, who played Golden Boy in the movie version of the play, and whose newest picture is "Dear Ruth," didn't think he needed an agent when he signed his first picture contract. He made his own negotiations, and got the "Golden Boy" starring role—at $50 a week. Then, when he became an Air Corps lieutenant—at $175 a month plus allowances—he was making more than he did as a movie star . . . Joe Frisco, in refusing offers, announced: "What Astaire is to Dancing, I am to Leisure."

Truman Gives No Hint Of Labor Bill Action

By Drew Pearson

PRESIDENT Truman got a barrage of arguments to veto the labor bill the other day, but he made absolutely no commitment. The barrage came from three Democratic members of the House Labor Committee—Representatives John Lesinski of Michigan, Ray Madden of Indiana and Arthur Klein of New York—and the interesting clew they got was when the President remarked:

Lesinski

"Well, I've always been a friend of labor and I still am a friend of labor. That is a matter of record, before and during the time I was a member of the Senate, and since. However, labor hasn't always been reasonable with me."

As an afterthought, the President added:

"Labor will find after this question has been settled that I am still on its side."

Truman didn't elaborate on this broad observation. Nor did he reveal who among labor had not been "reasonable" with him. The three Congressmen assumed, however, that he referred either to John L. Lewis; or Al Whitney's railroad strike last year, or possibly AFL President Bill Green's support of Republicans in the last election, including Representative Fred Hartley of New Jersey, who has now written the reactionary version of the labor bill.

Political Warnings

"WELL, LABOR naturally looks to you as its friend, Mr. President," responded New York's Representative Klein. "The Democrats will lose New York next year if you sign the Taft-Hartley bill."

Lesinski and Madden also predicted heavy Democratic losses in Michigan and Indiana if Truman failed to veto.

"Labor didn't know about the inherent dangers of this legislation when Congress first took it up, but they know what the score is now," declared Lesinski. "Every labor union in the country and every local union member knows that this bill will take away his rights under the Wagner Act."

"President Roosevelt was elected four times with the overwhelming support of these same people," added Madden provocatively.

However, Truman refused to nibble at the bait, saying only that he would give thorough consideration to the bill before making up his mind and that he would do what he thought was best for labor and the country.

Lesinski then rebutted the argument that if Truman vetoed he would have no law to deal with another coal strike.

"That is a lot of bunk, Mr. President," declared the Michigan Congressman. "Do you know that there is an escape clause in the Taft-Hartley bill which exempts John L. Lewis from its provisions? He can circumvent the bill simply by having his mine union members protest that they are working under unsafe conditions. If this is done, Lewis can go ahead and call a walkout and the Government can't do anything about it under this legislatiton."

Manufacturers Lobby

TRUMAN seemed surprised at this.

"I didn't know anything like that was in there," he admitted. "However, John L. Lewis probably would try to circumvent the bill, whether he had an escape clause or not."

"There's a lot of trick stuff in this bill that doesn't meet the eye, Mr. President," observed Lesinski. "I suggest that you get the Labor Department to give it a good going-over."

Truman replied that he intended to get opinons from all interested departments and agencies of the Government, including the Labor Department, before making up his mind.

Madden suggested that the White House also should consider who is behind the "propaganda campaign" to get him to sign the Taft-Hartley measure.

"I refer particularly to the strategic and heavily financed efforts of the National Association of Manufacturers and other anti-labor groups to drive a wedge between farmers and city industrial workers on this issue," asserted Madden. "They have been pretty successful, judging by the sentiment that has been worked up for this legislation in farm areas.

"It has been proven time and time again, especially since enactment of the Wagner Act, that labor and agriculture are interdependent, that the two cannot prosper separately. When industrial workers were living in economic serfdom in the '20's, no one took a worse beating than the farmer.

"Why? I'll tell you why," continued Madden, warming to his subject. "Because the same forces who want to see the Taft-Hartley Bill become law were in action then, as they are today, trying to divide the farmer and the city worker.

"The farmers of America must be informed that these same propagandists who are trying to submerge labor will also reduce the farmer to the status he endured when wheat was 30 cents a bushel and corn sold for 8 cents a bushel if this bill becomes law."

Truman replied that there was "no doubt" in his mind that an attempt was being made by supporters of the Taft-Hartley bill to create a rift between agriculture and labor.

"I certainly agree with you that some effort should be made to counteract this propaganda among the farmers," the President concluded.

The three Democrats departed, however, with no commitment for or against the most controversial issue before Congress this year.

Senatorial Worship

DESPITE all the hectic meetings which rage under the Capitol dome, an unusually quiet one takes place every Wednesday morning. It is attended by a handful of Senators, both Republicans and Democrats, who exchange views in the spirit of brotherly love.

Strictly avoiding publicity, they hold informal religious services around the breakfast table. It is restricted to no sect or creed. The text is the Bible; the subjects are spiritual. A different speaker is selected each week. He is given 15 minutes, followed by an open discussion.

Only two outsiders have been invited to participate. One is a Senate Doorman Ray Bellamy, who usually brings a bouquet of roses from his garden for the speakers. The other is columnist David Lawrence, a Buchmanite.

There is no established "pastor." The chairmanship of the group rotates. But responsibility for the program is divided between Lutheran Alex Wiley of Wisconsin, Republican, and Baptists Will Robertson of Virginia, Democrat. Normally the gathering varies in size between 5 and 15.

Some of the most ardent "disciples" are Episcopalian H. Alexander Smith of New Jersy (Rep.), Methodist Clyde Hoey of North Carolina (Dem.), Mormon Elbert Thomas of Utah (Dem.), Christian Scientist Owen Brewster of Maine (Rep.), Episcopalian Ray Baldwin of Connecticut (Rep.), and Lutheran Homer Capehart of Indiana (Rep.).

Ottawa, June 9 (AP).—Canada removed dairy products of all kinds from rationing and price control today. Controls also were removed from restaurant meals and some metals, the finance ministry said.

Special Homes For Paralyzed Vets Urged

By The Associated Press

The wife of a paralyzed war veteran pleaded with Congress yesterday to provide special housing for her husband so as "to give us a chance to love and live as normally as possible."

"Give us our prosthetic home," Mrs. Robert Moss, her voice near the breaking point, asked the Senate Banking Committee, "and we'll keep our marriage, we'll enjoy our children and we'll build our world."

Mrs. Moss testified while seated next to her crippled husband, who is a patient at Halloran Hospital, Staten Island, N. Y.

He was one of 13 paraplegics who were wheeled into the hearing room to urge that the committee act favoriably on legislation, opposed by the Veterans Administration, that would provide them with specially built homes.

In standard homes, Mrs. Moss and others testified, the paraplegics are "complete invalids." Because of injuries to their spines the men, of which the Veterans Administration estimates there are about 1600, are paralyzed from the waist down.

Brought Two Children

Mrs. William C. Ellsworth, 28, who accompanied her crippled husband to the hearing with their two children, Barbara, 2, and Phelps, 5, summed up her difficulties by saying:

"We have our own, standard, home. But Bill can't live in it because he's unable to get himself even a drink of water. It would be different in a prosthetic home. He would be able to do so many things for himself that he can't do now."

Ellesworth of Richmond, Va., who testified with his small son standing beside his wheel chair, told the committee:

"I haven't been able to live in my own home. I've had to go back to the hospital."

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, VA Administrator, in a letter to the committee, said that in his "considered judgment" home for paraplegics "cannot properly be regarded as a part of the veterans rehabilitation or a proper function of the Veterans Administration."

"If an exception were made in the case of paraplegic veterans, Bradley said, ". . . it would be difficult to deny similar consideration to other seriously disabled groups, such as blinded veterans, those suffering from serious heart and lung conditions and many others."

Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.), sponsor of the bill, said he could not "conceive of General Bradley using that type of language."

He requested that Bradley be invited to testify in person and, "should he refuse, I ask that a subpoena be issued."

Acting Chairman Buck (R., Del.) said he did not "think" it would be "necessary to subpoena the general."

Bernard E. Shufelt, another paraplegic from McGuire Hospital, Richmond, told the committee that the only alternative to proper housing is "hospitalization for life."

Washington News Sued for $150,000

The Washington Daily News was named defendant in a $150,000 libel suit filed yesterday by Adelbert W. Lee, a member of the Board of Education.

Lee alleged that on May 22, 1947, the News printed a "scandalous and false" story which "reflected adversely on his intelligence and patriotism."

At that time Lee had charged that a textbook and a news letter used in District schools contained un-American teachings.

Spain to Hold Vote July 6 On Monarchy

Madrid, June 9 (U.P.).—The Spanish government today issued a decree announcing that a referendum will be held July 6 to decide whether Spain desires to retain its present regime or to establish a monarchy that can be installed when and if Generalissimo Francisco Franco desires it.

Most Spaniards were confident the referendum would show an overwhelming vote of confidence in Franco. Opponents of Franco said he would win no matter which way the nation voted.

They pointed out that Franco would continue as is if the nation voted "no" and would remain in power until he finds a candidate suitable to him if the nation voted "yes."

The decree, issued over Franco's signature, was based on a law approved October 22, 1945, authorizing the chief of state to consult the nation on the acceptability of any law already passed by the Cortes (Parliament).

Mukden Held Freed From Red Threat

Peiping, June 9 (AP).—The defender of Mukden asserted today the Communist offensive in Manchuria appeared to have spent its force against the bolstered lines of government armies.

Five government armies were pouring into Manchuria, bulwarking other forces which have gone over to the attack and already are methodically clearing the Communists from the railway to Changchun.

The defender of Mukden, Gen. Yung Shih-hui, told Chinese reporters the city was ready for any assault, but he believed the Communists had used up their strength in the southward push and would not attack.

Slump In Business Affects Hackers' Vision

EXPLANATION

Perhaps you've been wondering why cab drivers usually refuse to pick up a second passenger even in the suburbs, when both passengers are headed downtown.

My driver explained it this way yesterday:

"Used to be, there was plenty of business for everybody. If I had a single and spotted another one, I'd stop—except if I was down to the first zone already because that makes group riding a loss to the driver.

"But now there ain't enough business for the amount of hacks on the street. So if we get one, we figure the other guy has to live too. So we don't pick up no more—we leave the other passenger for another cab."

When I asked innocently whether it was legal to pass up would-be customers, my hacker snorted:

"Sure it's legal. We just don't see them."

TOKENS

John O. Duncan of 3531 18th st. South, Arlington, Va., sends me a token purchased from "E. St. Louis City Lines, Inc.", and writes:

"I don't ride streetcars much, but I do have this token left, which looks almost exactly like your local tokens. Can use?"

I don't know, John. When the tokens were in use here, many out-of-town products found their way into the fare boxes. I'll send it in and see what happens.

TRIBUTE

Private Hubert W. Estes was known as "The Mayor of Ninth Street," because of his long years of service on that beat.

When Private Estes was killed a few weeks ago (when a disbarred attorney ran amok) the gang along 9th st. was sincerely grieved.

Very quietly, they've been kicking in to a private fund being collected by Ninth-Streeter Jimmy Lake—and the other day Jimmy dropped around to Number 1 Precinct.

"Captain Pearce," he said, "here's something from Hubert Estes' friends. Will you turn it over to his family, please?"

With that, Jimmy handed over $1200.

PERFECT ANSWER

This happened at the American Legion the other night. One of the old hands wanted to make conversation with a clean cut young fellow, and by way of breaking the ice asked solicitously:

"Where are you from, son?"

"The Yew-nited States," snapped the young vet. "Where are you from, suh?"

GIVE-AWAYS

"Tortoise-colored 10-week-old kitten"—GEorgia 7131. "Three six-week-old female kittens, fine for children"—TRinidad 1728. "Two white kittens with black markings"—LUdlow 4908.

ADVICE FOR MARY

Our recent item about Mary, who is looking for a room where she can keep her baby, brings this letter of advice:

"When I was 18 years old, my husband just picked up and walked out on me, leaving me with a 2-month-old daughter.

"I was making $1560 a year on a Government job, but I kept my baby through tears, sweat, hell and high water.

"And it was well worth it. She got a degree in music, and now she's married, has a fine husband and three babies of her own.

"Tell Mary never to give up her child. She'll get mighty discouraged at times—but there's always a way to get by on your own, if you have the will to see it through."

COMMUNICATION

This letter has been received from Rachel V. Miller of 3621 1st rd., South., Arlington, Va.:

"Your fight to cut the number of drownings here deserves the support of the whole community. Perhaps others will be spared the experience of our family.

"I am the mother of Donald R. Miller, who lost his life in Chesapeake Bay last summer. He was one of a fishing party; when a young woman fell overboard, a young man dived in after her, but the current and a strong undertow were too much for him.

"Don was an excellent swimmer, and had won medals for swimming. He dived in too, and was last seen struggling with the girl.

"Swimming instruction alone isn't enough. We've got to realize that carelessness in small boats can bring quick death."

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

The Bridge Deck

By Florence Osborn

Today's Hand

Neither Side Vulnerable
SOUTH DEALER

	♠ A Q 4 ♡ Q 10 9 4 3 ◇ 7 ♣ K Q 7 3
♠ J 9 8 2 ♡ 7 ◇ Q 9 8 6 2 ♣ J 9 4	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠ 10 7 ♡ 6 5 2 ◇ K J 5 3 ♣ A 10 8 6
	♠ K 6 5 3 ♡ A K J 8 ◇ A 10 4 ♣ 5 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♡	Pass	3♡	Pass
4♡	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5♡	Pass	6♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: 2 ♠.

If you were declarer of today's six heart contract and West opened the deuce of spades, how would you play?

Don't look now. Cover the rest of this column and try your bridge mettle.

South wins his slam by making dummy the master hand. He takes the opening lead with the queen and sees that he can set up the North hand by trumping two clubs, losing only the ace of clubs. But declarer must be careful not to draw two rounds of trumps before knocking out the club ace for a trump return will shorten his heart holding, limiting him to only one club ruff.

South plays a heart to the king, then leads a ♣ club to dummy's queen. East wins the ace and returns a heart, but declarer is sure of the remaining tricks. He takes the trump lead with the ace, cashes the king of clubs and trumps a club. Next he cashes the ace of diamonds, ruffs a diamond and trumps North's last club. He enters dummy with another diamond ruff, draws the last trump and takes two spades. Declarer wins his six-heart contract, losing one club trick.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES

EXCUSE, MASTER! AIRFIELD REPORTS AIR CATHAY TRANSPORT TOOK OFF WITHOUT PERMISSION FROM CONTROL TOWER.
THAT COMPLETES THE PICTURE. TERRY WOULDN'T IGNORE TAKE-OFF PROCEDURE UNLESS SOMEONE HAD A GUN AT HIS BACK... SO, I'VE GOT TO ASK THE MILITARY PEOPLE TO BRING THAT SHIP DOWN.
NO, PAT! THEY'D HAVE TO SEND PURSUITS UP TO SHOOT IT DOWN. THE FAT MAN WOULD NEVER LET TERRY LAND.
THE MILITARY PILOTS WILL BE ORDERED TO CRIPPLE THE PLANE ENOUGH TO FORCE A CRASH LANDING. IT'S RISKY, BUT TERRY'S PASSENGERS MUST BE STOPPED.
BUT, GOLLY! THERE CAN'T BE MANY AIRFIELDS WITHIN TERRY'S FUEL RANGE. COULDN'T THEY BE ALERTED TO STOP THE GETAWAY?
ERMINE AND HER FAT PAL WOULD ANTICIPATE OUR SENDING OUT AN ALARM, SO I DOUBT THAT THEY'RE HEADING FOR A FOREIGN AIRFIELD... AS A MATTER OF FACT, IT'S SLOWLY DAWNING ON ME THAT THIS ISN'T A GETAWAY AT ALL.
